Bradley big winner over Yorty in L.A. mayoral race

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Thomas Bradley, a black ex-police lieutenant who rose from rookie cop to city councilman, achieved his "impossible dream" Tuesday, unseating 12-year incumbent Sam Yorty in the election for mayor of the nation's third largest city.

Bradley, who was trounced soundly by Yorty in the race four years ago, overcame an early deficit Tuesday and steadily piled up votes from black and liberal sections of the city, finishing with more than 56 per cent of the vote compared to Yorty's 43 per cent.

"We've come a long way," said Bradley, who came to Los Angeles from Texas at the age of 7 with his sharecropper parents. "Tonight was the fulfillment of a dream—an impossible dream—because the people of this city have given me the highest honor given to any citizen—the office of mayor."

Yorty, smiling in defeat in contrast to Bradley's solemn demeanor, said, "At least we gave the city 12 years of the best government they ever had."

A light turnout in the San Fernando Valley and other predominantly white, middle-class areas that have supported him in the past appeared to have sunk Yorty's hopes.

Yorty, who neither conceded nor offered the winner congratulations when the voting went against him, appeared bitter at his campaign headquarters.

"I can only say that now they're going to get what they asked for," said Yorty, who throughout the campaign accused the councilman of ties to militant groups.

"The change will be a radical one," Yorty said. "There's going to be a lot of people who are going to wish they had gotten out and voted."

Only 65 per cent of the city's more than 1 million registered voters cast ballots.

Semi-official final returns showed that Bradley had 56.33 per cent of the vote, or 431,222 votes, compared with Yorty's 43.66 per cent, or 334,297 votes.

Bradley takes office July 1.

Yorty, a former Democratic congressman who ran for governor and president, bolted from party positions over the years. He was a vocal foe of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and a "hawk" on the Vietnam War.

In this year's mayoral campaign, as in the one four years ago, personal attacks and racial questions often overshadowed discussion of other issues —crime in the streets, school violence, the development of a rapid transit system and protection of the environment.

Yorty said he had little power as mayor because the city charter gives more authority to the city council, on which Bradley has served since 1963.

Bradley, however, said the mayor should have lobbied in Sacramento and Washington for more federal funds and assumed more of a leadership role.

In his victory statement, Bradley promised to run the city on merit, vowing "no special interests—no special group—no special influence will receive better attention than the lowliest citizen of our community.

"I promised you we were going to build a rapid transit system and we will," he said.

He declared that Los Angeles, which was gripped by one of the nation's first race riots in Watts eight years ago, is "one big city with the power and possibility of saving itself from decay ... that has overcome some of the cities of this country."

Other black mayors or former mayors of large cities include Carl Stokes of Cleveland, Richard Hatcher of Gary, Ind., and Kenenth Gibson of Newark, N.J.

Stokes first was elected in 1967, completed two terms and did not seek reelection last year. Gibson was elected in 1970 and still is mayor of Newark. Hatcher was elected in 1967 and still holds the office.

ROYAL ENGAGEMENT

England's Queen Elizabeth II Tuesday announced the engagement of her daughter, Princess Anne, to Lt. Mark Phillips, $100-a-week career soldier in the Queen's Dragoon Guards.

Princess Anne engaged to Lt. Mark Phillips

LONDON (UPI) — Newly engaged Princess Anne, 22, and Lt. Mark Phillips, 24, faced cameras for their official betrothal photographs today and then lunched with their parents and future in-laws to discuss the all-important future.

The happy Princess, flashing her new sapphire and diamond engagement ring, and her husband-to-be were given a pop music star type welcome by crowds at Kings Cross station when they disembarked from the royal train after an overnight trip from Aberdeen.

Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip stood back to let the young lovers savor the limelight, smiling as they watched. Princess Anne and her lieutenant each held a black labrador on a leash as they walked to the royal Rolls-Royce.

"Well done, sir," shouted a man and there was a chorus of "hear! hear!"

Queen Elizabeth was the host of the family lunch also attended by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Phillips, parents of Mark. Phillips is director of a pork sausage and ice cream firm.

They live at Somerford, a village in Wiltshire, and today Patrick Montague-Smith, editor of Debrett, predicted Mark would be created Earl of Somerford.

The Evening News said, "many in the crowds wept tears of joy for the royal lovers" at Kings Cross station.

Queen Elizabeth is reported to want the most spectacular royal wedding since her own 26 years ago for her daughter, and the lunch was also a family conference on marriage details. Among the matters up for discussion were the exact date of the marriage—Nov. 9 has been mentioned—and the exact place, probably Westminster Abbey.

Where the couple will live also was uncertain although they were likely to pick somewhere with a stable since Anne, the reigning European women's riding champion, and Phillips, a member of the Olympic gold medal winning British team at Munich, are both dedicated equestrians.

The couple has dated for months but royal sources said both Anne and Phillips, a $100-a-week lieutenant based in

Bizarre ruling in graft case

Judge sentences GI, 3 others to life of poverty

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — William O. Wooldridge, once the highest ranking sergeant in the U.S. Army, today faces years of a monkish life— poverty and service to charity —as the penalty for the wheeling and dealing of the "khaki Cosa Nostra."

A federal judge Tuesday sentenced Wooldridge and three others to sign over to the government almost all of their worldly goods and assets— including one man's house—and work free for charitable organizations.

"I want the defendants penniless," said U.S. District Judge Warren Ferguson. "I want to make sure you don't have anything."

Wooldridge, 50, former sergeant major of the army, pleaded guilty last October to accepting bribes as part of a widespread net of kickbacks, graft and corruption involving the $4 billion a year operations of service clubs overseas, particularly in Vietnam.

Senate investigators dubbed the operation the "khaki Cosa Nostra."

Wooldridge, of Junction City, Kan., was given a four-year suspended prison term and placed on probation for five years on condition he work without pay for a charitable organization for three years and sign over to the government all the present assets and any that may be discovered in secret bank accounts in the future "as long as you live."

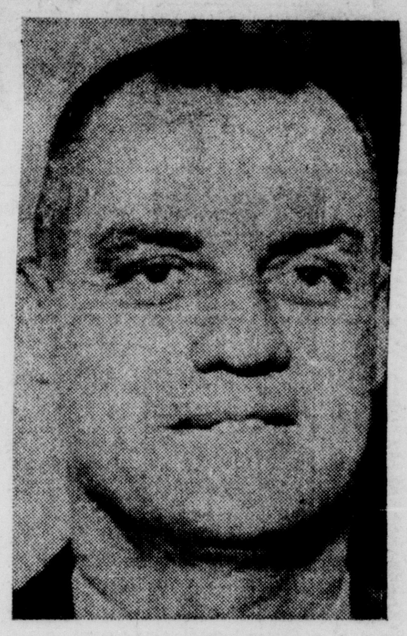

The judge left the men their Army pensions, and anything they can earn after completing the mandatory charitable work terms.

Former M. Sgt. William Higdon of McDonough, Ga., was ordered to give the government his home and all other assets, perform unsalaried charitable work for three years and was given a suspended prison term of five years and five years probation.

Sentenced to similar terms were former sergeants Theodore Bass of Pensacoloa, Fla., 38, and Seymour Lazar, 43, of Stuttgart, West Germany. Bass will have to do charitable work for only one year.

The judge conceded that the sentences were "unusual," but said the crimes were unusual. A defense attorney, Bruce I. Hochman, said he thought the sentence was illegal, but all the defendants agreed to accept the terms for probation.

The judge told the former sergeants he could not "tolerate any possibility of your benefitting from the fruits of this crime."

WILLIAM WOOLDRIDGE

Higdon had conceded that he had deposited more than $300,000 in a secret Swiss bank account.

"I have to arrive at a method whereby the government can get back as much as possible," the judge said.

He delayed sentencing until after the men testified before a Senate subcommittee investigating the service club corruption. The judge noted that Higdon had taken the fifth amendment in previous appearances before the subcommittee, and said he would take into account Higdon's cooperativeness in subsequent testimony in determining the sentence.

Wooldridge's attorney noted he had spent 31 years in the Army and won 24 decorations, including the purple heart and silver and bronze stars.

Hockman described all the defendants as men "with distinguished service records, but they're not overly bright."

Chinoan claims form of blob showed up in yard 10 days ago–'It's weird'

CHINO — Texas may be a johnny-come-lately as far as blobs are concerned.

Pete Houghton of 12359 Crepe Myrtle Ave., Chino, said he discovered a big "mass" in his back yard about 10 days ago — prior to such a blob being found near Dallas, Tex.

"It is hard to describe," said Houghton, office manager for Control Specialists, Inc., in El Monte. "It looked like a pudding with a brown crust."

Houghton studied the blob for a while before jabbing it with his finger. "It was wobbily like jello, and the white inside turned to blue."

He left the "mass" for a time to do some yard work, and when he returned the blue material had turned to brown.

"We left it for five to six days and it finally shriveled and became hard. It was no longer moist. My wife struck it with a stick and it crumbled. The inside became black like cinder."

Houghton described the first blob as being about one foot long and eight inches wide.

Several days after the first blob appeared, two smaller ones showed up, he added. "These were only about six inches in diameter."

All three were located along the Houghton's backyard fence and were about 20 feet apart.

All three blobs have since dried up, with only traces remaining, he added. "We thought they were some type of fungus."

Houghton said the blobs in his back yard appeared to be the "same type of thing" found in Texas.

One main difference, however, is the Texas blob was described as being "reddish" on the outside. "Those in my backyard were brown in color," he said.

"Whatever it was, it was really weird."

Mrs. Houghton said she didn't think much of the blobs at first. "We didn't even bother showing them to friends.

"Coming from England, we just thought this was a part of California."

Mrs. Houghton said that she and her children did throw rocks at the blobs.

Sea breezes take heat off

Three days of cool weather are promised for Pomona Valley with temperatures in the high 70s. Temperatures should start climbing to the mid-80s by Saturday.

Sea breezes and night and early morning low cloudiness brought an end to the desert condition which kept temperatures soaring for several days.

Officials at the National Weather Service office in Riverside forecast night and morning low cloudiness and hazy sunshine afternoons today and Thursday. Cooler temperatures are expected both days.

The high temperature today should reach 78 degrees and a high of 76 Thursday. It was 87 degrees in Pomona Tuesday afternoon.

A new warming trend should begin again Saturday, bringing a sunny and warm weekend to valley communities.

Nixon won't testify, requests Cox to find who leaked suggestion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon made clear Tuesday that he will not testify in either the grand jury or Senate investigations of Watergate, and he wants the independent prosecutor, Archibald Cox, to help find out who leaked a story suggesting he should testify.

Cox, the Harvard law professor who was sworn in only Friday as an impartial special Watergate prosecutor, with a mandate to be independent of any White House pressure, was thus faced with his first request to do a presidential errand.

Cox—rather deliberately, it appeared—refrained from making any public reply.

The Washington Post reported today that Frederick C. Larue, a top campaign aide to former Attorney General and Nixon campaign chief John N. Mitchell, has told the Watergate grand jury he paid about $250,000 in cash to the Watergate conspirators for their silence.

The Post said LaRue implicated Mitchell, former presidential attorney Herbert W. Kalmbach, and former White House counsel John W. Dean III in the alleged payoff scheme.

The Washington Post had reported Monday that federal prosecutors felt Nixon should testify before the grand jury. Later in the day, White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said this would be "constitutionally inappropriate."

Asked if Nixon would be willing to testify under oath before the Senate Watergate committee, Ziegler said, "No consideration is being given to that matter at all."

Ziegler said the White House had directed Cox and Attorney General Elliott Richardson to find out who leaked the report on prosecutors wanting Nixon to testify "and to make sure it does not happen again."

Senator calls for Haig to quit Nixon or Army

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., today urged Gen. Alexander M. Haig to either quit the Army or resign as President Nixon's top assistant.

"For the good of this nation, Gen. Haig should either give up his military career and continue working at the White House or immediately resign as assistant to the President," Proxmire said in a written statement.

"He cannot remain a military officer and a political staff assistant," Proxmire said. "The choice is his."

Nixon named Haig, then vice chief of staff of the Army, to take command of the White House staff after top aides H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman resigned and John W. Dean III was fired in the Watergate scandal.

Named for an unspecified interim period to mold a new staff for Nixon, Haig is now Nixon's top full-time aide.

Proxmire said "two hundred years of military tradition and good sense have been violated by Gen. Haig's acceptance of a political post in the White House.

"It compromises the military and it compromises the political process," he added.

Proxmire said "an active duty officer should not serve in any political capacity. It could lead to serious abuses of the traditional military neutrality in American politics."

Nixon extends VIP welcome to Chinese envoy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon welcomed mainland China's first diplomatic representative to Washington in 20 years today and told him he would like to return to China some day, particularily in the spring of the year.

Huang Chen, Peking's highest ranking diplomat, responded through an interpreter: "This is very good news indeed. I will speedily report this to our government."

In saying he would like to return to China in the spring, Nixon emphasized he was not specifying which spring. But he said he hoped to retrace his historic 1972 journey some day.

Nixon gave the VIP treatment to Huang who arrived in Washington Tuesday to open Peking's "liaison office" — a diplomatic mission in everything but name.

While ambassadors from nations with which the United States has full diplomatic relations often wait for months for their first meeting with the President, Nixon received Huang in his oval office less than 24 hours after his arrival.

The meeting between Nixon and Huang lasted 25 minutes and the President immediately left the White House on the first leg of his trip to Iceland to meet with French President Georges Pompidou.

The veteran Peking envoy arrived at midday Tuesday, wearing a blue Mao suit and matching cap, to the cheers of some Chinese Americans and handshakes by American diplomatic greeters.

Soon after his arrival and before his courtesty call on Nixon today, a big limousine flying a Communist red banner took Huang, who has ambassadorial rank in China's foreign service, to the White House Tuesday for a brief visit with Henry A. Kissinger.

It was Kissinger, Nixon's top foreign affairs adviser, who broke the ground for Nixon's trip to China last year that resulted in significant thawing in relations between the two powers, and led to agreement for each country to open a "liaison office" in the other's capital.

In advance of his meeting with Huang, Nixon welcomed a group of Chinese journalists to Washington. Shortly after they got to Washington, the journalists were taken to the White House where the President gave each a vigorous handshake.

The journalists are visiting the United States at the invitation of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Huang officially opened the Chinese liaison office at the Mayflower Hotel, temporarily the Peking delegation's headquarters in Washington.

Ambassador David K. E. Bruce opened the U.S. liaison office in Peking May 14.

Both missions are expected to handle negotiations on many scientific and cultural exchanges, report on political developments and eventually issue visas to tourists.

Astronauts study earth's resources

Skylab's eyeview of the sun

HOUSTON (UPI) — Skylab's astronauts beamed back spectacular pictures of the sun today and prepared for man's first in orbit survey of such things as insect infestation in Texas, gypsum beds in New Mexico and volcanos in Central America.

The initial use of the station's earth resources observation instruments was the major item on the schedule this afternoon. NASA hopes the cameras and other sensors will lead to new ways man can deal with some of his down to earth problems.

But before Charles "Pete" Conrad, Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz started the earth resources work, the pilots turned on Skylab's high powered solar telescopes for the second day and flashed back excellent television images of the sun and its atmosphere.

"We've got a beautiful picture down here," said communicator William Hartsfield.

The instrument in use was called a coronograph. It used a disc to block out the sun itself so the telescope showed visible light rays from the solar atmosphere reaching out more than a million miles. It was sort of an artificial eclipse.

At one point, Conrad said he saw a bright object sweep through the image, which he monitored on a television screen aboard Skylab. "It looks like a satellite or something," he said, but Weitz said he thought it was debris outside the ship.

While the solar observations were underway, Kerwin started the first test of a man's susceptibility to motion sickness in space. A rotating chair was used and Weitz was the subject.

The astronauts began their sixth day in space when they were awakened at 7 a. m. EDT. They said they slept in Skylab's private bedrooms for the first time during the night.

"Things are cooling down," Conrad said. "It could be a little cooler but I think everybody got a reasonable night's sleep down here."

Kerwin reported one problem —sensors apparently failed in a skull cap he wore during the night. The instruments were to measure his brain wave activity and eye movement to help scientists determine how soundly man sleeps in weightlessness. Mission control said it received no data and Kerwin said the sensitive connections apparently dried out.

To keep the pilots constantly alert to the dangers of spaceflight, flight directors scheduled a fire drill for tonight. A wailing fire alarm will be triggered and the astronauts will quickly trace its source and simulate either trying to extinguish the make-believe blaze or evacuating their big workshop area.

The main concern now of the astronauts is that their main, two-level living and work area is not cooling as fast as expected under the shade of an umbrella they raised Saturday. Officials now believe the temperature will level off around 80 degrees—10 degrees warmer than hoped.

"It's not clear yet what effect that's going to have on our overall operation," said flight director Neil Hutchinson before the crew went to bed Tuesday night. The cabin air temperature then was about 86 degrees.

The heat, however, didn't keep the astronauts from logging a new space first— defying weightlessness and literally running around a ring of water tanks lining the inside wall of Skylab. Centrifugal force held their feet to the tanks.

Marxists assassinate N. Yemen leader in ambush

BEIRUT (UPI) — An ambush party from across the border in Marxist Southern Yemen today assassinated Sheikh Mohammed Ali Othman, one of North Yemen's three top leaders, the Egyptian Middle East News Agency reported today.

"The assassination of Othman, known as a moderate in Yemeni affairs, could further endanger plans for union between North and South Yemen," an Arab press commentator said.

Mena said the attack on Sheikh Othman took place at 5:15 a.m. as he was leaving his home in Taiz, North Yemen's number two city, 20 miles from the South Yemen border.

"He was fired at by ambushers using bazookas and machineguns, who came from the other side of the border," Mena said.

Othman, a 63-year-old former judge, was one of the three members of North Yemen's ruling Republican Council. The other members are Abdel Rahman Iryani, president of the council, and Lt. Gen. Hassan Al-Amri, Commander-in-Chief of the Yemeni armed forces.

The council was established in 1966 to give North Yemen "collective leadership" and representation of the nation's two main Moslem sects.

The assassination followed four days of clashes between tribesmen and North Yemen security forces last week in the border town of Al Beida, in which at least 30 persons were killed or wounded, Mena said.

Al Beida was the center of fierce border fighting in September and October last year.

The 1972 fighting — and other border clashes which preceded it — stemmed mainly from attacks across the border by tribesmen led by regional sheikhs from South Yemen. The sheikhs fled to North Yemen with an estimated 300,000 followers after Southern Yemen became independent from Britain in 1967 and set up a Marxist regime which called itself "The Peoples Democratic Republic of Southern Yemen."

The fighting ended after the chiefs of state of North and South Yemen signed an agreement in Tripoli, Libya Nov. 28, 1972 pledging to try to unite their countries within a year.

Pueblo's skipper to retire Friday

SAN DIEGO, Calif (UPI) — Cmdr Lloyd Bucher, the skipper of the ill-fated spy ship Pueblo will retire from the Navy Friday. Bucher, who turned his ship over to the North Koreans without firing a shot, will leave the service after 22 years, the last two as executive officer of a Guam-based mine-sweeping flotilla.

Bucher, 45, said he and his wife planned a European vacation before deciding on a new career. Bucher surrendered the Pueblo in international waters near Wonsan Harbor Jan. 23, 1968. One man was killed and another 10 members of the 83 man crew were wounded when Korean naval forces opened fire on Pueblo.

The men were released from captivity Christmas Eve, 1969, after 11 months. The Pueblo itself remains in North Korea. Bucher and others later faced a court of inquiry here and some were recommended for courtmartial. Navy department officials eventually decided not to prosecute any of the crewmen.

JFK Library is birthday memorial

BOSTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., says the $27 million John F. Kennedy Library complex will "reflect the grace and beauty" of the slain president's life.

Kennedy spoke Tuesday at the unveiling of architectural plans for the library. Groundbreaking for the complex in Cambridge is scheduled in May 1974.

The building complex will be a "source of information and strength for all who visit it," Kennedy said. It is scheduled for completion in mid-1976. The ceremony was scheduled to coincide with the late president's 56th birthday.

Mrs. Howell was seeking the seat vacated by her husband. Her brother had the endorsement of their mother, head of a politically powerful family in southeastern Kentucky.

Turner got 51 per cent of the votes.

Double queen nixes wrongdoing

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Sherry Nix says she was "not trying to pull anything over on anybody" by rebounding from a California beauty contest loss with a win in Arizona, which eventually led to her finishing ahead of her one-time California rival in national competition.

Miss Nix, 21, was defeated last August in the Miss California competition by Carol Herrema of Artesia. She then moved to Phoenix, winning the suburban Miss Carefree crown and going on to become Miss Arizona. On May 19, she placed third in the Miss USA final in New York while Miss Herrema came in 12th.

"I am a resident of Arizona, of Phoenix. I am not reigning in California, I'm reigning in Arizona," Miss Nix said by telephone Tuesday.

West Germany, were right when they said in March that they were only friends. The sources said they were engaged in April.

A spokesman for Prime Minister Edward Heath said Heath had no present plans to recommend a title for Phillips. But royal sources believe he will one day gain a hereditary peerage—probably an earldom like the Earl of Snowdon who married the Queen's sister, Princess Margaret, when he was Anthony Armstrong-Jones.

Phillips must rejoin his unit, the Queen's Dragoon Guards, on Thursday. He will leave the unit in February to become an instructor at Sandhurst military academy with the rank of acting captain.

It means he will not go to turbulent Northern Ireland with the rest of the unit next year.

It also means he will get an increase of about $750 on his present income of just over $5,000 a year—and the right to request married quarters.

The couple should have no money problems. They should receive a generous dowry from the private fortune of the House of Windsor. And Anne's official allowance will rise on marriage from its present $37,500 a year to $87,500 a year.

Phillips' family is well-to-do but not wealthy. His father is a director of a pork sausage and ice cream firm.

Drug company indicted over deadly solution

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A federal grand jury has indicted Abbott Laboratories and five of its present or former officers on charges of distributing contaminated intravenous solution linked to 50 deaths and 350 injuries.

The indictment, returned by a grand jury at Raleigh, N.C., Tuesday and announced by the Justice Department here, names the North Chicago, Ill., firm and the employes on 60 counts each.

The contaminated fluid was allegedly shipped from the firm's Rocky Mount, N.C., plant from September of 1970 to April of 1971.

The deaths, and an estimated 350 injuries which occurred all across the country, were traced by government investigators to a faulty capping system on several kinds of intravenous solution, officials said. The fault allowed bacterial microorganisms to survive in the fluid even after sterilization and caused blood poisoning when administered to hospital patients, according to the U. S. Center for Disease Control.

At the time of the incident Abbott was the nation's major producer of intravenous solutions. The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) recalled millions of bottles from hospitals and other medical installations to prevent additional injuries. The FDA later recommended criminal action against the firm.

The five individuals indicted were Herbert M. Gross, president of Abbott's Hospital Product Division and an Abbott vice president; Clarence J. Endicott, vice president for scientific and quality affairs in the Hospital Planning Division; Robert T. O'Donnell, former director of quality assurance for the Hospital Products Divison, now a stock broker trainee in Chicago; Robert A. Otto, plant manager, Hospital Products Division; Rocky Mount, N.C.; and Harry W. Howell, quality assurance manager, Hospital Products Division, Rocky Mount, N.C.

Accused POW criticizes charge

NEW YORK (UPI) — Army Sgt. James Daly of Brooklyn, a former prisoner of war accused with seven other ex-POWs of collaborating with the enemy in exchange for better treatment, thinks the charges are "stupid."

"The average prisoner did not think of his country first. He thought of himself," Daly told NBC news Tuesday night.

Daly and the others were accused by Air Force Col. Theodore W. Guy, also a former POW. But Daly told NBC one reason any POW would bring such a charge "would be to cover up very good for himself."

He said Guy "was the only prisoner in my camp who I know of who received packages from home."

"Every prisoner in our camp has always said that any prisoner who ever received a package from home must have done something to get the package," Daly said in the interview with NBC.

"I made statements just as any prisoner made. I had no choice. The statements that I made were antiwar statements as far as the war was concerned.

Pine wins bid for city atty.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Burt Pines, a 34-year-old former assistant U.S. attorney unknown before his first bid for political office, easily unseated five-term incumbent Roger Arnebergh Tuesday, becoming the first new city attorney here in 20 years.

Pines, with 3,103 of the 3,169 precincts counted, polled 58.4 per cent of the vote with 410,638 ballots. Arnebergh, never challenged previously in his two decades as the city's top legal officer, got 292,242 ballots or 41.6 per cent of the vote.

Incumbent city councilmen Donald D. Lorenzen, a Yorty supporter, and Robert J. Stevenson, who had to overcome campagin accusations from his indictment in a bribery case, won re-election to their seats Tuesday.

Lorenzen narrowly defeated Joy Picus, leader in the League of Women Voters, by a 546 vote margin in the western San Fernando Valley's 3rd District by collecting 50.5 per cent of the vote compared to Mrs. Picus' 49.5 per cent.

Stevenson polled 56.4 per cent of the runoff vote, while police Lt. L. J. Kasper, who made an issue of Stevenson's indictment though the charges were later dropped, received 43.61 per cent.

In the city school board elections, incumbents Donald Newman and Richard Ferraro won their bids for re-election. Newman defeated Edith Watson by a 57.9 to 42.1 per cent margin, while Ferraro outpolled Arnett Hartsfield by a 53.2 to 46.8 per cent advantage.

Ralph Richardson won both the unexpired and full terms on the community college board of trustees by receiving 63.3 per cent of the ballots over Peter Taft's 36.8 per cent in the unexpired term voting and by polling 61.7 per cent in the full term balloting.

More charges of collaboration?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Several more ex-POWs—some of them officers—may be charged with collaborating with their North Vietnamese captors, Pentagon sources said today. Charges already have been leveled at eight enlisted men.

Col. Theodore W. Guy, 44, a former POW from Tuscon, Ariz., Tuesday charged five soldiers and three Marines with military violations ranging from seeking political asylum in Hanoi to making model planes for the North Vietnamese to use in target practice. One was charged with assaulting another prisoner.

Pentagon sources said future charges, if made, could include officers up to the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Defense Department spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim acknowledged only that "a few other" POWs have been talking with their lawyers about framing charges against their one-time fellow captives. Filing charges does not mean any of the men will automatically face court-martial.

Guy's charges were forwarded to the secretaries of the Army and the Navy. These secretaries, or their subordinates, have the authority simply to drop the charges if they feel the accusations lack substance, or stat a court-martial if they feel it is warranted.

At the end of the Korean war, only 565 or 13 per cent of the 4,428 POWs who returned were questioned and investigated. More than three-quarters were cleared without trial. Others were booted out of the service. Only about a dozen were tried and convicted by courts-martial.

The maximum punishments on conviction of the charges filed Tuesday start at six months for the lowest charge of failure to obey orders. The highest charge of "aiding the enemy" carries a maximum penalty of death according to the Manual for Courts-Martial, although an Army announcement said life imprisonment would be the heaviest penalty.

Guy said last month that some POWs had aided the North Vietnamese by exposing his efforts to secretly organize the prisoners and set up a communications system. As a result, Guy said, he was beaten and tortured.

"I cannot accept them as Americans," Guy said.

Guy's complaint accused at least five of the men of seeking political asylum in North Vietnam. There was no indication why the alleged request was refused. The men were also charged with urging other POWs to collaborate and accepting preferential treatment as the result of their collaboration.

Two of the men were charged with making model planes for target practice.

All of the men were held in the prison camp named "The Plantation" by the POWs. Guy, a POW for five years, was the ranking American in the camp and as such the commander of the prisoners there. At its height, the camp held 108 of the 566 military prisoners.

The Marines charged were Pvt. Frederick L. Elbert, 25, Brentwood, N.Y.; Sgt. Abel L. Kavanaugh, 24, Denver; and Staff Sgt. Alfonso Riate, 28, Santa Rosa, Calif.

The soldiers accused were Branch; Daly; S. Sgt. Robert P. Chenoweth, 25, Portland, Ore.; S. Sgt. King David Rayford Jr., 27, Chicago; and S. Sgt. John A. Young, 27, Grayslake, Ill.

Branch and Elbert were both listed as AWOL when they were captured. Along with four other POWs who faced potential charges from before their captivity, their records were wiped clean last month.

Ontario man hangs self in jail cell

SAN BERNARDINO — An Ontario man after appearing in West Valley Municipal Court on a violation of probation charge Tuesday hanged himself in his cell at the San Bernardino County Jail Tuesday night.

Carlos Estrada Zapata, 39, of 203 S. Lemon St., Ontario, was fund dead in his jail cell about midnight. According to the San Bernardino County Coroner's Office, Zapata, being held without bail on a probation violation charge, had torn strips of a bed sheet and tied them together. He tied one end of the bed sheet around his neck and the other around a shelf brace in his cell and hanged himself.

Zapata, before his arrest by Ontario police May 24 for violation of probation, had served a 60-day county jail term after pleading guilty in West Valey Municipal Court to assault by means of force likely to produce great bodily harm on an Ontario man Aug. 26, 1972. He was on probation for a three-year period.

QUEEN HOPEFULS — Chris Jennings of Glendora, left, and Lori Robinson of El Monte were winners in a Citrus College contest to select two representatives to the Los Angeles County Fair queen's court. They will vie in August with eight other hopefuls for the coveted title of queen of the 1973 Los Angeles County Fair.

Hit-and-run driver hits Chino youth

CHINO — A Chino youth was injured when struck by a hit-and-run vehicle Tuesday as he attempted to cross Pipe Line Avenue near Riverside Drive.

Michael Lee Jakway, 16, of 15030 Sandalwood St., was treated at Chino General Hospital and released.

Jakway said he had checked both ways for traffic before starting across the street and didn't see the vehicle which struck him until it was right upon him.

He tried to dodge out of the way, but the vehicle struck him on the right arm and leg, highway patrolmen said. The driver of the green vehicle failed to stop.

10 Southland coeds are chosen for county fair queen contest

POMONA — Judges for the Los Angeles County Fair's annual queen contest will have quite a task this year in choosing a queen from 10 Southland coeds selected from five area colleges.

Judging will be done in August, but the judges' choice will not be made public until the evening of Sept. 14, the opening day of the 17-day exposition. She will be crowned by the reigning fair queen, Linda Lockwood of Cal Poly.

Chosen by their respective college for the contest fare are the following:

Azusa-Pacific—Cathy Boyd, 20, Fresno, a psychology major, hoping to work with mentally retarded children; and Julie Christinson, 19, Riverside, a religion-psychology major, who wants to operate a camp for all ages;

Cal Poly Pomona—Patti Jo Erickson, 18, Brea, majoring in animal science and looking forward to a veterinary career; and Kathy Grothe, 21, Claremont, studying for her elementary teaching credential;

Citrus College—Christine Jennings, 18, Glendora, working for her AA degree and a career as an airline stewardess; and Lori Robinson, 18, El Monte, who plans on being a dental assistant.

La Verne College—Ann Hanawalt, 21, La Verne, a biology major working for a teacher's credential; and Marsha Miller, 19, West Covina, a music major who'd like to become a professional singer.

Mt. San Antonio College—Mirna Meijer, 19, La Puente, seeking an office career; and Sondra Schoenberger, 18, Baldwin Park, looking forward to becoming a commercial airlines pilot.

5,000-mile tour

Webb School opens summer trip to girls

CLAREMONT — Webb School, boarding school for high-school boys, has added girls, backpacking, and a Green River raft trip to its annual summer camping trip.

For the first time in 28 years, registration is open to teen-age girls, reported Art House, assistant dean and the faculty adviser for the trip.

The five-week trip will cover 5,000 miles and begin June 15.

The truck caravan will traverse the West as far as the Badlands of Nebraska and South Dakota. Yellowstone Park, the Grand Tetons, Dinosaur National Park, Custer State Park, and Mt. Rushmore will be among highlights of the excursion.

Dr. Raymond M. Alf, curator of the school's museum that bears his name, will join the group midway through the trip, and assist in fossil collecting. Such specimens often provide displays for the museum, where more than 13,000 persons have visited in the past five years.

Staff assistants will include House's wife, Sue, the school's librarian; Debbie Perry, who holds an advance first aid degree and is majoring in nursing at Humboldt State College; and Bob Haven, a junior at UC Irvine, who will lead the backpacking trip in the Sierra Nevada. Debbie is the daughter of coach Les Perry.

Man charged with stealing

CLAREMONT — Police early today arrested a man they said was stealing glass panes from a telephone booth door to use in making an aquarium.

Stewart Adams Young, 30, of 336 Notre Dame Ave., was charged with petty theft and released on a citation.

Officer Don Magub said he was parked in a patrol car near the Safeway market, 380 S. Indian Hill Blvd., shortly after 2 a.m. when he saw Young walk into a phone booth, remove a beer can opener from his pocket and pry out an 8-inch by 36-inch pane of glass. Magub said later that Young told him he had taken two other panes previously for use in building an aquarium. The panes were given the officer when he took Young home.

Two more P-B readers win cash prizes

Anita P. Ford of 660 W. Bonita Ave., Claremont, was awarded $25 and Bette Jennings of 937 Ashfield Ave., Pomona, picked up $10.

The sweepstakes so far has turned over $3,095 to 104 persons.

Cyclist seriously hurt when bike, car collide

POMONA — A motorcyclist was injured seriously Tuesday night when his machine hit a car broadside at Towne Avenue and Phillips Boulevard.

John Michael Vietti, 20, of 1476 S. San Antonio Ave., suffered injuries to his left arm, left leg and face in the collision. He was taken to County-USC Medical Center where his condition today was described as fair.

The driver of the car, Phillip Quentin O'Brien, 64, of 2287 Koolish St., was arrested on suspicion of felonious drunken driving.

Police reported that O'Brien turned left in front of Vietti's motorcylce which was northbound on Towne Avenue. Witnesses said Vietti was hurled over the hood of O'Brien's car and landed 15 feet from the point of collision.

A Claremont girl was injured slightly in a two-car accidient at Garey Avenue near Third Street Tuesday evening. Nancy J. Collins, 17, of 689 Hood Drive, was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital for forehead cuts.

Police reported she hit the windshield of a car driven by Robin Marie Romeo, 17, of 534 Clarion Place, when their car ran into the rear of a car driven by Ronald T. Jackman, 32, 18237 E. La Puente Road, La Puente.

A car rolled unattended down Elwood Street Tuesday morning and slammed into a carport at 1305 N. Dudley St., police reported.

Linda Ann Covert, 20, of 1170 Murchison St., left the car parked shortly after 8 a.m. It slipped into reverse gear and rolled backwards and slammed into the carport supports at 1305 N. Dudley St. No one was home at the time of the accident.

Lakey jury has case under study

POMONA — The jury in the Lee Donald Lakey murder trial began its first full day of deliberations today after receiving the case Tuesday.

Lakey, 22-year-old busboy, is accused in the strangulation death Jan. 14 of 19-year-old Cheryl P. Brown the first night she was to spend in her first apartment at 759 E. San Francisco Ave.

The jury panel was instructed Tuesday by Pomona Superior Court Judge Glenn M. Pfau who told them they must decide if Lakey is innocent, or guilty of first or second degree murder or voluntary or involuntary manslaughter.

Lakey has been in custody since he was arrested several days after the young woman was killed.

Via Verde home group drops suit

SAN DIMAS —The Via Verde Homeowners Association has dropped a law suit against the city which was filed in 1972 to reopen hearings on an amendment to the general plan.

Dr. Marvin Ersher read a statement from Phil Wax, who was then president of the Via Verde Homeowners Association, to the City Council Tuesday night. The statement said that attorneys Burke, Williams and Sorensen of Los Angeles have been authorized to dismiss the litigation.

"Since the city appears to be proceeding is the right direction in the formulation and adoption of an amended general plan, the major objective of the litigation has been accomplished," the statement read.

Ersher said it was the desire and intent of the association to participate constructively in the adoption of the amended general plan by appearing and participating in the public hearings before the planning Commission and City Council and at that time offer any input relevant to the adoption of the general plan.

Ghost still haunts Profumo 10 years later

LONDON (UPI) — One name crops up in every mention of the sex-and-security scandal surrounding the resignations of Lord Lambton and Earl Jellicoe from the government of Prime Minister Edward Heath.

For John Profumo, 1963 is the ghost that will not die.

Since then he has shaken hands with the Queen, with Heath, with Lady Spencer Churchill, Sir Winston's widow. He is no longer a pariah, a social outcast. But 1963 haunts him.

Profumo was war minister then, embroiled with red-haired callgirl Christine Keeler. The low life in high places and Profumo's lie to the House of Commons about it teetered the government and forced Profumo into anonymous disgrace.

Ten months later the telephone rang in the office of the new warden of Toynbee Hall, a charity for the poor of London's slummy East End. A woman's voice asked:

"Is there anyone you would snub if he offered to help? Anyone at all?"

"I would never turn away anyone who wanted to help," said Warden Walter Birmingham. John Profumo came the next day.

He has worked full time, without pay, for Toynbee Hall ever since. He spends four days a week at social work there, often working until 10 p.m.

"I just want to devote my life to the East End," he told an interviewer four years ago, "and help its people in any way I can."

Profumo raised most of the $1.5 million which went to build a new Toynbee Hall. The Queen, Heath, Lady Churchill and many government members greeted him warmly at the building's opening ceremony.

Recently Profumo also has become involved with a social experiment in building a village-style community within an urban structure. He helped select tenants for a complex of apartment buildings at the town of Maidenhead which mixes young tenants and old, rich and poor in a careful cross-section of society.

Profumo commutes by train from the 20-room Georgian-era manor house he bought in 1965. He lives quietly in the tiny village of Westmill with his wife, the former stage star Valerie Hobson, and their sons.

Sierra Club interested in 'the Blob'

GARLAND, Tex. (UPI) — The Sierra Club asked Marie Harris to save her blob but the beleagured housewife is hoping the white growth, apparently nothing more than bacteria, is dying a natural death.

The current blubbery mass is the fourth one to appear in her backyard.

"Now I think the fourth one is dying," she said Tuesday. "It is withering."

The Sierra Club, a national conservation agency with headquarters in Los Angeles, asked Mrs. Harris to save the blob for examination. The club's request was one of a myriad of calls the woman has received since the world learned there was an unusual growth in the woman's lawn.

A family spokesman said most of the calls came from the United States but there was one person who called from Canada and another from Great Britain.

Several analyses of the balloon-like substances, which turn red and purple when punctured, are underway but no biologist, botonist or other scientist has inspected them. It is believed, however, the growths are bacterial, created from a mixture of organic substances in the Harris lawn and fed by recent heavy rains.

"There's some possibility that some kind of bacteria is growing and multiplying out there in the mulch and organic matter," Mrs. Harris said. "I hope so."

Vote delays entry into gold market

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House defeated on a tie vote Tuesday an amendment that would have allowed Americans to speculate in world gold markets after the end of this year.

The 162 to 162 vote upheld a House Banking Committee amendment that would allow President Nixon to decide when the U.S. monetary position is stable enough to allow gold ownership by Americans.

The debate over gold ownership came during House debate on legislation officially ratifying the latest devaluation of the dollar. The bill would raise the price of gold from $38 an ounce to $42.22 an ounce, resulting in a 10 per cent dollar devaluation. The devaluation already has taken effect in world money markets. After turning aside several other efforts to allow gold ownership, the House passed the devaluation bill 281 to 36.

Under present law, Americans may buy gold for industrial purposes. They may also own gold jewelry, fabricated gold, or trade in rare gold coins. But they are prohibited from acquiring gold for speculative or investment purposes.

The Senate recently voted to allow Americans to speculate in gold, and a House-Senate conference will have to settle the dispute.

Eager beaver attendants foil robbery

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Two young men on their way to rob a savings and loan Wednesday were not deterred by a flat tire on their car.

Armed with sawed-off shotgun and pistol, they left the car at a nearby service station and continued on foot to an office of Home Federal Savings and Loan, where they relieved a teller of $2,219.

Then they raced back to the service station—only to find their getaway car jacked up with the right rear wheel off. They were arrested and charged with malicious entry of a financial institution, police said.

U.S. registers trade surplus

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent announced that the United States registered a trade surplus in April of $133.6 million — its first in 18 months.

At a news conference, Dent said: "This is a constructive development from the standpoint of international markets." He cautioned however that "monthly figures are not necessarily indicative of longer trends."

The surplus was based on exports of $5,467,000,000, up 2 per cent from March, and imports of $5 291,000,000, down 2.6 per cent. Imports declined for the second successive month.

"Most of the favorable shift in the April trade balance resulted from a decline in the deficit with Canada," Dent said.

He floats better than Ivory Soap

LAKE ELSINORE, Calif. (UPI) — George Perez, 11, can't swim, but he can float for dear life.

Perez, of Alberhill, Calif., was playing in the lake here with his brother, Cruz, 12, when the older boy decided to leave the water.

Darkness came, and the younger Perez could not be found. The lake was choppy with wakes from many boats, and since George cannot swim, it was thought he had drowned.

Boaters found him Tuesday, 15 hours after he disappeared, a mile and a half from where he was last seen. He was floating on his back, officials said, and had kept alive by floating all night.

"He looks like a prune, but he's alive," said Robert

Threat of suits hangs over S.D.

By LENORE WALLACE
P-B Staff Writer

SAN DIMAS — City councilmen here had some rough moments Tuesday night. Two separate applicants threatened to sue the city and a black member of the community charged that city hall doesn't hire blacks.

John Velda, representing Kaufman and Broad developers that are constructing a condominium project at Cypress and Valley Center avenues, told the City Council that his firm would bring legal action if denied the proposed architectural changes to the exterior of the building. The City Council later denied the request.

Velda said the city couldn't legislate architectural design. He said his firm had to make the change from a wood to a stucco exterior of the building now under construction out of necessity. He said his company couldn't get the exterior cedar for the exterior because of a critical lumber shortage. He also cited the cost of the lumber.

The applicant showed the city council photographs of other townhouse developments throughout the city. He said he felt his project was far superior.

Mayor Thomas Nuss and Councilmen James Lough and Loyd Salisbury voted to deny the application. Nuss explained that the city didn't design the building or seek the present changes in the exterior. "We voted to approve your project with wood exterior. I don't consider your presentations sufficient reason to change the concept," Nuss said.

Councilman D. F. Hooper, who returned to the City Council after an eight-week absence because of illness, was in favor of granting the changes as was Councilman Keith Brogan.

Jack Howard, representing Laura Scudder Potato Chips, also threatened legal action with the city over its rejection of a metal building which is supposed to be constructed on an acre site at San Dimas Canyon Road between Palomares and Bonita avenues. The applicant wants to construct the metal warehouse which will become a distribution center for the Laura Scudders products. A total of 14 trucks will operate from the warehouse.

The City Council earlier in the evening set a public hearing for June 11 for a proposed amendment that will prohibit the construction of metal buildings in manufacturing zones such as the San Dimas Canyon Road property.

Howard said he was encouraged to develop in the City of San Dimas and had acted in good faith. He said the city is being unethical in stalling his application. The applicant said he was caught in the middle of the situation with monetary and legal commitments to the project.

Lough requested that the matter be placed on the agenda at the June 11 meeting for attention of the council.

William Coulter of San Dimas appeared before the council in what developed at times into a shouting match with Nuss. Coulter charged racial discrimination in city hall hiring. He said he knew of four applicants for jobs and he said there is no record of these applications on file today at city hall. Coulter said the applicants had sought a clerk's position with the city.

Nuss said he wanted it in the public record that Coulter had made the same charges before and had later apologized to the city staff. Nuss and City manager Robert Poff said they would be glad to talk to Coulter about his charges. Both denied his allegations.

Seek trucker in rape case

ONTARIO — A runaway 16-year-old girl from Indianapolis was picked up by a truck driver and allegedly raped while en route to California, according to Ontario police.

The girl, left at the Union 76 Truck Stop at Milliken Avenue and the San Bernardino Freeway about 7 p.m. Tuesday, told police the trucker forced her into the back of his tractor truck's sleeper and forcibly raped her. She said she had been hitchhiking from Indiana to California.

Police said they are seeking the truck driver for questioning. He is described as a Caucasian, 28, of medium height, 170, wearing a brown beard, brown boots and blue jeans. Police said he may be driving a 1966 or 1967 red truck tractor hauling an empty flatbed trailer.

Capacity of an Arab vessel called the dhow is measured not in tons but in the number of 180-pound date packages it can stow.

L.V. tackles $2,273,119 budget

LA VERNE —The City Council has begun consideration of a tentative "bare bone" $2,273,119 budget for next year, based on the current tax rate of $2.15½ cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Even without a raise in the rate, the budget amount is the highest in the city's history — nearly $120,000 more than for the current year that ends June 30.

It provides for the hiring of four additional firemen later in the year to man the city's second fire station in La Verne Heights, as well as for a new park superintendent and an assistant to planning director Charles Le Gros.

City Manager George Caswell told the council Tuesday night that virtually all of the additional money in the budget will go toward payment of the salaries of 11 new employes.

Caswell said the budget did not include any proposals for salary increases for city workers. He said negotiations have not yet begun for next year, and therefore he did not know what the employes would ask for.

The city manager said that if the council intends to give raises, it will have to find money not now in the budget.

This means either increasing the tax rate or cutting back the number employes to be hired under the preliminary budget proposal.

Nor is there any provision to continue construction of the north side fire station, which Fire Chief Robert Lapp has estimated would cost about $87,000 during the next year. Caswell suggested that the construction could be financed with revenue sharing funds.

The city manager said there was enough equipment available to partially furnish the fire station, since it is built.

Actually, the tax levy is expected to raise only about $600,000 of the total. The rest of the money is expected from sales taxes, state apportionments, levies on developments, fees, special taxes, utilities, and other sources.

Salaries account for nearly half of the annual budget.

The budget must be adopted by June 30.

At Tuesday night's opening session, the council heard requests for money from the Chamber of Commerce and from Open Door, but took no action. The council is expected to hear from the police and fire departments Monday night.

Initiative stopping Oakland pot arrests ruled invalid

OAKLAND (UPI) — A city initiative that ordered police to de-emphasize marijuana arrests in the university town of Berkeley was ruled unconstitutional Tuesday by a Superior Court judge.

The controversial voter-passed initiative was challenged by California Attorney General Evelle J. Younger and Alameda County District Attorney Lowell Jensen.

At the time of their May 3 challenge, about 100 young persons held a "smoke-in" with what looked like the illegal weed being puffed in public. Police watched but made no arrests.

Under the city charter measure, police were ordered to refrain from making marijuana arrests without prior approval from the City Council.

In declaring the law void and unconstitutional, Alameda County Judge Lionel J. Wilson issued a permanent injunction ordering the Berkeley City council to "cease and desist" from prohibiting the police from enforcing state marijuana laws.

Wilson, who issued a temporary restraining order against the initiative on May 3, said it was in "direct conflict" with state laws on arrests and those requiring statutes to be "uniformly and adequately enforced."

Paul Halvonik, an American Civil Liberties Union lawyer hired by the city council, said he expected to challenge the ruling in the state District Court of Appeal in San Francisco.

Sponsor of the ballot initiative, Tom Accinelli, said Berkeley radicalism has changed from rioting to attempts to "work within the system."

"It is now clear that the political process is stacked against us," he said.

Dollar loses ground pushing up gold price

LONDON (UPI) — The U.S. dollar lost ground today in London, Paris and Frankfurt, bringing buyers back into the market for gold. Gold opened firm in London, rising $1.25 at the fixing at $111.50.

"After the fixing overseas buyers pushed the metal up to $113 at one time," an N. M. Rothschilds spokesman said.

"Profit taking took the top off the price and just before midday the quote was between $111-112.50," a spokesman at bullion dealers Johnson Matthey said.

"Silver has also been an active market, partly due to the overnight rise in New York and partly in sympathy with the hardening of gold," silver dealer Sharps Pixley said.

In London the pound sold for $2.5640, or up .855 cents against the dollar.

"The market continued to be thin, but more business was evident today than Tuesday, though turnover was as yet nowhere near last week's levels," a Swiss Bank dealer said.

"If the pressure continues on the dollar, things could get pretty hectic," said a dealer at Barclay's, Britain's largest bank.

Oops! wrong cashier

Neal death delays S.D. plan hearing

SAN DIMAS — The death Monday night of Paul Neal of Lampman and Associates of Pomona will cause a delay of several months on hearing of the general plan for San Dimas.

Mr. Neal had been working on the plan since October. Hearings on the plan were to begin in about two weeks.

City Manager Robert Poff said it would be unfair to expect a new man to complete work on the plan in two weeks. He said it is about half finished. He said the herings will now be scheduled after Sept. 3.

Labor talks could boost postal rates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Postmaster General E. T. Klassen says labor negotiations with postal workers probably will result in higher postal rates for the first time in two years.

The increase would be the first since the Post Office Department was reorganized into the semi-independent U.S. Postal Service on July 1, 1971. The last increase, which raised first class postage from six to eight cents, took effect May 16, 1971.

Senate kills delay on used car smog controls

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Senate, in its first "clean air" floor fight of the session, has blunted the drive to delay installation of new smog control devices on five million used cars.

On a tie 14-14 vote, the Senate rejected legislation asking the state Air Resources Board to postpone the scheduled July 1 start of the installation program for 1966-70 cars until next Jan. 31.

Despite defeat of the measure, proponents asked for and received permission to have the vote reconsidered later, a move which kept it alive.

The action shaped up as a prelude to an even bigger expected fight over a bill by Sen. Lawrence Walsh, D-Huntington Park, which would require — instead of merely ask the board to suspend the operation for seven months.

Walsh's measure, hastily amended so it would not require a hearing by the Senate Finance Committee, may be up for full Senate debate on Thursday.

Opponents of the new smog control devices, including Sen. John Holmdahl, D-Oakland, contended that at least four of the six exhaust emission mechanisms approved by the board may damage car engines.

Holmdahl, author of the rejected resolution (SCR52), took issue with four "vacuum spark advance disconnect" devices. He said they shouldn't be mandated on the public until motorist were assured they wouldn't harm their car engines.

But Sen. W. Craig Biddle, R-Riverside, who led the fight against delay, argued there was "no evidence" that two approved devices involving an "exhaust gas recycle" system had caused engine damage.

Those devices were used in smoggy Riverside County in a test experiment before proposed expansion of the program statewide. In addition, used cars whose ownership changes now are required throughout the state to have the new antismog devices before they can be registered.

The devices are aimed at reducing emissions of oxides of nitrogen. Supporters contend in 1966-70 models, the devices will reduce oxides of nitrogen by up to 50 per cent per car and 15-20 per cent overall statewide.

Public employes' right to strike wins support

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California's 1.1 million state and local public employes, including school teachers, would be granted the right to strike under legislation sponsored by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti which survived its first committee test Tuesday night.

"Public employe strikes exist and unless we develop some intelligent mechanism for dealing with these strikes their intensity and number will grow," Moretti told the Assembly Employment and Public Employes Committee.

The committee, on a party-line 5-2 vote, sent the bill (AB1243) to the Ways and Means Committee.

The measure was vehemently opposed by the Reagan administration.

"This bill would destroy civil service as we know it," protested William Drohan, assistant secretary of the state Agriculture and Services Agency.

"Some of the arguments you raise show either an ignorance or total disregard for the history of the American labor movement," countered Assemblyman Lawrence Kaplioff, D-San Diego.

The bill would grant collective bargaining rights to state and local public employes. They could strike—or employers could lock them out—if mediation procedures failed to settle differences over wages, hours or other working conditions.

A court could stop a strike if it threatened public health or safety.

"There aren't going to be any police or fire strikes," Moretti said.

A three-member Public Employes Relations Board appointed by the governor would administer the act.

Roughly 1.1 million public employes would be covered, a Moretti aide said. Federal employes would not be.

"This bill would end the second-class citizen status of the public employe," Moretti told the committee. "Public employes would be guaranteed the same rights available to any employe in a free society without fear of reprisal."

The Van Nuys Democrat, a contender for his party's 1974 gubernatorial nomination, said his proposal would encourage "cool and impartial reasoning rather than emotional table pounding and ultimatum."

Backers of the legislation acknowledged that if the bill does pass the legislature, it faces an almost certain veto by Gov. Ronald Reagan. The governor, a former president of the Screen Actors Guild, supports collective bargaining for private employes but strongly opposes it for government workers.

In attempting to explain the administration's position, Drohan was told by freshman Assemblyman Richard Alatorre, D-Los Angeles, that his testimony was "an insult to this committee" because it lacked details.

The state official in turn accused the committee, whose membership was appointed by Moretti, of "a meat grinder approach (that) is a disservice to the public."

Twenty-nine states now allow collective bargaining for public employes.

Testifying in favor of the bill were the California Labor Federation, highway patrolmen, California Teachers Association and other employe groups. Opposed were the California Chamber of Commerce, school boards, County Supervisors Association and various management groups.

Consumer agency bill is stalled -- Nader rips solon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader has accused Rep. Chet Holifield, D-Calif., of deliberately trying to stall congressional action on a bill to set up a consumer protection agency.

Holifield, chairman of the Government Operations Committee, has "not even scheduled hearings" on legislation to establish the agency, which would be designed to give the consumer a voice inside the federal government, Nader said Tuesday.

In a letter to Holifield, Nader said Holifield's lack of action showed he was "not interested" in processing a strong Consumer Protection Agency bill — in fact any bill at all — at this session of Congress.

Nader suggested that Holifield let Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., the next ranking Democrat on the committee, preside over hearings "on this most important legislation for 200 million American consumers."

Nader, who has feuded with Holifield in the past, hinted that Holifield was trying to "trade off" the consumer agency bill in exchange for administration support for a nuclear reactor construction program favored by Holifield.

"With the Congress going into the sixth month of its current session, you have not even scheduled hearings on the consumer protection agency — indeed you have not even expressed publicly your intention to schedule hearings soon," Nader charged.

'Achieve' is slogan of first black L.A. mayor

Two weeks before his election as mayor of Los Angeles, the nation's third largest city, Thomas Bradley, 55, returned to his alma mater of UCLA and talked about life as a black.

"I grew up under the system that said you can't do this, you can't go there, you cannot achieve this position.

"Don't try to go to college because it won't do you any good. You know, a black youngster, a Negro youngster— that's what we were called then —can never make it. Just be content to get on with junior high school if you can.

"I refused to listen to that kind of advice."

He was born the son of a Pullman car porter and a domestic maid in Calvert, Texas, in 1917. They did not give him a middle name. The family moved to Los Angeles when Tom was six years old. The parents broke up and for a time the mother and children were on relief.

He ran the quarter-mile in track events at Poly High in Los Angeles and was elected student body president.

At 23, he became a rookie cop on the nearly all white Los Angeles Police Department. He retired as a lieutenant 21 years later. While on the force he graduated from UCLA and then went to Southwestern University Law School and received a degree in 1956. He was reportedly under consideration for the post of deputy chief when he retired from the force.

He has represented the biracial 10th District in west-central Los Angeles since he won the seat in the 1963 primary by polling 63 per cent of the vote.

Bradley is a Methodist and a Democrat, although the office of mayor is nonpartisan. He is a little over six feet tall and weights about 195 pounds.

He once said that during his years on the police force he learned that "hostility breeds hostility."

"As an officer, I saw that every man was looking for some kind of warmth, whether he would admit it or not. People, all people, are looking for respect, for human dignity.

"This is something we all nourish. I have faith in this element of human nature, faith that there is an underlying decency in every man."

POTENTIAL WINNER — Tom Bradley may be the mayor-elect in Los Angeles today, but when he was casting his ballot yesterday he was just another candidate. It is a long way up for the one-time sharecropper's son.

GOP gains one chair in Assembly

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Republican Robert McLennan overwhelmed his opposition to win the 38th state Assembly District seat in one of three special elections Tuesday to fill vacant Assembly posts.

McLennan, a Downey physician, won nearly 55 per cent, beating former milk industry lobbyist Frank Vicenia, who had about 41 per cent, and Peace and Freedom candidate Richard Dear, with 4 per cent.

McLennan is considered a conservative, who came out during the campaign for stiffer penalties for narcotics dealers and users, and restoration of the death penalty.

The two other special elections were primaries, one in San Diego's 80th District and the other in the 67th District in Los Angeles.

In the 80th, there will be a three-way runoff between San Diego County Supervisor William Craven, Oceanside City Councilman William Bell and Jack McCoy, the American Independent Party candidate.

Craven, a Republican, received 15,220 votes to lead all GOP rivals, while Bell led Democratic contenders with 3,980 votes in final election returns.

The runoff in the 80th District is set for June 26.

A three-way June 26 runoff also was set up in the 67th District. Democrat Tom Rupert will face Republican Paul Bannai and an American Independent Party candidate.

'Totally boring'

Kids end long, lonely experiment

DAVIS, Calif. (UPI) — Six young student volunteers emerged from 105 "totally boring" days of social isolation in two tiny, environmentally controlled rooms Tuesday in an experiment scientists said proved astronauts can adjust to long periods in space.

The project, funded by a National Aeronautics and Space Administration contract and believed one of the longest of its type conducted, also may help to explain why time lag affects jet travelers.

The six young men, all University of California at Davis students, expressed desires ranging from alcoholic beverages to watermelon after walking from the small rooms at the UCD bioastronautics laboratory. They received $1,200 and 12 units of credit for their participation in the experiment, which they called "totally boring."

The social isolation experiment reveals "people can tolerate this type of isolated environment for long periods and keep themselves together psychologically," said Dr. Donald Rockwell, psychiatrist director of the project.

Astronauts should be able to cope easily with long durations in space, Rockwell added.

Richard Giron, 20, the first volunteer to emerge from the two 11-foot by 17-foot rooms, said he agreed with Rockwell's findings on astronauts but added, "It would be much more interesting to be an astronaut than to be in isolation like I was."

The six students were kept in two separate rooms in groups of three. Three other students were involved but served as a control group and did not undergo the social isolation.

Lighting was controlled artificially in the experiment. Sometimes the rooms would be lighted continuously at dim levels. At other times they would be put on eight-hour cycles different than the outside world.

Rockwell said the students were as much as 12 hours off when guessing the real time of day.

When the day-night cycles were changed abruptly, Rockwell said, there was a "significant impact" on the disposition of the students, comparable to those experienced by jet travelers.

"For four or five days afterward they would be unusually hostile," he said. "They would be depressed, irritable and more hostile."

"It would have the same effect on jet travelers who fly often or on long flights, making them significantly out of kilter. This would have a particular affect on politicians, contract negotiators, jet pilots and other veteran jet travelers."

Soap firm washes out 'wholesome' sex star

NEW YORK (UPI) — Honey blonde sex star Marilyn Chambers hugged a large box of Ivory Snow to her bosom, described herself as a "clean-cut, all-American, wholesome girl," and said her contract to peddle the detergent had been renewed for 10 years.

But Procter & Gamble of Cincinnati, makers of Ivory Snow, said it was "actively moving ahead" to replace the soap boxes that carry a photograph of Miss Chambers cuddling a baby.

Miss Chambers, who performed sex acts simultaneously with four men on a trapeze in the film "Behind the Green Door," made her announcement at a news conference Tuesday. A floor-length T-shirt—and apparently nothing else—clinging to her trim body, Miss Chambers said, "Procter & Gamble just renewed my contract for another 10 years.

"The publicity in New York sold a lot of tickets to my movie—and a lot of Ivory Snow. But I don't use Ivory Snow. It smells like diapers."

Her body swayed and her light blue eyes sparkled as she said, over and over, "I'm a pretty, clean-cut, all-American, wholesome girl."

While she talked, her press agent handed around manila envelopes that showed more clearly just how wholesome Miss Chambers was.

Too wholesome for Procter & Gamble. When it first learned that the woman decorating Ivory Snow boxes also decorated "Green Door," Procter & Gamble refused to comment.

A spokesman for the firm refused, also, to comment directly on Miss Chambers' statement that her contract had been renewed. He said, however, that the firm was trying to get her Ivory Snow boxes off store shelves and replace them with another set.

That, the spokesman said, would take several months.

Miss Chambers, meanwhile, said she wanted to do more serious movies. While waiting for that, however, she said she had made another film, "The Resurrection of Eve." She said it was better than "Green Door" because "it has a story line from beginning to end."

She rejected the suggestion that the title be changed to "Deep Soap."

Bill requires manufacturers to bear costs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has approved legislation which would require manufacturers to repair safety-related defects on cars, including tires, without cost to the owner.

The legislation passed by voice vote and was sent to the House.

Under current law, the Secretary of Transportation may require manufacturers to send a defect notification to the first purchaser of the car, but the manufacturer is free to charge for the repairs.

Under the Senate-passed bill, the manufacturer either would have to remedy the defect without charge or, if the fault could not be remedied, the transportation secretary could require the manufacturer to provide a refund or another car.

3 presidents injured in war

Although 21 U.S. presidents were in military service at some time in their lives, only three were wounded in battle—James Monroe, Rutherford B. Hayes and John F. Kennedy.

Development variance nixed in Claremont

CLAREMONT — The City Council has bounced back to th Architectural Commission the issue of redwod headers which the commission approved for a three-story office building at San Jose Avenue and Indian Hill Boulevard.

The council overruled the commission's approval and asked the commission to work out alternate wording.

Mayor Craig McManigal said that if the council allows redwood headers for one developer, it will have to allow them for all developers.

City Manager Keith Mulrooney cited a section in the city's Land Use and Devel opment Code which states that a six-inch high concrete curb shall be constructed at the edge of all landscaped areas.

Mulrooney said that the commission granted the variance on economic grounds, and that if the decision held up, there would seem to be no grounds, to deny any applicant a variance whenever he claims economic hardship.

Mulrooney said that experience has shown that redwood barriers simply do not hold up anywhere as well as the concrete installation.

In other matters, the council accepted the resignation of Ferdinand Fernandez from the Environmental Quality Board.

The council has set a study session June 4 to tackle the proposed 1973-74 budget.

Direct dialing to start

L.A. county offices reachable faster

Los Angeles County offices will be switched next Monday to a direct dialing system that will allow outside callers to reach any of the 39 county departments without going through a central switchboard.

Supervisor Peter F. Schabarum said seven buildings in the Los Angeles Civic Center will be affected by the new system known as Centrex, including the Hall of Administration, the County Courthouse, the Health Services Building, the Hall of Records, the Hall of Justice, the county engineers offices, and the Air Pollution Control Districts facilities.

The new phone system will permit more direct contact with the department the outside caller is attempting to reach. The changeover will eliminate 52 switchboard jobs, but according to the county supervisor, the switchboard operators are being reassigned to other positions in other offices and duties.

About 7,500 civic center stations within the system will be affected by the Centrex conversion, he said. The new telephone number of the First District supervisor, starting next Monday, will be (213) 974-4111.

Future use of liquefied gas is topic

POMONA — The role liquefied natural gas will play in relieving the energy supply shortage will be demonstrated at a meeting of the Pomona Breakfast Optimist Club Thursday at 7:30 a.m. at Aambo's in Claremont.

The presentation titled "The Flame That Came Out of the Cold" will be made by Bill Cross, senior community services representative for the Southern California Gas Co.

Cross, in a series of demonstrations, will show how natural gas is liquefied by chilling it to minus 260 degrees Fahrenheit.

He will describe how liquefied natural gas will be brought to Southern California by ocean tanker. He will show how the liquid gas is to be stored and changed back to its original state.

Mexican cultural center

La Villita project being well received

By TONY NAVARRO
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — La Villita, a proposed $10 to $12 million redevelopment project with a Mexican cultural theme, is generating "enthusiastic interest" among developers nationally, City Manager Fred Sharp said Tuesday night.

Some 40 parties have asked for more particulars on the proposal, said Sharp, and although he did not identify the parties, he identified them as "very prominent companies and developers."

Sharp gave the report at a joint meeting of the City Council and Community Redevelopment Commission held at the Castaway restaurant.

"These are expressions of interest based on our advertising and the minimum information we sent out," Sharp continued.

At another joint meeting in March, the council approved a commission recommendation to advertise nationally to find a developer for the multimillion dollar proposal by Smith and Williams, consultants for the city.

One of the parties inquiring about the proposal expressed interest in expanding the project "in terms of $30 million with apartments" beyond the boundaries of the 13-acre site tentatively selected, Sharp said.

The site is bounded by Garey Avenue, Monterey Avenue, Palomares Street and the Southern Pacific Railroad tracks.

Although the proposal has yet to be clearly spelled out, it is spoken of as a cultural-recreational-commercial-residential center with waterways and extensive landscaping. There has been talk of some of the landscaped portions being maintained through public ownership.

No action was taken at the meeting, which included discussions on a number of aspects dealing with the city's redevelopment program.

Sharp and Russell Priebe, consultant to the city on redevelopment, gave status reports on the program including the issuance and retirement of redevelopment bonds.

Charles Stillinger, commission chairman, asked that communications between his group and the Redevelopment Agency (council) be improved so that the redevelopment program run smoother.

In the past, said Stillinger, the commission has submitted recommendations on which the council has taken no action.

Specific procedures should be set up so that the redevelopment staff, commissioners and developers all know just what is expected of them, said Stillinger.

Mayor Ray J. Lepire alluded to a resolution recently passed by the council encouraging the city's commissions to be frank in their discussions and to suggest ways in which the commissions can play a more significant role in city government.

The $3.2 million hotel proposed to be built by the financially troubled Royal Inns of America "went by the board," Sharp stid.

He noted that the redevelopment agreement between the agency and Royal Inns had expired May 15 and that a senior vice president for the firm had said that perhaps at a later time if the hotel still had not been built and Royal Inns was in a better position, the Pomona project would receive high priority.

Sharp said the multi-million regional retail fashion center proposed by the Speidel and Smith Development Co. on Pomona Mall East east of Garey was being restudied in terms of something "larger than originally considered."

Sharp mentioned the possibility of tax increment bonds being sold for this project this year or next if the developers can get the commitments for tenants.

The developers, Don Smith and John Speidel, were among the 26 persons attending the meeting.

School plant meeting set for Thursday

POMONA — Two additional public presentations on alternate plans for use of Pomona Unified School District facilities will be given Thursday at 1 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. in the Education Center auditorium, 800 S. Garey Ave.

The additional meetings are scheduled so that citizens can become better informed about the needs for change in plant utilization and make recommendations to the board about meeting those needs, according to Supt. Robert Wentz.

He has suggested that two members of the board be in attendance at each of the Thursday meetings.

The brochure contains tips on how to conduct successful used-newspaper drives and lists 21 used-paper dealers in Southern California.

"Collecting this waste costs many cities more than $20 a ton and taxpayers must foot the bill," said Richard B. Scudder, Garden State Paper Co. board chairman.

"Paper drives offer an excellent alternative. They save a valuable resource and they provide funds for school equipment, books, community projects and countless other worthwhile uses."

Blind woman returned to state aid program

My daughter is blind in one eye. She can't recognize me across the room without her glasses. She went to a school for the blind in Little Rock, Ark. She started getting aid for the blind in California during 1963.

Her husband formerly operated a used-furniture store in Monrovia. When it burned down two years ago, they put their home up for sale to get their equity, approximately $6,000.

Although it took just about all of that money to pay debts, my daughter notified the state and was dropped from the aid-for-the-blind program. She was told to apply again when the money was gone.

When she did apply, her eyesight was tested and she was told that she was not eligible. She was advised to apply for aid to the totally disabled (ATD). She has taken three tests but hasn't heard whether she is eligible for this program. — S. B., La Verne.

Action Line asked the local office of the Los Angeles County Department of Public Social Services, which works with the state in administering the ATD program, to help expedite your request for aid. Your daughter has been notified that she will receive ATD beginning June 1.

Ruben Triana, fire inspector, re-checked the property next door to you at our request to confirm that it is one of 2,300 properties in the city which has been posted for clearing this year.

He explains that if the property owner fails to clean up a vacant lot so posted, the city does the work through contractors and places the cost on the property owner's tax bill.

The contractors are now at work but it will be awhile before all jobs are completed. Last year they cleared approximately 900 lots, working from May to September.

Opinion

Agnew would face most trying task

Notwithstanding President Nixon's bold assertion that he will not resign under the pressures of the Watergate scandal, it is vital to weigh what would happen if he did.

On the assumption that Vice President Spiro Agnew would not feel compromised despite his oft-renewed professions of loyalty to the President, he would be expected to succeed to the office as the Constitution provides. But he would do so under the most trying conditions ever faced by such a successor.

Agnew's most formidable task, pressing upon him with crushing immediacy, would be to assemble his own top level White House staff, put together a full Cabinet and fill at least half a hundred major agency posts already standing empty under a beleaguered President Nixon.

No vice-president succeeding to the presidency in mid-term has ever had to undertake so massive a recruitment, knowing that the alternative would be a dangerously immobile government.

It is a fair presumption there would be a few holdovers from the Nixon regime, since the conditions which might lead the President to resign would be of such magnitude as to compromise if not openly taint many of the high officials working for him.

A newly elected president always has the luxury of a November-January cushion of time in selecting the key people for his administration. Even that span can seem inadequate, as desired candidates for appointive posts hold out or refuse to serve.

Of the eight U.S. vice-presidents elevated to the presidency, only Calvin Coolidge moved into office against an impending period of high-level scandal. But the disgraceful criminal activities which occurred in President Warren Harding's regime still were six months from general disclosure.

With Interior Secretary Albert Fall of Teapot Dome fame already out of the Cabinet though not yet exposed as a taker of bribes, Coolidge's biographer, Donald R. McCoy, described the new president's Cabinet as "stable."

It contained such men of accepted integrity as Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes and Commerce Secretary Herbert Hoover (but also Attorney General Harry Daugherty, later twice indicted though never convicted of bribe-taking, perjury and other offenses).

Coolidge not only had the largely stable base as a starter, but actually relied on trusted Cabinet men for recommendations which he followed closely in making policy.

Plainly, should Agnew move up, he would have neither the newly elected president's time cushion or the advantage of a secure, in-place establishment such as the other elevated vice-presidents enjoyed.

Moreover, he would be the first compelled by the Constitution's 25th amendment to nominate a new vice-president. With majority-vote confirmation required from both House and Senate, this could mean a hard fight.

Unfair inside information

An offshoot of the complex Equity Funding scandal is the revelation to small investors of the extent to which they've been denied access to inside information on the status of companies whose stock they may hold or plan to buy—information that is admittedly supplied regularly to large investors by some Wall Street brokerage and investment banking firms.

A New York Times dispatch quotes a number of financial executives as acknowledging that federal government and Stock Exchange rules governing the use of inside information, as a protection for small investors, are frequently broken "sometimes in spirit and often in fact." One executive commented that "alleged inside information" is the "life blood" of Wall Street, which has been running on it "ever since it's been in existence."

The crux of the matter, according to the Times, is what use is made of such information gathered, for example, by members of corporate boards, or by security analysts in the nature of their work. Passing such information along to only a limited number of customers is what the regulators frown on. If, they hold, the leaked information "is likely to have a significant impact on the price of a stock or to provoke a buy-or-sell decision, it must go not only to a stock analyst's client, but to all investors across the country."

There are, of course, a great many "ethical, honest investment firms that neither encourage nor condone the use of inside information." But many who do so use it argue that the regulatory laws are unrealistic and unenforceable; and enforcement officials admit insider violations are particularly hard to prove. Some stock analysts claim that "If we didn't break the rules, we wouldn't be doing our job (which is to) find out something that nobody else knows."

Such is the dilemma. It isn't hard to figure on which side the small investor stands.

Friends say Mitchells breaking up

WASHINGTON — Women across the country have bombarded us with questions about Martha Mitchell. Is the Nixon Administration trying to "put her away" for speaking out? Will she stand by her indicted husband, ex-Attorney General John Mitchell? What is she really like?

John and Martha Mitchell began their life together rather suddenly. "John just walked in one morning and asked for a divorce," his former wife, Betty, has said. The divorce was granted in Reno on December 19, 1957. Less than a week later, John and Martha exchanged vows in Elkton, Md., a border town then known for its quickie marriages.

The bride, mother of a 10-year-old son, got her divorce three months earlier in Miami. She hired a private detective, William Poler, to snoop on her former husband. In court, the detective testified at one point that Martha "was neurotic. Excuse the expression. She was sick and all mixed up."

Her former husband, Clyde Jennings, has described her personality as volatile. "She would have a few drinks and talk down to people," he said. "She gave the headwaiters a bad time, taxi drivers, doormen, anyone who was menial. It was an insecurity problem."

Her famous late-night phone-calls got a rise out of Jennings. "It was neighborhood stuff then," he said. "Now she has a national forum."

As she has loudly complained, a security guard ripped out her phone and gave her a tranquilizer injection in the bottom in June 1972. Friends of John Mitchell say the guard was merely following instructions. Allegedly, she was close to a nervous breakdown and Mitchell wanted to keep her quiet. Those who know Martha say her thoughts are always at the tip of her tongue and she has few inhibitions.

A few days ago, we spoke to Mitchell about his irrepressible wife. He swore to us that he left public life to save their marriage and that they are now getting along happily. For her part, Martha has loudly protested her husband's innocence and has shown every sign of standing by him.

But friends of the Mitchells tell us the marriage is breaking up. "If John goes to prison," predicts one intimate, "Martha will pack her bags and clear out."

But no one really knows, from day to day, what Martha Mitchell will do next.

FBI, JR.: Antipoverty czar Howard Phillips, who has been blocked by the courts from dismantling his own agency, has turned it, meanwhile, into a miniature FBI to spy on the poor.

His chief inspector is Eric Biddle, an ex-CIA man, who has surrounded himself with former professional snoops from the FBI, CIA, Army intelligence and police security squads.

Our own spies have shown us the confidential personnel forms of seven "consultants," known irreverently inside the agency as the Magnificent Seven, who helped Biddle guide his two dozen inspectors. This small force, like the seven who oversaw them, is loaded with ex-FBI types.

Meet the Magnifident Seven:

—RAY McCANNON: He served more than 13 weeks with the CIA as an intelligence analyst, also did investigative work for the House Internal Security Committee. On his data sheet, Biddle wrote: "Investigative experience is necessary for this work. Subject has requisite investigative experience." Despite Biddle's confidence in him, McCannon proved to be such an embarrasment on his first assignment to Louisville, Ky., that his consultant job was terminated immediately upon his return to Washington. He created an incident, say our sources, over the discovery of an Angela Davis poster taped to an employe's wall. McCannon would tell us only: "I have no squawk. There was no racist incident."

—PETER SPALDING: Until last January, he was engaged in "planning, briefing and coordination of investigations with the FBI and the CIA" for Army intelligence.

—EARL MORGAN: In the early 1950s he "directed activities of employes in the fields of counterespionage, countersubversion, personnel security investigations and security and surveys and inspections." From 1965 to 1972, he worked in Army counterintelligence.

—GERALD CRAWFORD: He put in over 20 years in Army intelligence handling "security investigations, counterintelligence services and sensitive classified operations." He recently quit the government to take an investigative job in New Jersey.

—RENE FRANCAZI: He had "over 30 years experience as in investigator" for Army intelligence, retired as a full colonel in 1970. He has now left the antipoverty agency.

—THOMAS FITZPATRICK and ROBERT HILDENBRANDT: Both are ex-police supersleuths from California. Fitzpatrick was director of intelligence for the San Francisco Police Department; Hildenbrandt was Modoc county's chief deputy sheriff in charge of investigations.

Richardson shift blow to Defense

The shift of Elliot Richardson from the Pentagon after three months, necessary as that move may have been for President Nixon, has caused private agony among men in government who want to see a major re-evaluation of U.S. defense strategy.

These men are key officials in foreign and defense policy, and in arms negotiations with the Russians.

Today's defense strategy and our major defensive and offensive arms are based on conditions of the early 1960s. The concepts were logical for those times, says one close adviser to five secretaries of Defense. But now, he notes, "the Russians emphasize different weapons and a different strategy than we predicted when we planned our programs. But our concepts of strategy and weapons needs have not changed. We have the strategy and the force setup we planned in the early 1960s. It does not fit the situation in the world today."

The problems have been outlined in previous columns:

Strategic forces geared to a Soviet Union armed with large and technically sophisticated antiballistic missile systems for its major cities and industrial complexes, complete destruction of an enemy as the only response to any nuclear attack on this country, large or small, a conventional military force organized and equipped almost solely to fight very specific types of land wars (as World War II in West Europe), no concept of how or when tactical nuclear weapons can or should be used or how or when that use might escalate disastrously.

We say our objective is deterrence. But we have no sound basis to judge whether the lack of a world war recently is a result of nuclear deterrence or whether the gap is merely a normal lull between global wars. We obviously have not learned how to deter Vietnams nor an effective way of fighting such wars without disastrous political and economic cost to ourselves.

Where, then, was Richardson to have fit into this picture?

The belief was that Richardson, regarded as an astute thinker by those who know him well, would address himself to these basic concepts of defense. The worry is that Defense Secretary Designate James Schelesinger is a technician, a first-rate technician in the finest sense of the word—but technician, nevertheless. Schlesinger is expected to improve the capabilities of U.S. arms, increase efficiency and cut back on waste but he is not expected to make a great effort to alter what the men noted above think of our out-of-date defense structure.

Bank bag recovered

I do hope you'll print this in honor of at least two of your local citizens.

During Indian week (first week of May) we brought to the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds a great deal of Indian jewelry to sell for our dealer on consignment. The week went fairly well and the last night there we took time out to have a lovely dinner at the Fire House Inn.

Early the next day we drove off across the Mohave toward home. We stopped for breakfast two hours later half way across the Mohave only to find we had misplaced our bank bag full of cash, checks and turquoise.

Well, we panicked and then prayed hard. We call our motel and came up blank—then remembered we had eaten at the Fire House Inn the night before. We called there at the crack of dawn and whoever answered the phone said they hadn't heard about anything but would have the manager call us back within 10 minutes.

Within less than five minutes he called us back. A bus boy had found it the night before, intact, all cash, checks, etc. accounted for. We were and are so grateful. Most of the money was to be paid back to our dealer and we would have had to make it up around a thousand dollars. I'm very grateful to these honest people (who also serve delicious food) and want your city to know firsthand what honest and friendly people they are. —Michaelann Gray, Albuquerque, N.M.

Gossip for today

As the fellow says in the TV commercial, "Just give them time!" Or, if you prefer the more classical expression, "Time cures a multitude of ills." And to prove that statement I refer you to a recent study which shows that because of women's liberation and the unusual stress and strain that results when women decide they have to compete with men in the work world, there has been a sharp increase in female suicides.

However, if female suicides fail to halt the women's lib movement, one should never underestimate the ingenuity of the terrified chauvinistic male who will go to almost any lengths to combat female dominance. If a professor in England has his way, women's liberation is going to have tough s l e d d i n g from here on out. His theory for curing many of the world's ills, including female dominance, is to enforce the use of a newly discovered male-child-only birth pill.

INSIDE REPORT

Tax hike to show up in price of gas

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — Confidential talks between the Nixon administration and powerful congressional Democrats now point toward possible agreement soon on a five-to-ten-cents-a-gallon federal tax on gasoline designed both to brake inflation and reduce demand for scarce gasoline.

Whether this still tenuous agreement includes President Nixon is unclear. What is not unclear is that the growing pressure for raising between $5 billion and $10 billion a year in higher taxes—despite Mr. Nixon's explicit pledge not to raise taxes—now has powerful adherents in the White House (presidential consultant John B. Connally), the Congress (Rep. Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee) and the Treasury Department.

No one at Treasury is saying anything publicly, partly because Secretary of the Treasury George Shultz presumably opposes any tax hike. But the growing number of backers of an anti-inflation tax increase is now believed to embrace important Treasury officials, including Deputy Secretary William E. Simon, who is taking a more aggressive anti-inflation line than Shultz.

Also pushing a far more activist anti-inflation policy is Connally, who spent more than two hours with Shultz and Simon on the question of inflation, a possible tax hike and related economic matters two weeks ago.

Reduce demand for gas

The tax under consideration is a flat five to ten cents on each gallon of gas. In addition to sponging inflationary consumer spending, such a tax would also reduce demand for gas. With the energy squeeze now threatening a major crisis, gasoline is already drying up at some gas stations across the country and "voluntary" rationing appears probable in the heavy driving season just ahead.

Moreover, any reduction in gasoline consumption might have a favorable impact on the balance of payments, reducing the import of both crude oil and refined products.

But the primary target of top-level officials now eyeing the gas tax is not balance of payments but the imperative requirement for President Nixon to make a psychological breakthrough on the inflation front. A tax calculated to raise around $8 billion, more than enough to balance the federal budget in the year starting July 1, would be dramatic evidence abroad—and for inflation-minded American consumers—that one of the worst waves of inflation ever to wash over the American economy was at last being stemmed.

In addition to the gasoline tax, Connally and Mills, supported by the influential Dr. Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve System, are also pushing both Shultz and the White House hard to tighter anti-inflation controls.

Instead of following the lead of White House economists and interpreting the huge increase in the April consumer price index (nearly 8 per cent annually) as a victory in the anti-inflation battle because it was slightly less than the March increase, Burns, Connally and Mills were deeply disturbed by it.

Political and economical problem

The problem they face is named Shultz, and since Shultz's own future is part of that problem, it is as much political as it is economic. Shultz is wedded to a free-market economy and has never had more than minimum low regard for price controls.

Thus, if the powerful political firm of Connally-Mills & Burns, Inc., backed by some of Shultz's own Treasury aides, wins the battle for a tax hike and newly toughened anti-inflation controls, Shultz might resign. Whatever positive effect that would have on Wall Street, around the country it might be viewed as just one more sign of chaos and disorder in the Watergated Nixon administration.

But if Mr. Nixon could find time to persuade Shultz to endorse this anti-inflation tax, and a price control program with teeth, he could be certain that Mills and other Democrats truly frightened by runaway inflation would help enact it.

Mills, say intimates, has made that very clear to Mr. Nixon through private intermediaries.

Chino council reviews $3.76 million budget

By MAE TATE
P-B Staff Write

CHINO — The City Council received a budget totalling $3,766,267 as city staff presented a two-volume 1973-74 budget and overview in a special budget session Tuesday night.

The session was for the purpose of presentation and study only; the council took no official action. Another special meeting, with action expected, is scheduled for June 12 at 7:30 p.m.

"The intent is to present an overview of the budget in terms of priorities set by the staff," said City Manager Bob Fast. "This is a general, broad approach now with more detail to come with input from the council tonight."

With that input, staff will prepare additional details or alternative analyses for the June 12 meeting.

The manager presented a volume detailing the annual budget and a second volume containing a budget overview.

Fast, reading from his written presentation, stated that the budget is a "statement of city goals and objectives for the fiscal year 1973-74. While a statement covers programs for one year, it contains implementation of ongoing programs initiated in past years and does, in fact, initiate programs which would have long term effects in years to come.

"The assembly of this recommended budget was performed within an atmosphere of mixed and varying constraints and influences. Federal funding went through dramatic revisions and is even at this time in a state of flux. Senate Bill 90 has had a dramatic effect upon the manner with which city may approach the budgetary process.

"Finally, the dynamic activity and growth of the city, while greeted with enthusiasm in many quarters, must also be analyzed with caution and concern relative to the city's ability to provide the resources necessary for the provision of services," Fast read.

With a tax rate frozen by Senate Bill 90 at $1.55 per $100 asessed valuation, Fast commented that the city is holding its own.

"The expenditures for programs and services have risen approximately nine per cent (this does not include a general cost of living and related benefits allocation which has not yet been determined as of this date). Wages and salaries constitute 33 per cent of the total budget, capital outlay 28 per cent (last year's figures were respectively 34 per cent and 18½ per cent)," Fast continued reading.

The city personnel will increase 17½ persons, mainly through the absorption of Emergency Employment Act persons who have been fitted into the city's budget. With this in mind, the city staff actually only loses 1½ persons; all other new employes are former EEA personnel. The city's absorption figure is 87 per cent, compared to the original federal government estimate of 50 per cent per municipality.

"Of particular significance is the introduction of some organizational changes. . The office of public works director will be fully funded to plan and guide the significant and serious expansion needs facing the city in that area; the creation of a personnel department; the expansion of electronic data processing services to provide better control and information to management; restructuring of the recreation program and an increase in the legal support services provided by the city attorney's office.

"Physical endeavors will involve major improvements to the water system, a step forward in civic center development, modest park improvements, the first major sewer construction in some time and modest storm drain accommodations," the manager continued.

"The fire department budget is increased by a significant 23 per cent (last year's increase was 47 per cent); these are indicators of the impact on city expenditures due to strong steps being taken to upgrade the level of fire protection was well as meeting increased demands."

The fire department budget must go to the fire commission, county coordinator Ivan Hopkins and City of Chino officials before final approval. Last year the city contributed 36.7 per cent for its portion of the department that merged city and county rural fire district personnel. This year that figure would increase to 37.3 per cent.

"It is our opinion that Chief (Art) Koron and the fire commission have been doing an exemplary job in bringing the department along. I anticipate that if we were to ask the fire commission to impose further economies in this matter, it would have serious effects on the ability to respond," said Fast.

The budget overviews were divided into explanatory sections. Section "A" presents expenditures and revenues of the upcoming fiscal year; "B" breaksdown according to the revenue of the city and "gives you the direction in which the dollars will be spent"; "C" represents a prediction for revenue sources; "D" sets forth "various activities and their changes since the 1972-73 budget as proposed by staff"; and "E" tabulates the entire manpower situation.

Chicken fat gives drivers a bad turn

UPLAND — An Upland city street crew faced a slippery problem Monday—how to clean up 55 gallons of slick, gooey chicken fat spilled along the 700 block of E. Ninth Street.

Police began receiving reports about the hazard about 10:30 a.m. when cars happening upon the slippery substance began sliding. City crews were dispatched to clean up the mess.

Police said that it appeared as though a truck carrying a drum of chicken fat from the Old Rancers Cannery hit a bump in the road. The drum fell, unknown to the driver, and spilled along the road and into the gutter.

City crews decided to detour traffic for a time until they could pour an oil-drying compound and sand on the pavement. Crews were out Tuesday to clean up the remainder of the chicken fat that hardened over night.

Death for Castro urged, says Hunt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Watergate conspirator and former CIA agent E. Howard Hunt, who helped plot the 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba, says he recommended to CIA superiors that Fidel Castro be assassinated as part of the scheme. His proposal was never approved.

Hunt makes the disclosure in a forthcoming book in which he describes his role and that of the Kennedy administration in the ill fated invasion by several hundred Cuban exiles who were organized and trained by the United States to overthrow Castro's regime.

A copy of the printer's galleys for the book, to be published in November by Arlington House, was obtained by UPI.

In it, Hunt charges that Kennedy tried to "whitewash the New Fronter" when the invasion failed by "heaping guilt on the CIA."

Kennedy accepted responsibility for the Bay of Pigs fiasco at the time but much of the blame for its initiative and implementation was placed on the CIA by others.

Hunt said he proposed assassinating the Cuban leader because he believed that "without Castro to inspire them the rebel army and militia would collapse in leaderless confusion."

Hunt said his proposal was to "assassinate Castro before or co-incident with the invasion." He added that the role of carrying out the killing was "a task for Cuban patriots."

He said he was told by Richard Bissell, chief of the Central Intelligence Agency's Clandestine Services, that his plan was being considered by a "special group" within the government.

But Hunt said: "So far as I have been able to determine no coherent plan was ever developed within CIA to assassinate Castro, though it was the heart's desire of many exile groups."

Hunt's part in the invasion plan included organizing Cuban exiles in Florida and coordinating their activities with the invasion forces being trained by U.S. Air Force and Army specialists which included the Army's Special Forces unit.

He said plans had called for a Cuban Exile Executive Committee with Hunt at their side to enter Cuba after the invasion, declare themselves a "government-in-arms" and call for military aide.

Ships nearby

Under the plan, the United States was prepared to immediately recognize the exiles and provide "whatever might be necessary to overthrow Castro," Hunt said. "American ships would be standing near Cuban waters so help wouldn't be unnecessarily delayed."

On Saturday, April 15, Hunt recalled, he and a group of CIA officials and military officers studied cables in the Pentagon's War Room which reported that "rebel" B26 planes had bombed and strafed Cuba's three main airfields in preparation for the invasion.

On the following day, Hunt said an examination of U2 photographs of the raids showed the rebel pilots "had claimed more destruction than actually occurred" and a "cleanup strike" was ordered just as CIA Deputy Director Charles Cabell entered the room.

Cabell, who was acting director while Dulles was on a speaking engagement, said he understood that only one strike was authorized.

Hunt said the air operations officer, whom he identified only as "Colonel George," argued that the authorization was "to knock out the Cuban Air Force. There was no restriction on the number of strikes," Cabell was told.

But Cabell insisted "to be on the safe side, I'm going to ask (Secretary of State Dean) Rusk about it. Cancel that strike order ... until I can get someone to approve it."

Hunt said he was told by Bissell that at a hurriedly-called meeting later that day attended by Kennedy, Walt Rostown, his Policy Planning council chairman, Rusk, U.N. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, and special counsel Arthur Schlesinger, among others, Kennedy decided there would be no second strike.

Invasion goes on

Bissell said, however, that Kennedy agreed to allow the invasion to go ahead as scheduled on the following day.

But Castro's remaining fighters, Hunt said, easily knocked out the rebel planes as well as most of the invasion's landing ships.

Destroying Castro's planes was "basic to the success of the entire invasion," Hunt said.

A final decision by Kennedy, according to Hunt, to send fighter planes from the U.S. carrier Boxer to provide cover for the last rebel forces coming ashore was made too late. Hunt said the Boxer was the flagship of a naval task force, which included Marine landing forces, that was stationed in the waters off Puerto Rico.

"By some incalculable mischance the timing had been fouled up," he said. "By then we had run out of time, aircraft and men. The invasion was over."

Entitled "Give Us This Day," Hunt's book described a meeting he attended in Schlesinger's White House office to discuss the administration's white paper on Cuba with Bissell's assistant Tracy Barnes.

"Barnes and Schlerea for the offensive," Hunt said.

Hunt also said that Stevenson, who was later to allege being kept in the dark about the invasion, had been briefed by Barnes "well prior to invasion date."

Moreover, the Joint Chiefs of Staff—who later maintained they had no opportunity to determine the military preparedness of the invasion forces —had sent "an assessment team" to the Guatemalan camps and had "cabled back an enthusiastic appraisal of the (Cuban) Brigade and Air Force as well-trained and battle-ready," Hunt said.

Three persons who are involved in the Watergate affair appear in the book.

Hunt recalled a luncheon he had in mid-1969 with Brig. Gen. Robert E. Cushman, then a military adviser to Vice President Nixon.

"Cushman told me that the vice president was the (invasion) project's action officer within the White House and that Nixon wanted nothing to go wrong."

Cushman, now Marine Corps commandant and member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, allegedly authorized the CIA to help Hunt in preparation for burglarizing the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

One of Hunt's closest assistants among the Cuban exiles in Florida was Bernard L. Barker, a Cuban-American who was convicted with Hunt for the Watergate break-in.

"I welcomed his assistance and over the months found him eager, efficient and completely dedicated," Hunt said of Barker.

Another Watergate conspirator, Frank Sturgis, who then went by the name of Frank Fiorini, piloted planes over Havana to drop anti-Castro propaganda leaflets, Hunt said.

Hunt said he wrote the book in 1967 and intended it as "a private legacy to my children."

But due to the Watergate publicity and disclosure of his CIA background, Hunt said he decided publication would serve to correct "distorted accounts of my involvement in the Bay of Pigs invasion."

In the past, Hunt has written several fiction spy stories under differing names.

Poker, baseball similar, says a big loser

HOUSTON (UPI) — A big time poker player is like a major league baseball team, expounds one Amarillo Slim. On any given day ...

"You got to realize that among the players I compete with, there's not more than 3 to 5 per cent difference in ability," the dethroned world's champion poker player said Wednesday. "On a given day any one of them will knock you out of the box."

Slim, who surrendered his world title earlier this month to W. C. "Pug" Pearson of Nashville, Tenn., said he frequently gets challenges from the average American poker player but "None of those challengers step out and put their money where their mouth is."

X-rated film at the zoo

Sex and single chimp smash at box office

CHESSINGTON, England (UPI) — The Chessington zoo has come up with a new way of increasing its chimpanzee population—show some mildly blue chimp sex films.

And if that doesn't work, a spokesman said, the zoo may show the chimps some of the hard core stuff.

Zoo officials said Monday that they showed chimpanzees at the zoo a British Broadcasting Corp. (BBC) television documentary showing other chimps kissing and cuddling.

Most of the Chessington chimps loved it and copied every move, a zoo spokesman said. Especially an 8-year-old female named Cressida who the spokesman said was "turned on."

"We hope to hear the patter of tiny chimpanzee feet here soon, and all thanks to the film," said spokesman Andy Bowen.

"We tried it in three cages in the ape house," he said. "The orangutans were only interested in the projector. The gorillas became aggressive but Cressida was just overcome with passion."

Cressida particularly swooned over the chimp male star of the film.

"He's the equivalent of Rudolph Valentino for her," Bowen said. "There was a male chimp in the cage with Cressida, but so far he has not reacted.

"We are planning some replays of the film in the next two weeks," Bowen said. "Then we hope to show more explicit sex films to them."

Italy, Japan, Australia join U.S. in sharpest inflationary boosts

PARIS (UPI) — Italy, Japan, Australia and the United States suffered the sharpest boosts in inflation in March among developed non-communist countries, a survey showed Tuesday.

The Organization of Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) released its monthly survey of inflation among its 23 member countries which include capitalist Europe plus North America, Japan and Australia.

The OECD survey showed Italy's annual inflation increase rate jumped from 8.1 per cent in February to 9.6 per cent in March, scoring the biggest inflation leap of any OECD member.

Japan's inflation increase rate for the 12 months ending March 31 was 8.4 per cent compared with 6.7 per cent in February. Australia's moved from 4.6 in February to 5.7 in March. The United States February inflation rate of 3.9 soured to 4.7 in March.

The United States, however, still held honors for the lowest inflation rate among OECD members, with Australia second lowest.

Inflation continued to plague the world with 15 of the 23 surveyed countries registering increases in their annual inflation rate. Only Austria, Finland, Portugal, Spain, and Sweden managed decreases. The rate remained the same from February to March in Iceland, Ireland and Turkey.

The highest inflation rates for March were recorded as usual by the lesser developed OECD countries, Iceland with 16.6 per cent, Turkey 11, Ireland 10.

Italy was close behind with 9.6 per cent compared with 8.1 in February.

Runners-up on the inflation list for March were Finland 9.4 per cent (compared with 9.5 per cent in February), Portugal 9.1 (9.6), Japan 8.4 (6.7), Britain, Switzerland Spain, all with 8.2 (7.9, 7.6, 8.3), Greece, 7.9 (6.5), Norway 7.8 (7.5), Austria and Denmark 7.7 (8, 7.1), Netherlands 7.4 (7.2), Belgium 7 6.9), Germany 6.9 (6.8), France 6.4 (6.3), Sweden 6.1 (6.2), Luxembourg 6.1 (5.9), Canada 6 (.8), Australia 5.7 (4.6), United States 4.7 (3.9).

For the survey, OECD members gather data on all goods and services including food, rent, house repairs, drink, tobacco, restaurant meals and other items. The countries record prices on from 200 to 900 items consumed by urban families and, in some countries, by single persons.

The inflation rate does not correspond to prices. The highest inflation is recorded in countries starting with low prices. For example, France has one of the lowest inflation rates yet, according to United Natinos figures, has the highest prices in the developed world after Tokyo.

Latins 'not forgotten'

U.S. officials label Rogers' trip success

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Secretary of State William P. Rogers' eight-nation tour of Latin America has thrown into sharp relief not only the highs and lows of U.S. relations south of the border but also the contradictions among the nations of Latin America.

The Rogers trip has been a low-key operation designed to assure Latin Americans that they have not been forgotten in the midst of other crises including Vietnam, the dollar problems and the question of peace in the Middle East.

Just as important, the Rogers assignment has been to break trail for a similar trip by President Nixon later in the year.

Prominently omitted from the Secretary of State's schedule were Panama and Chile.

In Panama, the United States is involved in a controversy over the future of the Panama Canal.

In Chile, the question is one of how to deal with the first freely elected Marxist government in the American hemisphere and its rush toward nationalization including seizure of millions of dollars worth of U.S.-owned poperty.

Both nations are examples of a growing sense of nationalism throughout Latin America.

High up in their importance on the Rogers tour were Colombia and Brazil.

Colombia is one of the few South American nations still adhering to the principle of a freely elected government.

Brazil is in its 10th year of a government which maintains a facade of democratic rule but which is in fact a military dictatorship.

They are especially noteworthy because, under opposing political concepts, they are challenging each other for the most impressive gains to be found in South America.

For example:

Brazil's population is about 100 million, Colombia's around 23 million.

Colombia's 1973 exports are expected to reach about $1 billion, an increase of about 25 per cent over last year.

Brazilian exports are expected to jump from just under $3 billion to about $3.5 billion this year.

Colombia's gross national product is expected to rise $1 billion to $8 billion for the year, Brazil's to rise $4 billion to $44 billion.

In Latin America, U.S. policy has run the extremes between the gunboat diplomacy of the days of Teddy Roosevelt and establishment of the Panama Canal to the Good neighborhood policy of Franklin D. Roosevelt and the Alliance of Progress initiated by John F. Kennedy.

Rogers' task has been to convince Latin Americans not only of U. S. interest but a to assure them the United States is on a new tack what President Nixon has described as a "mature partnership."

In Mexico City, Rogers described it this way:

"We do not favor the policy of paternalism. We favor the concept of equality."

Ship sets mark on maiden trip

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The S.S. President Madison on its maiden voyagle set a record for aPacific crossing by a cargo ship, knocking 1 hour, 31 minutes off the old record, American President Lines said.

The ship, on the inbound leg of a voyage, reached Los Angeles seven days, 12 hours and 42 minutes after leaving Yokohama, Japan, a spokesman for the line said.

The previous record of seven days, 14 hours, 13 minutes was set in 1971 by the Japanese ship Kamakura Maru, he said.

The doctor comments

Cream substitutes compared for fats

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I read your columns regulary and find them very interesting and informative. There are two food items in which I am very interested: the dry cream substitutes used for coffee creams, and pure virgin olive oil, extracted from olives, used for salads. I would like to know the cholesterol and saturated fat content in each in comparison to using half and half coffee cream and corn oil for salads.

Dear Reader—Most of the coffee whiteners or dry powder cream substitutes contain coconut oil. This has no cholesterol but it is very high in saturated fat. Ordinary half and half cream has less saturated fat than most artificial powder coffee whiteners. Incidentally, there are some liquid polyunsaturated cream substitutes available in some regions of the country but not everywhere.

I have tabulated the caloric value and the per cent of the different types of fat and cholesterol content in all of the common foods in my book "What You Need to Know About Food and Cooking for Health" (published by the Viking Press, 625 Madison Avenue, New York, New York 10022, Price $10).

Olive oil comes from a vegetable source and contains no cholesterol at all. Eleven per cent of its fat content is saturated fat and seven per cent polyunsaturated fat. The rest is a monosaturated fat. Corn oil is 53 per cent polyunsaturated fat and only 10 per cent saturated fat. It has no cholesterol.

Nixon policies, politics flayed

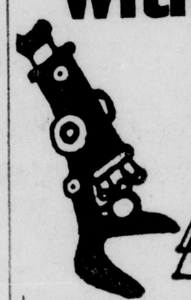

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. Tuesday charged President Nixon with leading the nation to the brink of an economic crisis with "reactionary" fiscal policies and "cloak-and-dagger" politics.

"The administration's outmoded, reactionary economic policies have resulted in the current inflationary spiral." Brown told a convention of the California Pipe Trades Council.

"In addition, the cloak-and-dagger politics of the Watergate scandal have greatly undermined confidence in our government abroad, adding to inflation through the actions of international investors," he declared.

Brown, an active Democratic contender for the 1974 governor's race, described the U.S. economy as "out of control" and on "the brink of crisis."

SOMETHING WRONG HERE — There is a touch of irony in the scene of another victim of the gasoline shortage, this time the driver of a "gas for sale—no limit" pickup truck filling up the truck's own tank with gas on an Omaha street. The sign or something was wrong.

Distracted teen pilot takes swim

PESCADERO, Calif. (UPI) — Pilot James Dizanica looked over to see what his teen-age pal was doing, and the next thing he knew their light plane was in the water.

Dizanica, 18, Menlo Park, Calif., and passenger Bill Carrel, 18, Woodside, Calif., suffered only minor injuries when the plane flipped into the ocean about 100 feet off Bean Hollow State Beach. They swam to shore.

The pilot said he was flying the single-engine craft about 300 feet above the water when he was momentarily distracted by Carrel and found the plane in the water.

"We must have hit a downdraft," he said. "I smashed my jaw and Bill hit the windshield. Bill was out."

Accused Armenian slayer trial fairness doubted

SANTA BARBARA, Calif (UPI) — The trial of an Armenian immigrant accused of assassinating two Turkish diplomats began Tuesday amid voiced concern by an Armenian support group that the defendant lacks adequate legal counsel.

A panel of 51 prospective jurors was drawn up in the first day of jury selection for 77-year-old Gourgen Yanikian who is charged with slaying Mehmen Baydar, 49, Turkish consul-general in Los Angeles, and the vice consul-general, Bahadir Demir, 30, last Jan. 27 at a Santa Barbara hotel.

Dr. Aram Tolegian of Los Angeles, Chairman of American Friends of Armenian Martyrs, said his group was worried about legal counsel for Yaikian since the withdrawal of prominent Texas attorney Percy Foreman from the three-man defense team.

Foreman has been hospitalized, and Yanikian's defense will be handled by attorneys James T. Lindsey of Santa Barbara and Armenian-American Vasken Minasian of Beverly Hills.

"Because Yanikian is a victim of genocide the committee now feels that without adequate counsel, it will be impossible to unfold the motivations of the accused and the tragic story of the Armenian genocide," Tolegian said at a news conference held before the trial.

Yanikian, the author of five books on religious and mystical topics, came to this country after World War II. He said 26 members of his family were killed by Russians and Turks in the first half of the century.

Aram Saroyan, a Santa Barbara author and uncle of writer William Saroyan, was appointed interpreter for Yanikian who speaks a special Armenian dialect and Russian, but no English.

The trial is being conducted under heavy security and metal detectors were used to screen all persons entering the courtroom.

Indians' long hair trimmed in decision

DENVER (UPI) — The U.S. 10th Circuit Court of Appeals recognized Tuesday Indians may want to wear their hair in long braids for religious reasons but ruled such displays of pride in their heritage is not protected by the Constitution.

The court denied an appeal by three Oklahoma Pawnee Indians who claimed a school dress code that prohibited long hair violated their right to freedom of religion.

The appeal was filed by three seventh grade students in the Pawnee Junior High School who were suspended April 24, 1972, for refusing to cut their hair.

U.S. lumber exports to fall, cutting rise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U. S. government, faced with rising lumber costs due to shortages, announced Tuesday two steps to be taken to increase the supply.

An agreement has been reached with the Japanese, who will reduce their U.S. lumber purchases by 8 per cent in the fiscal year beginning July 1, the Cost of Living Council said.

In a joint announcement with the Agriculture Department, the council also said the U.S. Forest Service will be allowed to increase its sales of timber from the forests by about 10 per cent this calendar year and next.

The amount which will be sold from national forests will be raised from 10.85 billion to 11.8 billion board feet. The annual allowable cut is 13 billion board feet.

John R. McGuire, Forest Service chief, said other changes would be made in the service's sales process, including hiring 450 additional personnel and changing the contract procedure to give prospective purchasers economic incentives.

The timber sale in the last fiscal year netted the federal government $330 million, a service spokesman said. The dollar affect of Tuesday's changes had not been estimated.

U. S. and Japanese officials held negotiations recently under pressure from criticism that while lumber was in short supply in the United States, U.S. firms were selling shiploads to Japan.

Under the agreement, Japan will reduce its purchases by 8 per cent from fiscal year 1972. The Cost of Living Council said that would amount to a 15 per cent reduction in Japanese imports of U.S. lumber during the last half of the 1973 calendar year, compared with the same period last year.

Reagan seeks support for tax ceiling

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — With the deadline nearing for his tax limitation signature drive, Gov. Ronald Reagan told an ethnic minority workshop Tuesday that taxes hurt everyone and there is "no one really avoiding their share of the burden."

Pitching hard at the third annual Governor's Minority Workshop for enactment of his state revenue control and tax limitation plan, Reagan declared, "I believe that California can take a lead in this as we've taken in so many other things."

"There is no division among our people on taxes. They hurt everyone, from the top to the bottom. There is no one really avoiding their share of the burden and they (taxes) are more than they should be."

Reagan, who paid no state taxes on his 1970 income, noted that the June 7 deadline for returning petitions to qualify his proposed initiative for a November election was only 10 days away.

"We're afraid that as we get down to June 7 that we may suddenly find ourselves flooded with hundreds of thousands of petitions and that would give us a great 'round the clock job," he said.

Fancy jet tricks spur zoo suit

HUCKNALL, England (UPI) — The Sherwood zoo wants $2,000 for deaths, injuries and damage it said a U.S. Navy aerial stunt team caused.

As the result of a low flying, screaming-jet performance last weekend by the Blue Angels team and the six F111 Phantom jets they used, the zoo said:

—A female puma ate two of her cubs and still refuses to feed a third.

—A rare Formosan sika deer ran headlong into a fence and died.

—Two bison broke out of their paddock and flamingos, lions and barbary sheep raced around in panic, injuring themselves and damaging zoo fencing.

"The animals went completely mad," curator Stella Lacey said Tuesday.

The zoo is seeking the money from the Royal Air Force Association, which sponsored the Blue Angels show.

Minority employment by state is increased

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state personnel Board reports that nearly half of the new employes hired by the state in the past 17 months were from minority races, bringing the total minority portion of California's 120,000 workers to 16.8 per cent.

By comparison, minorities comprise 26.5 of the state's population, said the board's Ethnic Census, released to the governor and legislature Tuesday.

The report also said that average salaries for minority workers were below those of other workers.

The number of minority employes increased by almost 1,700 during the 17-month period, the report said, representing 48.2 per cent of the total increase in state employes.

It said the number of black workers went up 564, Mexican-Americans by 803, Asian by 270 and other minorities by 35.

"The data indicate state government's continuing progress in providing fair and equal employment opportunities for all citizens within the merit principles established by the state constitution," said Richard L. Camilli, head of the board.

He said the difference between minority and other salaries "was at least partially due to affirmative hiring efforts which resulted in the hiring of significant numbers of minority workers in entry level positions.

"Even though substantial numbers of minorities will be promoting up their career ladders, we can probably expect some salary disparity to continue as a result of our affirmative entry level hiring efforts," Camilli said.

"The census results demonstrate the gains we have made and we will continue to make every effort to assure equal employment opportunities in the California Civic Service," he added.

The report said the biggest gains in minority hiring were in the subprofessional or technical and administrative fields.

Survival problem

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband and I are in our mid-30s and our marriage is running into great trouble. This is not especially because of outside sexual interests, but more because we can't seem to get ourselves together. This frightens me because I came from a broken home myself and my husband grew up in foster homes. We've both been breaking our backs trying to succeed in our careers and suddenly we're both worn out. We don't have much time for sex or love. — N. N.

Dear N. N.: Being aware that you and your husband are going through a problem period is winning half the battle. People don't talk much about the special anxieties of the middle years but this is often a very traumatic time.

Dr. Kenn Rogers, psychologist, of Cleveland State University believes this period is more difficult than almost any other period of life including infancy, childhood, adolescence and old age. This, he says, is when marriages are most apt to break up, where careers are derailed and accidents are most apt to occur. It is a time of self-questioning and examination.

I believe this is espcially true in a society that places so much emphasis on competition and success. This excessive drive toward going further and further up the ladder often causes impotence in men and frigidity in women. You and your husband might enjoy each other and your lives much more if you could take a little time out from the race for success, relax, and try to enjoy the moment.

Dr. Rogers believes that people in their mid-30s divide themselves into two broad categories: those who flee from anxiety and escape into self, alcohol, or watching television. They may go into periods of self-pity and resignation, comforting themselves by contemplating such things as pension rights or bank accounts.

The second group, he says, are able to face death and give up infantile standards of perfection. They come to grips with their problems, they recognize that they probably will not become president and that they are not married to the world's most beautiful or exciting human being. They are able to handle this in an adult way and it does not break up their life or their marriage.

You and your husband started out facing odds because of your backgrounds, but you may have learned better than most how to cope with adult problems. The fact that you came from a broken home and that your husband grew up in foster homes does not in itself doom your marriage to failure. If you can analyze your own problems and see your parents with their own problems as separate from you, you may have more insight into the complexities of life than individuals from the so-called happy home.

One of the most important things to remember when trying to revive a fading marriage is that both partners can learn from talking honestly with each other and expressing their fears and anxieties. As long as you and your husband are able to share your problems, the chances are you'll be able to solve them.

Woman Achiever awards

Nominations are now open

The Progress-Bulletin will repeat its Woman Achiever awards program this summer as part of the Women's Department special club edition to be published July 24.

The awards program was originated in 1966 when Pomona Valley residents had an opportunity to nominate outstanding women for service to their community.

This year four women will be named in the special edition and tribute will be paid them for their contributions of time and service to their community at a luncheon later.

The nomination blanks must be returned to the Women's Department of the newspaper not later than June 6.

Fact sheets for club inclusion in the annual Pomona Valley Women edition have also been sent to the president or publicity chairman of every club listed with the Women's Department. Deadline for return of the club forms is June 25.

Additional Woman Achiever forms for nominating persons may be obtained at the cahier's desk at the Progress-Bulletin.

Tatting rare

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: I am 70 years old, and with this revival of handcrafts I would like to speak up for tatting. Nobody seems to do it any more, but it has been a nerve-calmer for me all these years (I began when I was a small child). I turn out miles of it and only occasionally think to turn it into trimmings for cocktail napkins, doilies and such. It is such fun to do, I think somebody should revive the art before it is lost.—Mrs. J.J., El Paso, Texas."

According to Collector's Weekly, in its issue of 12-12-72, tatting is virtually a lost art. But you will be interested to know that because it was so neglected it is now really a collector's item. At a recent estate sale, Collector's Weekly says, a small damask tablecloth and four napkins trimmed in narrow tatted lace sold for $17.50.

Fifty years ago, they say, little girls' white collars were decorated with floral designs of dainty tatted lace edging. "Occasionally, someone would tat a complete tablecloth, but tatted medallions stitched in the corners of fine linen tablecloths were used most often. The majority of tatting was made into lace, doilies and small decorations."

Tatting goes way back into history. In France it was called "frivolite," in Italy "occhi" and in Oriental countries "makouk." It is a cross between crochet and macrame.

I am sure if you want to get a little group together you could start your own tatting circle and revive this charming lost art.

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: I had many years of contact with pole-line insulators—manufacturers, telephone companies, railroads, Army Signal Corps and Military Railway Service—so I was interested to note your column regarding the fact that people are interested in two volumes on the subject, called "A Guide for Insulator Collectors — With Prices," by John C. Tibbits (The Little Glass Shack, Sacramento). — M. P., King of Prussia, Pa."

The first two volumes you mention have now been augmented by a third. The three volumes are $3 each, plus 25 cents postage (California purchasers add sales tax). They should be ordered from The Little Glass Shack, Dept. A, 3161 56th St., Sacramento, Calif. 95802. Be sure to include your own ZIP number.

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: Here is another vote for the tradtional Miss and Mrs. rather than Ms.

"And I very much dislike the new abbreviations for our states! I have to stop and concentrate to figure out where mail is from. I still write out the full name of the state. The new abbreviations take away all the beauty and appreciation I've always had for the names of our states. — Mrs. M. S., El Paso, Texas."

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: The use of the title Miss indicates that a woman is using the surname of her father. When she is married and uses the surname of her husband she is Mrs. A man uses his father's name all his life so doesn't change his title. To me, it's as simple as that. — M. S., Anaheim, Calif."

ELEPHANT PATROL — Hannibal had no better transportation than the elephant patrol on duty in Ban Me Thuto, South Vietnam.

Erma Bombeck

By Erma Bombeck

It probably comes as a surprise to no one, but girls start early to outspend boys . . a lead which they manage to maintain until death, or an ugly credit manager . . whichever comes first.

This difference among men and women has probably accounted for more domestic scenes than any other phase of marriage. Actually, spending is a genetic trait.

In every female is an exocrine gland called "Spend, Baby, Spend." It is located in the palm of the hand which is why girl babies are born with the left hand cramped in a credit card position. (Males are born with closed fists.)

Whenever a woman views signs reading: "SALE. END OF THE MONTH CLEARANCE, GOING OUT OF BUSINESS, LIQUIDATING. ONE-HALF OFF. NO PAYMENTS UNTIL AFTER CHRISTMAS", the other glands swing into action. Saliva begins to form in her mouth, the palms of her hands begin to perspire, tears of excitement form in her eyes, and the pituitary gland says, "Go Mama."

In the male, it is quite a different story. He has a gland which follows a muscle from his right arm down to the base of his billfold pocket. It is called "cheap." When a decision of money is to be made the muscle stiffens, the right hand becomes numb and he is unable to pull the billfold out of the pocket.

These genetic differences can best be explained by our recent experience in buying a freezer.

We discussed at great length at home how a freezer would save us money. We decided between us that the budget could stand the cost of a freezer. We saw an ad in the paper listing exactly the one we wanted at exactly the price we could pay. We took the checkbook from the desk and announced to the children, "We are going to buy a freezer tonight."

At the store, the salesman approached my husband and asked, "May I help you?"

"We're just looking," said my husband and wandered into air conditioners.

I grabbed his arm, "Whatya mean we're just looking! We're going to buy a freezer!"

"Tonight?" he asked in surprise.

"We decided it was a necessity."

"You said that when you got the dog's teeth capped."

The salesman returned. My reflexes instinctively opened my handbag, thrust it at the salesman and said, "Take what you need."

My husband shook his head muttering, "I wonder if there's a hormone you can take for poverty."

THURSDAY, MAY 31

Your birthday today: Subtle tinges of glamor add to your appearance and deeds this year. You have much to do, acquire greater resources for spiritual evolvement. Relationships tend to simple intensity. Today's natives show mind prevailing over matter.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Getting to the top of any group involves diplomacy. Appearances cloak mysteries better left undisturbed.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): A temporary spurt in financial affairs can work wonders. Restless moods focus on strange contacts.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): More mysteries are created than are solved. Letting well enough alone becomes difficult, tho important. Time out for prayer.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Theory falters as you do the natural things to advance yourself. Friends offer useful suggestions. Loved ones have a different view. Wait, then express feelings.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Be clear and simple in saying what you want so there's no mistake. Authority generally endorses you.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The line between your own life and that of others wavers a bit. Leave your work behind you at quitting time.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your energy and appetites rise together. Distant people and places assume an unreal glamor. Concentrate on reliability.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You'll find yourself on the move upward sooner than expected. Put an extra drive in all you do.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): No great thrill is promised. Test whatever you are to buy before you close any deal or postpone large purchases. Patience is a virtue.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Speculation is out of bounds today. You're apt to forget something unless you make careful plans. Evening is good for music or reading.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Short-term situations catch you unprepared. Opt for the long-term gain even too frustrated now. Friends are not the best advisors.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Complex and subtle switches of conviction and opinion prevail. Haste is out of season today.

Conscience hurts

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — In 1928, while working in the sports office of the Recreation and Parks Department, an employe borrowed some track equipment—a bamboo vaulting pole and a 12-pound shot.

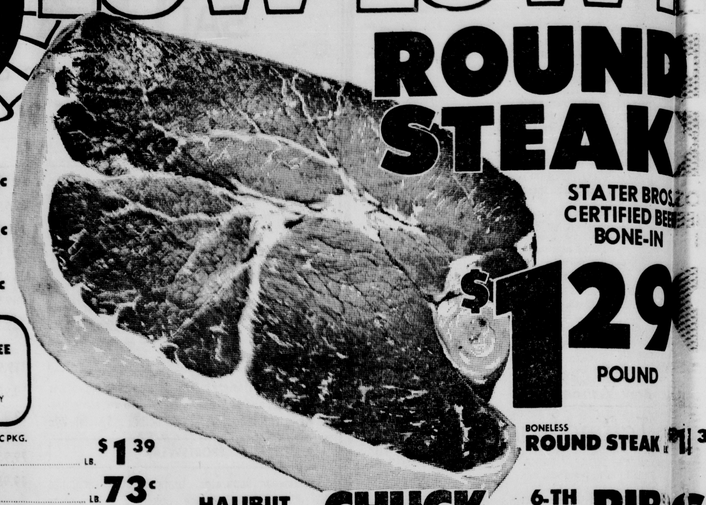

Last week, he sent the department a letter and a $20 check. "My conscience has been bothering me," the letter said. "Enclosed is a check of $20 to cover it."

Science for You

By BOB BROWN

PROBLEM: Osmosis.
NEEDED: Salt, water, raisins or prunes, two glasses.
DO THIS: Put water into two glasses. Put salt in one—as much as will dissolve. Drop dried fruit into each glass. The fruit in the plain water will swell; that in the salt water will remain shriveled.
HERE'S WHY: According to the laws of osmosis, a liquid will pass through cell walls, most of it moving from the less concentrated solution to that in which more substances are dissolved. The fruit is, of course, made up of cells. Normal tap water flows through the cell walls into the cells where the liquid is more dense. Very little salt water, which is dense, will flow through.

Ruinous reunions

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

As the years roll by, one notices (I'm told) that they are using smaller print in newspapers and telephone books, that stairs are getting steeper, and even one's shoelaces seem farther away than they used to.

Nothing, however, brings home the impact of Time's relentless march more alarmingly than the announcement of your 25th college reunion. That time of year thou may'st behold, perhaps, in yourself and your fellow classmates, when the fateful hour has struck.

Has it been 25 years, you wonder? Where have they gone? What have you been doing for the past 25 years? Sure, you got married, started out in business, had a few kids—come to think of it, a lot of those kids are in college now. But . . . 25 years?!

Funny thing, you feel just the same as you did way back when you toted the old pigskin for Pumpernickel Tech. Little thicker around the waist, maybe, and not as much hair as you had then, but you bet you could still crack through on the old R-22 off-tackle play for the Lemurs if you had to.

So back you go this month to your 25th reunion to see how badly Time has treated your classmates.

This is at once hilarious and depressing. The big tousled mop of blond hair Charlie Dean used to have—he's bald as a doorknob. Where does he get off calling you "Baldy"?

And old Jonesy who used to be thin as a lath—look at him, now. Belly like a beer keg. Couldn't touch his toes on a bet. And who's he calling "Fatso"?

Everyone has changed. Butch Marakowski, that giant fullback—he must have shrunk, or something. And there's good old Red Masters with a shock of iron-grey hair. And everyone, including you, is wearing glasses now. Welladay.

Even more sobering than the havoc wreaked on your classmates is the disheartening erosion of their wives, those beautiful lasses who beguiled your spring afternoons in college and kept you from making Dean's List.

Look at little Bootsie Drake, the funny sexy cutup of yore: staid and grey Mrs. R. Charles Dean, president of the Upper Ipswich League of Women Voters.

And there's Linda Barrington, the campus vamp, remember? Wow! When Linda took a deep breath, boys became men. Here she is now in dowdy middleage, tugging at her girdle and talking about the junior high school PTA.

That beefy gal in the bifocals? That's Marilyn Towers—she was queen of junior prom, remember? They're still talking about that dress she wore. And—be still, heart—there's your old flame, the demure and lovely Janie Blair, now mother of six, stylish stout . . sob.

A college reunion at this stage is as much fun as reading the actuarial tables. All in all, you'd be well-advised to skip it.

I went back to my reunion last week, and you know what? My classmates had gotten so old they didn't recognize me!

Operation ok, but hand died

By Oswald & James Jacoby

West cashed his ace and king of hearts and continued with a low card in the suit. East ruffed with the six of spades and it didn't take South one shake of a lamb's tail to overruff with the jack.

Then South led a low trump and finessed dummy's 10. The operation was a success, but the patient died. In other words, the finesse worked but South still had to lose a trump trick. That made two heart losers and one trump loser and a club loser yet to come.

South was a good loser. "Beautiful defense," were his words. "If West had simply played his third high heart East wouldn't have ruffed and I would have made my contract."

South was a good loser but he didn't have to be any kind of loser this time. No one was holding a gun to South's head and saying "Overruff, or else."

South could have paused for thought and seen that he had to lose a club some time or other and that the time to lose it was when East played that six of trumps.

South should have let the six-spot hold to discard a low club. That would have been his third and last losing trick of the hand.

Roadside rodeo

CORTE MADERA, Calif. (UPI) — When a horse stopped cars on busy U.S. 101 it was a man with a lariat who got things moving again.

Police said when the stray horse bolted onto the freeway Wednesday officers and firemen herded it away but it "kept charging the officers," and it got back on the pavement.

The unscheduled rodeo ended when a Westinghouse Electric Co. truck driver stopped his vehicle, grabbed a rope and lassoed the horse. The unidentified driver was dragged several yards on the seat of his pants before the horse gave up.

Very young recruit

CAMBRIDGE, England (UPI) — Anya Sparks filled in a recruitment application for policewomen and was invited to headquarters for an interview. Only then, police said Monday, did they discover Anya is 7 years old.

Riggs a superhero to all men over 50

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — To all men over 50, and especially those of us who play tennis, Bobby Riggs is a superhero. We worship the very gut his racket is strung with.

As one member of the Lawrence Welk Chapter of the Bobby Riggs Fan Club remarked at our last meeting, "Riggs has done more for the morale of middle-aged men than anyone since Frazier the lion."

Where once we had Walter Mitty-like dreams of making it big in the arts, sciences, commerce or politics, now we have Riggsian dreams of vanquishing a top woman player in a singles match. Preferably on national television.

With his victory over Margaret Court, Riggs has given us all a new sense of purpose, direction and, yes, confidence.

Evidence of this new spirit of boldness and self-assurance can be seen in the gauntlet flung down by Lou Nova, 58-year-old former heavyweight boxer, who has offered to "fight any woman in the world for $100,000."

You can bet that Nova would never have dared to hurl that challenge had it not been for the inspiring example set by Riggs.

Moreover, the middle age renaissance seems certain to snowball. All over America we'll be seeing over-the-hill athletes coming out of retirement to test their prowess against female opponents.

Already, we older players are being treated with more respect.

When I was finishing up a match the other morning I overhead some of the comments of a couple of young women who were waiting for the court.

"Did you see that serve?" I heard one of them exclaim after I had sent a zinger whistling through the air. "Billie Jean King couldn't have gotten a racket on it."

"That's right," the other girl admiringly agreed. "Wilt Chamberlain couldn't have touched it either. It went clear over the backstop."

Two weeks ago, before Riggs routed Mrs. Court, they wouldn't even have been looking my way.

I gave Riggs full credit for creating a "middle age masculine mystique" and it is great to bask in his reflected glory.

This is something we have needed for a long time — a peer idol. I can't wait to wear a Bobby Riggs sweatshirt and hang a Bobby Riggs poster in my bedroom.

His aura of invincibility is contagious. Maybe I'm only kidding myself but right now I feel like I could lick any grandmother in the House.

Can yoga be an addiction?

Dear Walt: I'd like to ask you a question about yoga. Isn't it true that continued exposure to it can be addicting, almost like some drugs? I've known two guys who got into it deeply, and they acted like they were stoned most of the time. Everything was "wow" and "beautiful" and it was almost impossible to hold an intelligent conversation with them. Please comment on this. — Larry

Dear Larry: I've met my share of stoned yoga freaks too. They do exist. But few live in communes or ashrams where yoga really is THE way of life. The true yoga student not only trips out of joy, but also seeks his light through service to others. This may or may not involve a lot of verbal communication. But at minimum, it requires enough meaningful interaction to permit mutual understanding.

If your chums are still around, tell them that you're not receiving on their wave length, and ask that they meet you at least halfway verbally so you can understand their rap.

You might like to read the biography of a man I hold dear. It's "Swami Satchidananda" by Sita Wiener and is available in pocket book form. You'll see how level-headed a yoga master can be. — Walt.

Dear Ele: I like to cook and have offered to do so for my brother's "Y" club members when they sleep over here this weekend. Henry was very enthusiastic about the idea and asked me if I'd make this cake he likes most. When mom heard about it, she started to get very tight-mouthed like she does when she feels hurt. I told her to make something too, but she said no. What should I do now? — Gloria.

Dear Gloria: Go ahead with your commitment to brother, but learn from this experience to have more consideration for your mom's kitchen pride. Next time you might wisely propose the notion to her, and see if she'd be willing to collaborate with you on the feed, before you mention anything at all to brother. You might prepare one dish, she could fix a second, and you could both share in making an elaborate third course. Thus, she'd feel an integral part of the fun rather than a "P.S." — Ele

Poverty better than politics, claim Nixon Grass Valley kin

GRASS VALLEY, Calif. (UPI) — The financial plight of President Nixon's Grass Valley cousins has worsened. But Anna Milhous, mother of the small clan of relatives here, believes poverty is better than politics.

"I receive state disability aid," Mrs. Milhous, 49, said in an interview. "We're poor money wise of course. But I'd rather be on welfare than in a bunch of gangsterism and I've about come to the conclusion that's all politics is."

Mrs. Milhous and her husband, Phillip, Nixon's first cousin, attracted national attention two years ago when it was disclosed they were ill and she depended in part on state welfare.

This week their son, Ronald, appeared in federal court filing for bankruptcy, saying he had lost his money in an unsuccessful hog raising venture.

Mrs. Milhous said it was unfortunate her son's court action came to the attention of the press. "If his name had been Smith, it would never have happened," she said.

"I draw $46 a month. I'm not ashamed of it," she added. "I don't know what has been written about this."

Asked to elaborate on her "gangsterism" comment, she said: "We've got a bunch of guys going to jail don't we? It seems to be a thing of do as I say not as I do.

"We teach our morals at home. We teach our children to respect our country. Our elected officials should be somebody who our children can respect but you read in the paper every day about something dirty," said the woman.

"I think I might be getting in hot water," she added. "I'm not really interested in all that scandal stuff."

Soup and salad regime will help melt those pounds

It is bikini time again. Even those women who titter when they realistically think of covering a few inches with even less cloth pay lip service to a diet.

A tasty and less mentally painful way to lose a few pounds is with a low-calorie soup and salad regime. Here are eight recipes keyed to most ethnic tastes that are based upon a 1200-calorie-per-day diet. This diet allows a range of 350-500 calories per meal.

For a nutritional balance of foods select fish-beef-poultry protein, fruits, vegetables and dairy products in the low-calorie range for other meals or snacks to round out each day's diet. Do not skip meals. Nibble on celery or have a cup of beef bouillon rather than having a diet cola to soothe between-meal hunger pangs. Always consult your doctor before dieting.

MEXICAN MEATBALL SOUP

- 1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed golden mushroom soup
- ½ pound ground beef
- 2 tablespoons fine dry bread crumbs
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- ½ cup carrots cut in thin sticks
- 1-3rd cup celery cut in thin sticks
- 1¼ cups water
- ¼ teaspoon oregano leaves, crushed
- ⅛ teaspoon ground cumin

Mix 2 tablespoons soup with beef, crumbs, salt and pepper. Shape into 24 small meatballs (½ inch). Arrange on broiler pan. Broil 4 inches from heat until brown; turn once. Meanwhile, in saucepan, combine carrots, celery, water and seasonings. Cover; simmer 5 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Stir in remaining soup; add meatballs. Heat; stir occasionally. (Makes about 3 cups soup or 4 servings with 229 calories per serving). Serve with Tostada Stack-ups.

TOSTADA STACK-UPS

- 2 cups chopped fresh tomatoes
- 1-3rd cup sliced green onion
- 2 teaspoons finely chopped hot cherry peppers
- 1 teaspoon salad oil
- ¼ teaspoon garlic salt
- 4 tostadas (crisp fried tortillas)
- 4 cups shredded lettuce
- 1 cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
- Bottled low calorie salad dressing

In bowl, combine tomatoes, onion, pepper, oil and garlic; chill. Top tostadas with lettuce, cheese and tomato mixture. Serve with dressing if desired. Makes about 2 cups sauce. (4 servings — 207 calories per serving.)

BEEFY ONION SOUP

- 1½ cups sliced onion
- 2 large cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1 can (10½ ounces) condensed beef broth
- 1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed tomato soup
- 1 soup can water
- ½ cup Burgundy or other dry red wine* (or water)
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- Dash pepper
- 4 melba toast rounds or thin slices french bread, toasted
- 1 tablespoon grated Parmesan cheese

In saucepan, cook onion with garlic in butter until tender. Add broth, soup, water, wine, parsley and pepper. Cook over low heat 10 minutes; stir occasionally. Sprinkle toast with cheese. Float on soup. Makes about 4½ cups soup (4 servings — 160 calories per serving.) Serve with Devilish Eggs. (*Omit wine — 135 calories per serving.)

DEVILISH EGGS

- 8 hard-cooked eggs
- 3 tablespoons sour cream
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 1 tablespoon white vinegar
- 2 tablespoons dried chives
- ¼ teaspoon celery salt
- Dash pepper
- Paprika
- 1 package (9 ounces) frozen whole green beans, cooked, drained and chilled
- Salad greens
- Low-calorie salad dressing

Cut eggs in half lengthwise. Remove yolks; mash. Blend yolks with sour cream, mustard, vinegar, chives, celery salt and pepper. Stuff lightly into egg whites; sprinkle with paprika. Chill. Arrange eggs and green beans on salad greens. Serve with your favorite salad dressing. Makes 4 servings. (4 egg halves per serving—220 calories.)

FISH CHOWDER

- 1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed cream of celery soup
- 1 soup can water
- ¼ cup sauterne or other dry white wine
- 1 pound fillet of white fish, cut in 1-inch pieces

Sandwich loaf is a favorite

A sandwich loaf is an all-time favorite luncheon dish. Buy an unsliced loaf of bread and slice it three or four times lenghwise. Spread the bottom layer with mayonnaise and layer on slices of lunchmeat. Make the next layer colorful with sliced tomatoes. The top layer might be egg salad. "Frost" the outside of the loaf with softened cream cheese thinned with a little cream. Decorate the top with a fanciful design of strips of carrot, radish, green pepper and sliced olive.

Try pay pond and catch your dinner

While Dad is out cleaning up the barbecue, Mom is in the kitchen perusing the most recent meat and pork prices to see what's for future outdoor cookouts. President Nixon suggested that we "buy something else—say, fish," which brought a Bronx cheer from regular fish eaters. Prices here are high, too.

Al McClane of Field & Stream magazine says, "Go fishing." Of course, he would say that since he is its fishing editor. However, McClane proposes a super suggestion. Do your fishing in a nearby "pay-pond."

He says, "The prospect of a day's outing to catch bluegills, catfish, bass or trout at prices ranging from 'fifty-cents a pole' to one or two dollars a pound is drawing thousands of people from metropolitan areas."

Pay-ponds make good family fun and also offer a guarantee of catching a fish . . . "for a pay-pond to pay its owner, you have to catch fish." McClane offers a variety of ways to prepare one of his favorite fish, trout, including the limon bleu or poached blue trout. He suggests stuffing trout with crab meat, fixing a Trout Parmesan or with almonds.

TROUT WITH ALMONDS

- 4 whole 12-ounce trout, dressed
- ½ pound butter or margarine
- 1 cup sifted flour
- Salt and pepper, to taste
- 1 cup blanched almonds
- Juice of ½ lemon
- 8 lemon wedges dipped in finely chopped parsley

Coarsely knife-chop blanched almonds. Melt 6 tablespoons butter in a small frying pan until very light brown. Add almonds and saute on a low heat until golden. Add lemon juice to pan. Shake flour onto sheet of waxed paper or foil, salt lightly and dredge fish in it giving a thin coating of flour. Melt 6 tablespoons of butter in a large frying pan and when very hot, add two trout. Shake pan a little as trout cook to prevent sticking.

Cook about 5 minutes on each side. Remove to a hot platter. Add 6 tablespoons remaining butter to pan for the other two fish. Saute. When all are cooked and arranged on the platter, pour almond mixture over them and garnish with lemon wedges dipped in finely chopped parsley. Makes 4 servings.

TROUT PARMESAN

- 4 12-ounce trout, boned and butterflied
- 4 eggs beaten
- ½ pound finely grated Parmesan cheese
- Capers
- Salt and pepper

SAUCE

- 1 cups milk
- 4 ounces flour
- 4 ounces butter

Dip trout in beaten eggs, then on waxed paper press them in a mixture of one-half of the cheese to coat the fish heavily. Salt and pepper generously. Deep fry in peanut or vegetable oil until the trout are crisp. To make sauce, heat milk to boiling point and blend in flour and butter. Stir over a low flame until thick.

Add the remaining cheese and capers and blend thoroughly. Pour over fish before serving.

This meat loaf loaded with protein has prunes for base

When you are looking for a meatless meal that's unusually satisfying, a box of pitted prunes is a pantry treasure. Here is a loaf of great flavor, for instance, with bland beans and peanuts set off by moist chewy prune nuggets . . . a new role for prunes, in a new scheme of cooking.

Let's face it, if supplies of meat are limited, we'll be cooking beans and nuts and vegetables as a protein source. We are going to need some extra chewiness and contrast. That's where prunes come in with a special assist.

Here is an inventive new recipe for a loaf that looks like pate. It really combines limas, lentils and peanuts for protein, mushrooms for flavor support, and tender-chewy prunes for extra-special flavor and "bite." Good? Just wait until you taste it! A tip: don't announce the ingredients of this dish until after the family has enjoyed the last taste.

For a meal when dinner is light and you want to end with a satisfying dessert, or you invite guests over at the last minute for "coffee and . . . " plan a Prune Ambrosia Cake that's quick to assemble, yet has old-time satisfaction.

MEATLESS PRUNE LOAF

1 package (12 ounces) pitted prunes
1 cup lima beans
1 cup lentils
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 can (8 ounce) mushrooms
¼ cup onion, finely chopped
½ cup celery, chopped
1 cup salted peanuts, chopped
1 cup bread crumbs
2 tablespoons melted butter
2 eggs and 2 tablespoons milk beaten together
2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons hot water

Snip 1½ cups prunes and set aside. Wash beans and lentils and soak in water to cover for several hours. Bring gradually to the boiling point and simmer, covered, until tender. Drain; reserve ¼ cup cooking liquid. Grind a small portion of beans and lentils in the blender at a time, along with some of the reserved cooking liquid, as needed; or use the finest blade of the food chopper. Remove to bowl.

Add prunes and remaining ingredients, except basting sauce, and combine thoroughly. Taste and adjust seasoning, if desired. Shape the mixture into a loaf and bake on a greased baking pan in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) about 1 hour, basting occasionally with butter and water. Garnish with whole pitted prunes. Makes 12 servings.

PRUNE AMBROSIA SPONGECAKE

1 package (12 ounces) pitted prunes
1 pint dairy sour cream
1 can (13½-ounces) or 1 and 1-3rd cups flaked coconut
¼ cup brown sugar
1 10-inch spongecake, store-bought or package mix
1 can (11 ounce) mandarin orange segments

Snip ¾ cup prunes (about 15) into quarters; set aside. Combine sour cream, coconut and brown sugar and mix thoroughly. Stir in snipped prunes. Cut spongecake into three layers, spread 1-3rd of the filling between each layer and frost top with remainder. Decorate top with eight whole prunes and orange segments. Chill until ready to serve. Makes eight servings.

NEW WRINKLE IN MEAT LOAF

As Selma sees it

Young styles aren't designed for the fat

DEAR SELMA:
I am 19 and fat. But I am still only 19. Are not styles really intended for particular ages more than particular sizes? Why should I deprive myself of the chance to wear the cute mod styles just because I am 75 pounds overweight?

Miss P. B.

Dear Miss P. B.:
I must concede that if you wore hip huggers, they really would. Fat people, even young fat people, do not look good in young, mod styles. If you really care about styles and about your appearance, the solution is simple — lose weight. If you don't lose weight, you can only realistically accept the fact that you can't effectively wear the same things as your thin friends.

DEAR SELMA:
Have you heard about the organizations which try to promote the idea that "fat is beautiful?" Don't you think that is a beautiful idea?

Mrs. R. P.

Dear Mrs. R. P.:
Many fat people may be beautiful inside, but how deeply is their beauty hidden under the rolls of fat? I can only tell you that when I was fat, I hid my inner beauty very effectively. My inner beauty became apparent correspondingly to my outer beauty as I lost my weight. I do not regard fat as beautiful. That is why I lost weight.

Heart hints

Everyone can help cook healthful meal

Here is a heart healthy menu so easy to prepare that even the youngest family members can share in the fun of creating a meal together. Even mother will be impressed with her family's nutritional know how when she sits down to this balanced-calorie-saving meal.

CHILLED SPICED APPLE JUICE

Place three cups apple juice in a saucepan with a cinnamon stick, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg and a squeeze of lemon. Bring to a boil and chill.

OVEN BARBECUED CHICKEN

1 frying chicken (2½ to 3 pounds) cut into serving pieces, skin removed ¼ cup water
¼ cup vinegar
3 tablespoons vegetable oil
½ cup chili sauce or catsup
3 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon pepper
1½ teaspoons salt (if desired)
2 tablespoons chopped onion (optional)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Combine all ingredients except chicken in saucepan, place over heat, and simmer for 5 to 10 minutes. Place chicken in large baking pan. Pour half of the barbecue sauce over chicken and bake, uncovered, for about 45 - 60 minutes. Baste with remaining barbecue sauce every 15 minutes during cooking. Makes 4 servings.

RICE PILAF

1 cup washed long grain rice
2 cups boiling water
2 chicken bouillon cubes
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup vermicelli (fine spaghetti)
2 tablespoons oil

Crush vermicelli and brown in oil. Add rice, brown lightly. Add bouillon, salt and two cups of boiling water; stir until dissolved. Add to rice mixture, bring to rapid boil, cover, turn heat to low. Cook until liquid is absorbed (15 to 18 minutes).

SEASONED BROCCOLI

1 (1 pound) bunch fresh broccoli, or 1 (10-ounce) package frozen broccoli
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
Salt and pepper as desired
3 tablespoons water
¼ teaspoon dill seed

If using fresh broccoli, trim and wash but do not dry. Measure oil into a saucepan or skillet with a tight-fitting cover. Add broccoli, dry mustard, dill, salt, pepper, and water; cover. Cook over medium to low heat about 15 minutes, or until tender, separating frozen vegetables with a fork during first few minutes of cooking. Shake covered pan several times to prevent sticking. Makes 3 servings.

FRENCH DRESSING

2-3rds cup vegetable oil
1-3rd cup vinegar or lemon juice seasonings to taste:
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon paprika

Combine ingredients in jar and shake well. Vary seasonings to taste with dry mustard, minced onion or garlic. Makes 1 cup.

FRESH FRUIT CUP

Combine fresh fruits in season (an interesting combination is strawberries, melon and bananas).

LEMON CRISP COOKIES

2-3rds cup cube margarine
½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1½ cups quick oats
½ teaspoon lemon extract
2-3rds cup sifted, enriched flour

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Grease cookie sheet. Cream margarine and sugar. Add lemon extract, flour and oats. Mix until oats are well blended. Form dough into small balls and place on cookie sheet. Flatten balls with fork. Bake cookies 13 to 15 minutes or until light golden brown. Makes 38 1½-inch cookies.

This menu follows the Heart Association recommendations for prudent eating and is suitable for every member of the family. For further information and recipes call your local Heart Association office.

Lunch-toters need a lift

Give that little lunch-toter a lift by tucking in a note and perhaps a small surprise such as a stick of gum. Give variety to the sandwich, too, by trying new combinations. Ever combine sliced cooked ham with applesauce?

Cheese-making

Most cheeses made in the U.S. are made from whole milk, but certain types use skim milk, whey or mixtures of all.

Some guidelines for outdoor cooks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Outdoor cooks mindful of ecology and economy can serve both causes this summer by following a few simple rules.

In planning meals, skip steak and other expensive cuts of meats in favor of variety meats and poultry. Chicken and turkey are good with barbecue sauces or just basted with a homemade oil, vinegar and spice mixture. Beef heart, prepared like Peruvian anticuchos, or spicy hors d'oeuvre, traditionally is served with corn on the cob.

Several vegetables can be baked on a grill or directly on the firebed without using foil wrappings. Medium baking potatoes need 1 to 1 ½ hours on coals, and small acorn or butternut squash, 45 to 50 minutes. They should be turned often for even cooking.

Whole eggplants and corn, with silks removed but husks left on, are best cooked on the grill, and turned often. sprinkle the corn husks lightly with water to keep them moist during cooking. Corn takes about 25 minutes and eggplant will vary widely, according to size and shape.

Remember to increase all cooking times if the weather is chilly or windy or both.

Perhaps the biggest extravagance with many amateur outdoor cooks is the use of too many briquets. The amount needed depends on the size and type of food to be grilled, the type of grill and the weather. In general a single layer of briquets that extends about an inch beyond the dimensions of the food is enough. Be sure to allow space for heat to penetrate between pieces of food.

More briquettes are needed for roasts, whole poultry and anything cooked on a rotisserie.

If more charcoal is needed as cooking progresses, add it around the edge of the burning coals.

If food is cooking too fast, either move some coals to the sides of the grill or separate the coals slightly.

Briquets in a grid-like cardboard package make a good but expensive starter. One clever cook we know makes his own from loose briquets, bought in bulk, and placed in halves of molded cardboard egg cartons. About 20 minutes before starting the fire, he sprays one or more units lightly with liquid starter and lets it soak in. One or two minutes before starting the fire, he also sprays starter on the other briquets to be used and piles the extra coals in a stack or pyramid on the briquet-filled cartons to create a draft that will catch fire quickly.

Empty waxed cardboard milk cartons also can be filled with briquets for starting fires. Or you can keep on hand a tightly covered jar of briquets soaking in liquid starter to cover. Use a few soaked ones at the bottom of your pyramid.

Save partly-burned briquets by dousing them, one at a time, in a container of water. Use tongs to hold each one in the water about 1 second, then return it to the firebowl to dry at least 24 hours.

When the ashes have cooled, strew them directly on a vegetable garden or lawn as fertilizer or add them to a compost heap.

Anticuchos, North American style, are less peppery and garlicky than the Peruvian variety. Serve them with corn on the cob, as a cocktail snack or a main course.

Wash and trim 1(1½ to 2 pound) beef heart, removing fat and arteries. Cut into ¾ or 1-inch cubes. In a large bowl, mix 1½ cups of cider vinegar or red wine vinegar with 5 teaspoons (correct) of finely chopped garlic, 1½ teaspoons of dried crushed red pepper, 1 teaspoon of ground cumin, 1½ teaspoons of salt and ½ teaspoon of pepper. Add meat cubes and toss to coat well. Add more vinegar if necessary to cover cubes.

Cover bowl tightly and refrigerate at least 24 hours. Stir occasionally. For basting sauce, drain 1 (4-ounce) can of red or green chilies, discard seeds and mash chilies with a fork in a large bowl. Stir in ¼ cup of cooking oil and 1 tablespoon of solids drained from the marinade. Drain and dry meat cubes, toss them in the chili mixture to coat well and thread loosely on skewers. Cook about 3 inches above charcoal, turning often, about 5 to 7 minutes, or until browned on all sides but moist within. Baste with remaining sauce as they cook. Makes about 6-8 hors d'oeuvre servings or about 6 main dish ones.

Seven Seas Skillet is hearty and savory

"Hearty" is a good word for it. And "savory." AND "salubrious," which means, says Noah Webster, "conducive to well-being; especially physical well-being; beneficial; healthful." That's our Seven Seas Skillet all right — a stir-fry captain's table treat of ocean perch, shrimp, and vegetables, that would have delighted Noah, the world's first sailor, as well as all the roaring, roistering sea captains to follow.

It will please all the crew at your house, too, whether you prepare it beforehand in the galley or bring an electric skillet and all makings right to the table. With the ocean perch fillets, which are in plentiful supply now, and the shrimp, you are serving helpful, healthful portions of one of the Basic 4 Foods. This is the meat and fish group where you pick up protein power.

Then, nobody needs to tell you how good for both sailors and landlubberss all those vegetables are. Their group — who would guess it? —is the fruit and vegetable category. Serve the skillet's components over cooked white rice an-you've brought in the breads and cereal group. So make the family's favorite pineapple and cottage cheese salad, and you've solved that requirement for daily nutritious eating

And try your hand at other ocean perch dishes, as well. These lean and meaty "treasure fish" from the deep seas can help you fight the high cholesterol battle, too. You can broil them, bake them, poach them, and everybody will enjoy them.

The ocean perch fillets, whether you purchase them frozen or fresh, are easy to handle. They're boned already for your convenience.

Texas state holiday

AUSTIN, Tex. UPI) — The Texas Legislature Monday night designated Aug. 27—the birthday of Lyndon B. Johnson —as a state holiday. But it wasn't easy.

The creation of another state holiday meant state employes had another day off. This, legislators figured, would cost the state too much money so an existing holiday had to be deleted.

The first choice was June 3, the birthday of Confederate President Jefferson Davis. But the Daughters of the Confederacy objected strenuously, so a compromise was reached that combined the birthdays of Davis and Confederate Gen. Robert E. Lee

Housewives have just begun to fight high food prices

We have just begun to see the beginning of the homemaker's rebellion against the high cost of food. The war is on and will remain with us until something has been done to reduce the entire price structure, not only of red meats, but of the very basic staples of our civilization — milk, butter, bread and cheese.

It'll take time, but meanwhile chicken and fish remain comparatively good buys, while canned fish, such as salmon, provides many a nourishing dish with complete proteins and loads of vitamins and minerals at a most modest cost per serving.

When you stop to consider that a one-pound can of salmon provides about one-third of the recommended daily requirements of protein for four adults, you'll find it's hard to beat. Add to this the convenience of simply opening a can, and the small amount of time needed to transpose it into an attractive, imaginative dish, and you've budgeted your food dollar and your energies both wisely and well. A year round delicacy, which earns its reputation for its appealing flavor and appetizing color, salmon contains all the essential amino acids, the same as in the expensive red meats.

The calcium contained in the edible bones, softened during the canning process, is another added virtue. These bones should not be wasted, but should be added to whatever recipe is being prepared.

Salmon is also a rich source of vitamins A and D, of niacin, riboflavin and other B group vitamins, and the fats in salmon are predominantly unsaturated.

The following recipe for salmon Kebabs is just one of the many delicious dishes which can be made from a can of versatile salmon.

SALMON KEBABS A L'INDIENNE

¼ cup butter
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped green pepper
1 teaspoon curry powder
1 pound can salmon with juice
¼ cup chopped parsley
2 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 cups fresh bread crumbs
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
Flour
1 egg beaten with 1 tablespoon water
½ cup dry bread crumbs

In skillet melt butter and in it saute onion, green pepper and curry powder, for about 5 minutes, or until onion is transparent. Empty into mixing bowl and add salmon, parsley, the 2 eggs, salt, pepper, fresh bread crumbs and cheese.

Divide mixture into 4 parts and shape each portion around a wooden skewer to form oblong-shaped kebabs. Roll kebabs in flour, coat evenly with egg mixed with water and roll in dry bread crumbs. Refrigerate until ready to cook.

To cook, saute the kebabs in a little hot butter or cooking oil until nicely browned on all sides. Serve on a bed of fluffy rice with a mushroom, cheese or curry sauce on the side. Serves 4. Garnish with lemon slices.

Serving beans is a matter of economics

American housewives caught up in the current flurry of spiraling food prices are missing out on an excellent opportunity to stretch their food dollar if they are not featuring at least one versatile, nutritious and low-cost bean based meal in their weekly menu planning.

Homemakers can still capitalize on the fact that dry edible beans, particularly Navy beans, are still at prices near or below prices of a year ago. The origin of the use of beans in the human diet is lost in antiquity but today's consumer is still assured that dry beans or canned beans are still one of the least expensive sources of protein and B vitamins. Approximately one-half cup of cooked dry beans will provide about as much protein as one ounce of meat, fish or cheese.

Today's price-conscious homemaker won't have to use a slide rule to calculate the economics of including beans in the weekly menu once or twice a week if she stops to think of today's high cost for other sources of protein.

BEAN, BACON AND APPLE CASSEROLE

Soak two cups dry Navy beans overnight in cold water to cover. Bring to boil in same water and add 1½ teaspoons salt and ⅛ teaspoon ginger. Simmer until skin of bean will split when you blow on it. Drain, reserving water. Place half the beans in an 8-by-11-inch baking dish.

Arrange three cups sliced tart apples in rows over beans. Sprinkle with 1-3rd cup brown sugar. Spread remaining beans in a thin layer over apple slices. Sprinkle brown sugar lightly over top layer of beans. On top, arrange eight slices Canadian bacon.

Cover tightly and bake 1 hour at 350 degrees. Remove cover and add enough of the reheated water from the beans to barely cover the beans. Return to oven and bake until beans are tender and lightly browned.

Semi-dry sausages

Semi-dry sausages are cooked and partially dried in the smokehouse. Because they are softer than dry sausages and have a higher moisture content, they should be refrigerated.

Canned meats are good buy in nutrition

One of the best ways to stretch your meat dollar and yet provide your family with nutritious meals is to buy ready-to-serve canned meats. On a cost-per-serving basis, chopped beef, luncheon meat, and chopped ham represent the best buys now.

Since each variety of canned meat is made from carefully trimmed select beef or pork and is completely cooked in the canning process, there is no shrinkage in home preparation. One 12-ounce can will make a satisfying economical main dish for four persons.

Ready-to-serve canned meats are as nutritious as home prepared meats. They all contain government-inspected meats that are carefully trimmed and boned before processing. All ingredients are listed on the container.

Chopped beef contains 100 per cent finely chopped beef. Luncheon meat is made primarily from pork shoulder meat but may have beef or ham added. Chopped ham contains 100 per cent chopped ham.

A three-ounce serving of any of these meats will provide more than one-third of the daily protein needs of an adult. When used in combination dishes with pasta, rice, legumes, cheese or eggs, each serving size can be reduced and yet provide an abundance of high-quality nutrients.

Canned meats offer shopping and storage convenience, too. They need no refrigeration until opened. They are ideal for summer picknicking and camping. Serve them hot or cold in casseroles, sandwich fillings, creamed sauces or salads.

The next time you shop, be sure to check the ready-to-serve canned meat shelf at your supermarket. Canned meats offer nutritious and appealing variety to family menus while helping you get the most for your meat dollar.

Molded salad always good on hot days

Molded salads go perfectly with summer dishes and are part of the American dining scene. A different combination for such a salad includes toasted wheat germ, with its nutrients, and protein-rich cottage cheese together. Serve this hearty Wheat Germ Summer Salad Ring with sliced fruits that are in season and more reasonable in price. Another thought is to serve the mold with sliced vegetables such as carrots, radishes, cucumbers or whatever turns you on.

WHEAT GERM SUMMER SALAD RING

- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
- ½ cup cold water
- 4 cups creamed small curd cottage cheese
- 1 cup half and half
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ¾ cup toasted sugar and honey wheat germ

Sprinkle gelatin over cold water to soften. Heat, stirring until gelatin dissolves. Combine cottage cheese, half and half, sugar, salt and lemon juice. Add dissolved gelatin. Mix well. Chill until mixture is partially set and mounds slightly when dropped from spoon. Fold in toasted wheat germ. Spoon into 1½-quart mold. Chill until firm (1½-2 hours). Unmold onto serving plate. Serve with sliced fresh fruit. Makes 8 servings.

Hot dogs went to the moon

Did you know that astronauts have eaten hot dogs on the moon? That's because the frank is such a compact source of good nutrition. Serve skinless franks to your junior space team, too!

Variety is the key to a balanced diet

We hear a lot of talk about "empty calories" — referring to those foods and beverages which contribute little to the diet besides the calories themselves. But it is always easier to talk about the things that shouldn't be eaten. All right, then, what should a good diet contain?

"Variety" is the key to a well-balanced diet . . . some fruits, some vegetables, meats, fish, eggs, milk, bread, rice, etc. Nutrition experts say that it's hard to have a deficient diet if you eat a wide range of foods. And besides, it's more fun that way.

Variety is important in the protein category, too. Many foods contain proteins, but some have protein of better quality than others. So, if you eat protein from a variety of sources at the same meal, you will have a better diet.

For lunch, a ham and cheese sandwich with a glass of milk. Not bad at all . . . protein from ham, cheese, bread, and milk.

Then for dinner, try this Cheeseburger Meat Loaf. It happens to look attractive and tastes great, too. But take a closer look at the protein ingredients: eggs, milk, rice, ground beef and cheese. The combination is better for you than a serving of one of its parts. It's an excellent recipe.

There are a few other tricks employed here. Ground beef is the most expensive of the proteins. So to stretch that expensive ingredient, other less expensive proteins have been used . . . eggs (ranging from 5 to 8c each), rice (1 to 2c for each half cup of cooked rice), and process cheese (about 6c a slice). The net result is to give a better quality meal at a lower cost, and you have made the most of the money spent for the meal.

Rice has that stretching quality and can be used with other meats or other meat, cheese, or egg combinations for economical meals that don't sacrifice quality for economy. In fact, you can get a free recipe leaflet called "Serve Rice 'n Save" that contains 19 money-stretching recipes each printed in a 3-by-5 inch area for easy filing. Just write to Rice Council, P.O. Box 22802, Houston, Texas 77027.

CHEESEBURGER MEAT LOAF

2 eggs, slightly beaten
1-3rd cup milk
1 tablespoon garlic salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup grated onion
2 cups cooked rice
1½ pounds lean ground beef
6 slices processed American cheese
1 cup barbecue sauce

Combine eggs, milk, garlic salt, pepper, onion, rice and meat. Mix thoroughly. Press about one half of mixture into greased 9-by-5-inch loaf pan. Place cheese on meat. Spread remaining meat mixture over cheese, being certain cheese is completely covered. Spoon barbecue sauce over loaf. Bake at 350 degrees for 50 minutes, or until meat is done. Let stand at room temperature 5 minutes before slicing and serving. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Lactobacillus responsible for unique taste

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI) — The secret of San Francisco's sourdough bread has been checked by Oregon State University microbiologists.

They discovered that a bacterium called lactobacillus San Francisco is responsible for the unique taste of the bread, which can be baked only in the Bay Area.

The researchers said a way must now be found to safely distribute the secret ingredient, which is found in the waters of the San Francisco region.

A new product

Wheast is a new dairy industry product, made from a high-lactose derivative of whey, and is used to spray on plants as a supplemental food for beneficial insects, such as green lacewings, who attach destructive aphids.

Dried beans are good news for dieters, budgeters

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dried beans and peas were bellringers during the April meat boycott—apparently because of an undeserved reputation as fattening food.

The central office of the city health department's nutrition bureau was deluged with phone calls from New Yorkers seeking not only low-cost meatless menus but also reassurance that they wouldn't gain weight on a diet using dried legumes as meat substitutes.

Nutritionist Barbara Premo said the central office usually receives about 100 requests a week for diet and menu advice. The number jumped to 1,000 the week of the boycott and most asked about the starchy bean business.

In an interview, Miss Premo added that a lot of callers seemed surprised to learn that money-saving meat substitutes were better for them than the meat they had been eating.

The calorie news was equally good. The bureau's chart for many common varieties of food lists an average of only 115 calories for a ½-cup serving of cooked dried beans or peas, compared with an average of 240 calories for a 3-ounce serving of beef, ham or lamb, or even 195 calories average for a 3-ounce serving of such low-cal meats as veal, liver and chicken.

A ½-cup serving of dried legumes also has about the same average calorie count as ½ cup of potato, another vegetable whose fattening image is undeserved. One small ear of corn or a ½-cup serving of rice or peas is in the same class, she added. "The vegetables aren't fattening—it's the butter and gravy you put on them as well as the amount you eat."

Miss Premo cautioned against relying on dried beans alone for protein because their protein content is partial, and should be supplemented with higher quality ones such as skim milk, cottage cheese, part skim ricotta cheese, chicken or fish.

"You could sprinkle cheese on beans or cook them with fish or chicken," she said. "Add cabbage salad, a slice of whole grain or enriched bread, and fresh fruit for a meal that costs less than 50 cents a serving at today's prices."

A ½-cup serving of cabbage, before dressing is added, averages only 10 calories. A whole cup of escarole, lettuce or chicory averages the same.

Quite a few callers looking for cheap meat substitutes asked about eggplant. The question may have arisen because many Italian-American restaurants list eggplant parmesan as a main dish instead of a vegetable. But it isn't a high-protein vegetable, and it is low in calories—an average of 25 to ½ cup—only if it's plainly prepared, without batter or a rich cheese and oil topping.

Over and over again, Miss Premo and other city nutritionists reassured callers that they wouldn't be malnourished if they skipped meat altogether.

"In many cases, it's better if you don't eat meat as much as usual," she said. "Beef consumption has gone up about 82 per cent since 1952, and 60 per cent of the meat eaten is beef.

"We were one of the first to recommend a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet (with reduced consumption of meat)," she said, adding that the question most often asked the nutrition bureau these days concerns the cholesterol content of various foods.

For a reduced cholesterol diet, she recommends evaporated skimmed milk in macaroni and noodle casseroles, both for its low fat content and low co t.

"Watch your portion sizes, round out meals with big salads, be generous with vegetable servings and serve fruit instead of cakes, pies and pastries. Fresh fruit cup with 75 calories is better than cake with 300."

Kidney beans make old-fashioned macaroni salad into a main dish. Add a glass of skim milk and fresh fruit for dessert, for a complete meal. Blend ¼ cup each of salad oil and vinegar with 1 tablespoon of sugar and 1 teaspoon of dried dill weed. Add 1 medium green pepper, seeded and diced, 2 medium onions, grated, 2 cups of cooked, drained dried red kidney beans (1 cup of dried, prepared as package label directs) and 2 cups (8 ounces) of elbow macaroni, cooked, drained, rinsed with cold water and drained again. Toss until combined. Add salt and pepper to taste. Chill at least 1 hour before serving in a lettuce-lined bowl with wedges cut from 2 medium tomatoes.

Makes 6 generous servings.

Try fish fillets in these dishes

It's no fisherman's yarn that the creatures of the sea make good eating. And with meat prices skyrocketing, no-waste frozen fish fillets are a less expensive source of protein. They're also wonderfully versatile as can be seen in these two recipes. In both, the delicately flavored fillets have been tamed with zesty seasonings to produce distinguished, tasty dishes.

Fish Pinwheels Au Gratin, a combination of fillets rolled around chopped vegetables and baked with packaged potatoes au gratin, is an easy-to-fix main dish. The tangy cheese sauce in the potatoes is an appealing complement to the mild fish.

Simple and speedy to prepare and distinctly different are the Tex-Mex Fish Rolls. Another all-in-one dish with corn and tomatoes well spiced with an envelope of chili seasoning mix, the skillet supper is ready to serve in under 30 minutes.

With either dish, complete the meal with lettuce wedges dressed with oil and vinegar, broccoli, glasses of milk and spice cake for dessert.

FISH PINWHEELS AU GRATIN

2 tablespoons butter
1 small tomato, chopped
1 small green pepper, chopped
1 package (5½-ounces) potatoes au gratin
1 pound fillet of perch, sole or flounder
Salt and black pepper.

Melt 1 tablespoon butter in small skillet; add tomato and green pepper. Cook 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. In a two-quart casserole, combine contents of package of Potatoes Au Gratin with 1¾ cups boiling water. Sprinkle fish with salt and pepper. Place a spoonful of tomato mixture on each fillet; roll up, jelly roll fashion. Place seam-side down, on top of potatoes. Dot with remaining butter. Bake at 400 degrees for 35 minutes. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

TEX-MEX FISH ROLLS

1 envelope (1¾-ounces) chili-o mix
1 can (1-pound) tomatoes
1 can (1-pound) whole kernel corn, drained
1½ pounds fillet of perch, sole, or flounder
Salt

In medium-size skillet, stir together contents of Chili-O mix envelope, tomatoes, and corn. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring occasionally. Season fish with salt. Place a spoonful of chili-o mixture on each fillet; roll up jelly roll fashion and place, seam-side down, on top of chili-o mixture in skillet. Cook over medium heat 10 minutes, or until fish flakes easily when pierced with a fork. Turn occasionally and spoon chili-o mixture over fish rolls. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Coquilles St. Jacques means scallops in French

In France, or in a French restaurant, if you see Coquilles St. Jacques on the menu, there's no need to be bewildered. For the word is simply the French name for scallops. And, since the most popular way to serve this seafood in France is baked with mushrooms in a wine-flavored sauce, the dish, too, goes by the name, "Coquilles St. Jacques."

There are two varieties of scallops. The small bay scallops found in some salt water bays and inlets are expensive and in limited supply. The larger sea scallops from the ocean depths make up the greater portion of commercially marketed scallops. Scallops are often broiled or fried, but are delicious, too, in baked dishes such as Coquilles St. Jacques—or, as we choose to call the Americanized version given here, "Scallops au Gratin."

The sea scallop has an attractive fluted saucer-shaped shell of adequate size to make natural individual "casseroles" for scallop dishes. Today's recipe may be baked in these, in individual baking dishes or in a single casserole.

With Scallops au Gratin, serve a crisp garden salad with french dressing. The recipe for the dressing as well as a recipe for marinated broiled and fried scallops is also given today.

All three are prepared with corn oil. This oil has the dietary advantage of being low in cholesterol and high in desirable polyunsaturated fatty acids.

SCALLOPS AU GRATIN

1 pound sea scallops, fresh or frozen
¼ cup and 2 tablespoons corn oil
½ pound mushrooms, sliced
2 tablespoons corn starch
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ teaspoon white pepper
2 cups milk
1 tablespoon diced pimiento
1 tablespoon sherry, optional
¼ cup bread crumbs
¼ cup grated cheese

Rinse scallops, removing any pieces of shell. Cut into cubes. Pour the ¼ cup of corn oil into a medium size saucepan. Add mushrooms and saute slowly over low heat until tender. Remove mushrooms. In same saucepan, stir together remaining 2 tablespoons corn oil, corn starch, salt, dry mustard, Worcestershire sauce and white pepper. Gradually stir in milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring contantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Add scallops, mushrooms, pimiento and sherry to the sauce. Pour mixture into lightly greased scallop shells or baking dishes or 1½-quart casserole. Sprinkle bread crumbs around edges and top with cheese. Bake in 375-degree oven 15 to 20 minutes for individual servings; 20 to 25 minutes for casserole. Serve hot with a sprig of parsley and a twist of lemon. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

FRENCH DRESSING

1 and 1-3rd cups corn oil
1-3rd cup vinegar
1-3rd cup lemon juice
1 small clove garlic, minced
2 teaspoons paprika
1⅝ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon dry mustard
Dash cayenne

Measure corn oil, vinegar, lemon juice garlic, paprika, lemon juice, garlic, paprika, salt, sugar, mustard and cayenne into bottle or jar. Cover tightly and shake well. Chill. Shake thoroughly before serving. Makes 2 cups. Serve with tossed salad.

BROILED MARINATED SCALLOPS

¼ cup corn oil
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ to ½ teaspoon dried basil leaves or ½ to 1 teaspoon chopped fresh basil ⅛ to ¼ teaspoon dried thyme leaves or
¼ to ½ teaspoon chopped fresh thyme
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 pound (1 pint) fresh or frozen sea scallops
1-3rd cup fine dry bread crumbs
1 teaspoon paprika (optional)
¼ teaspoon salt

Mix together corn oil, lemon juice, ¼ teaspoon salt, basil, thyme and pepper in bowl. Add scallops. Cover and marinate in refrigerator at least two hours, turning occasionally. Drain scallops. Mix bread crumbs, paprika and salt. Roll scallops in bread crumb mixture until lightly and evenly coated. Arrange scallops in single layer in broiler pan. Broil about 3 inches from source of heat 3 to 5 minutes, or until done. Makes 3 to 4 servings.

To oven fry scallops: Place coated scallops in single layer in shallow baking dish. Bake in 425-degree oven about 10 minutes or until done.

To deep fry scallops: Dip scallops into beaten egg, then coat evenly with bread crumb mixture. Pour corn oil into heavy sturdy flat bottomed deep fryer or skillet, filling utensil no more than 1-3rd full. Heat over medium heat to 375-degrees. Carefully add scallops a few at a time. Fry scallops in hot oil about 2 to 3 minutes or until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper.

Salmon saves budget and waistline

"There is nothing new under the sun," is an old cliche, which is more often true than false. Certainly there is nothing very new about man's concern about overweight and general good health. From the time that the first cave men, frugivorous from necessity and not desire, invented the bow and arrow and sated themselves on the raw flesh of their kill, over-eating has plagued the world. It probably reached its height when Rome became the center of the riches of the world, and the luxury of the table was carried to incredible degrees of wanton gluttony.

But it was not until 1863 that the first health and diet book was published. It was written by the renowned French philosopher and bonvivant, Brillat Savarin, and was devoted to the preservation of good health, with special emphasis on the "reduction of corpulency." His rules for losing weight and gaining vitality and longevity are basically the same as those presented today in various guises, all of which boil down to consuming fewer calories, getting adequate exercise and satisfying only the minimum requirements of sleep.

In those days, high protein diets were recommended with fish and seafoods preferable to the higher caloric red meats, containing saturated fats. Today we can, without any question of a doubt, add—and higher priced!

Fish is still comparatively inexpensive, and convenience foods are extremely good buys. Canned salmon, for instance,with its complete protein, abundant vitamins and minerals and unsaturated fats is one of the best. Try saucing salmon with a velvety yogurt sauce to top off a dish of steaming spaghetti for just one of the many nourishing yet economical and healthful dishes that can be quickly made from a can of salmon.

SPAGHETTI WITH SALMON YOGURT SAUCE

½ cup butter (1 stick)
¼ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
¼ cup sliced green onions
1 pound can salmon with liquid
3 tablespoons dry white wine or chicken stock
8 ounce container plain yogurt
1 teaspoon flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
12 ounces enriched spaghetti

In saucepan melt half the butter. Add mushrooms and onions and cook over low heat until vegetables are just tender. Add salmon and wine or chicken stock and simmer for 3 minutes.

Combine yogurt, flour and seasonings. Stir into mixture in skillet and cook, stirring, for 3 minutes longer.

Meanwhile cook spaghetti according to package directions. Drain, toss with remaining 4 tablespoons butter and serve with the salmon sauce poured over it.

Serve with grated Parmesan cheese and a tossed salad. Serves 4.

Marinated green beans

Marinate chunks of any smoked sausage (fully cooked) with green beans and your favorite French dressing. Drain and serve on lettuce leaves.

Macaroni addition

Add sliced franks to a 7¼-ounce package macaroni and cheese along with the cheese; heat thoroughly. Or, add cut up salami to the sauce for an 8-ounce package of spaghetti dinner.

Greatest convenience food for high protein diets.

Dodgers blossom in May

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — What started out as an April Fools joke has turned into a May powerhouse.

The Los Angeles Dodgers looked like anything but a pennant contender when the National League season opened in April.

But strange things developed in May as the Dodgers found some big bats.

As a result, Los Angeles has been climbing up the ladder in the National League West standings. This morning, they are only a half-game behind the San Francisco Giants.

Probably the most unbelieveable joke about the Dodgers is their hitting. Who would ever believe L.A. would be the top hitting team in major league baseball with a .278 team average. During May, the Dodgers are batting at an unreal .308 clip.

The Dodgers let it all hang out Tuesday night when they banged out 15 hits including six doubles to record an easy 9-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Catcer Joe Ferguson led the awesome attack with a pair of two-run doubles to again take the National League runs-batted-in lead with 41.

Thanks to Tom Seaver's heroics in leading New York past the Giants Tuesday, the Dodgers can move into first place tonight. L.A. needs to defeat Cy Young Award winner Steve Carlton tonight while hoping New York can knock off the Giants again this afternoon.

Ferguson smashed his doubles in the third and fifth innings to give Tommy John all the support he needed in earning his fourth victory of the season.

Every member of the Dodgers' starting lineup participated in Tuesday's hit parade with Bill Buckner leading the way with three. Besides Ferguson, other Dodgers contributing doubles were Ron Cey, Buckner, Bill Russell and Willie Crawford.

"I prefer hitting with men on base," Ferguson said. "I just get a special feeling when we have men on. If we don't, I don't seem to concentrate as well. Our pitching is starting to come around, we're playing good defense and we're hitting the ball great."

Philadelphia starter Ken Brett stopped the Dodgers on no hits in the first inning but it was L.A. the rest of the way. After Ferguson's first double wiped out the Phillies' 1-0 lead in the third, the Dodgers ran away with three runs in the fifth, a single tally in the sixth and three more in the seventh.

Bill Robinson's fifth home run of the season gave the Phils their early lead in the second. The visitors added single runs in the sixth and eighth and loaded the bases in the ninth when Jim Brewer was called from the bullpen to retire the final two batters.

DODGER NOTES — Carlton (5-6) will face Claude Osteen (4-3) in tonight's finale of the series. After a day off Thursday, the Dodgers will open a weekend series against Montreal Friday. . .

The National League has selected Crawford as its Player of the Week. Willie hit .444 last week with three home runs. . .

Angel broadcaster Don Drysdale is the latest ex-Dodger great to accept an invitation to Sunday's Oldtimers Day ceremonies. . .

The Dodgers hosted a large group of U.S. Navy Sea Cadet Corps before the game. They passed in review before General Omar Bradley. . .

All teenagers will be admitted to the reserved level for $1 Friday night on Teen Night. Elks Night will be celebrated Saturday with a big pre-game program. . .

The Dodgers are enjoying their best May since 1962 when the team had a 21-7 record. L.A. has won 22 of their last 30 games.

Broncs eye NCAA title

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind. — The Cal Poly Pomona track and field team will try to improve on last year's fifth place finish in the NCAA College Division championships in competition beginning here Thursday.

The Broncos in 1973 are considered leading contenders for the national crown with one of their biggest foes being conference arch-rival, Cal State Northridge.

Cal Poly Pomona, Northridge and Cal State Fullerton ended the California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) meet in a three-way deadlock at 89 points each. But a subsequent reversal of the results of the 880 run dropped the Broncos to third, put Northridge in second and gave the title to Fullerton.

That humiliation will surely be on the minds of coach Ron Allice's athletes as they begin the three-day meet held at Wabash College.

The current Cal Poly team will include four men that scored in last year's meet, sprinters David Frierson and Myron McGill and halfmilers James Couch and Ken Johnson.

Frierson and McGill were members of the 440-yard relay team which finished fourth in the 1972 meet held in Ashland, Ohio. Couch ran 1:50.6 for sixth in the 880 while Ken Johnson was eighth at 1:54.2.

This year Allice is sending a 10-man squad to the nationals. Frierson (9.4w, 20.8w) will be in the 100 and 220 and the relay, Ron Williams (9.3) will be in the 100 and relay, and McGill will go in the 220 (21.8) and relay.

The other member of the spring relay will be high hurdler Milt Turner (14.0) who will also double in his specialty.

The mile relay team will be Couch, McGill, Johnson and freshman Albert Seeney.

Johnson will step up to the mile this year after winning the CCAA meet in 4:09.7.

Joining him will be Steve Lassegard (4:11.0) who was third in the conference.

Couch will stay with the 880 where he has a best mark this year of 1:53.2. Also in the half will be Seeney, the surprise of the CCAA meet when he won his event with a torrid stretch drive for a 1:52.4 clocking. Seeney is a former Los Angeles City 880 champ.

Field event competitors will be Emory Montgomery in the triple jump (51-8¼w) and Richard Watson in the long jump (24-7).

The first day of the decathlon will be Thursday with the final five events on Friday. Also tomorrow afternoon will be qualifying in several field events and trials in the running events.

All other finals will be held Saturday.

Indy prospects brighten

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) —Prospects brightened in late morning for the running of the twice postponed 500 mile auto race today.

The weather bureau said it did not anticipate any rain for "two or three hours" but then showers could threaten.

Skies were expected to be generally cloudy with the sun breaking through periodically. Each time the sun appeared the few spectators at the track broke into cheers.

Meanwhile constant circling of the race track by service cars had dried more than half the surface.

Speedway officials deferred a decision on whether to attempt to go pending continuation of, the drying process and more definite weather prospects.

They were reluctant to start the race unless there appeared a chance to go the full 500 miles, although the race could be stopped and declared official once the leader has covered half the distance. The full 500 mile run takes about three hours.

When rain washed out activities for the second straight day Tuesday, it marked the first time in "500" history the event had ever been postponed twice in succession.

The race turned into a shambles Monday when rain followed a 10-car collision which occurred only seconds after the start, and Tuesday more showers again resulted in a postponement despite the fact the cars actually did get in two preliminary processional laps before they were red-flagged to a stop.

Only 32 cars were ready to go Tuesday since the machine driven by Salt Walther of Dayton, Ohio, was demolished in Monday's accident. Walther is still hospitalized in serious condition with a broken wrist and severe burns.

They managed to run the parade lap and the pace lap Tuesday, but as the racers reached the starting line, rain began falling on the two north turns. That was when the field was stopped. The drivers then remained on the track, in their cars, hoping for the rain to stop and the race to start.

The postponement announcement finally was made at 2:46 p.m. (EDT), 4 hours and 46 minutes after the scheduled starting time. Today's start also is scheduled for 10 a.m. (EDT).

Chief Steward Harlan Fengler explained to the diminishing crowd that a wet track had made running too hazardous. Car owner Roger Penske, and drivers Gary Bettenhausen and A.J. Foyt also spoke over the public address system.

"The first thing is the safety of the drivers," Bettenhausen said. "I really want to run 500 miles and I think that's what all the drivers want."

"All the drivers are disappointed," Foyt said, "but probably not as much as the fans. I feel the drivers in a 500 mile race don't want to go 200 miles and stop. All of us would like to run 500 miles.

"I feel sorry for all the people who came from all over the world, but we can't control this. If I could turn this valve off, I'd be the first one to do it. I hope we run tomorrow, and may the best man win."

Bettenhausen, pole winner Johnny Rutherford, Mario Andretti, Bobby and Al Unser, defending champion Mark Donohue, Swede Savage and Gordon Johncock were the leading contenders for the $250,000 first prize, and should they get a dry track for the full 500 miles, there'll be a chance to beat Donohue's record of 162.962 miles per hour.

Speedway president Tony Hulman revealed that the crowd Monday exceeded 300,000, a record, with all seats sold "several days before the race," but the rainout caused the crowd to drop to between 150,000 and 200,000 Tuesday.

Hulman also revealed that only 20 of 103 concession stands were open Tuesday, leaving many spectators hungry and thirsty. Prospects were for little improvement in concessions supplies today because help isn't available.

Averill for Hall of Fame

Surviving members of baseball's first All-Star teams will be present at this year's game at Kansas City. You might assume that all of those players are in the sport's Hall of Fame.

Wrong.

You would think a lifetime batting average (13 years) of .318, career totals of 1224 runs scored, 2018 hits, 1165 runs batted in, 238 home runs, and 128 triples would insure a player's membership.

Wrong again.

Among the players on the first All-Star team back in 1933 was Earl Averill. In fact Earl Averill was on the first six All-Star teams.

Earl Averill? Actually it's Howard Earl Averill. His son, Earl Douglas Averill also was a ball player and among the teams he played for are the Angels and the Chicago Cubs. He's now employed at Claremont College and lives in Alta Loma. A third generation Averill, Michael Allen is Boston Red Sox property.

I had the pleasure recently of meeting both Howard Earl and Earl Douglas. I was surprised to find out that the elder Averill was not already in the Hall of Fame.

In 1936 he had his best season, batting .378 and leading the American League with 232 hits. He had 39 doubles, 15 triples, and 28 home runs. He scored 136 runs and batted in 126.

Most of his career was spent with the Cleveland Indians. He still holds six club records. His 1165 runs scored is 86 more than Hall of Famer Tris Speaker who played one more year in Cleveland than Averill.

His 122 triples betters Speaker's total by 14. In spite of the fact that the Indians have had some noted power hitters including Rocky Colavito and Al Rosen, Averill's total of 226 homers still is a club record.

Averill's 1098 runs batted in are 139 more than the number two man, Hall of Famer Napoleon Lajoie who also played long with the Indians. Earl also leads in extra base hits, 725 to 666 for Speaker and total bases with 3214 to 2883 for Speaker.

No slouch on defense

He was not a defensive liability in the field either, finishing with a .970 lifetime percentage and twice leading the league in putouts with 388 in 1929 and 410 in 1934 from his centerfield position.

Nor was he any late bloomer. The simple truth is, Averill always could hit. He began his professional baseball career with the San Francisco Seals in the old Pacific Coast League in 1926.

In three years in San Francisco, Averill played in 188, 183, and 189 games. He went to bat 679, 754, and 763 times and rapped out 236, 244, and 270 hits. His batting averages were .348, .324, and .354 respectively.

He was part of one of the all-time great hitting minor league outfields. Flanking Averill were Roy Johnson and Smead Jolly.

Johnson had already been sold to the Detroit Tigers. General Manager Billy Evans of Cleveland came to town to scout Jolly and wound up buying Averill's contract.

In his first year in the major leagues (1929), Averill batted an even .330. He numbered 43 doubles, 13 triples, and 18 home runs among his 199 hits in 152 games. He scored 110 runs and batted in 97.

He batted .339 his second year and .333 his third season.

Yet he probably is most famous for being the batter whose line drive broke Dizzy Dean's toe in the 1937 All-Star game and practically ended Dizzy's career at the age of 26. Dean tried to come back too soon, change his pitching motion in order to keep from putting too much weight on the toe and injured his arm.

Ready for Dean's curve

"You know I had breakfast with Dizzy on the train going to the game," he related. "I heard later that he said he was going to get me out on a curve, so I was looking for it. I hit it so hard that only a few people knew it hit Dizzy. It went on by him to the second baseman who threw me out."

Things did not go so well for Averill either that year.

On June 20 he was hitting .394 when suddenly his chronically bad back really gave him trouble. "I went out to the ball park one day," he recalled," and my legs wouldn't go. I stayed out of the lineup a week and then came back, but my swing was off."

The hard-hitting outfielder's average plummeted and he wound up the season with a .299 average. Later it was discovered that his coccyx (tailbone) and spine had never joined.

But he came back the next year, 1938, to hit .330. He had 27 doubles, 15 triples, and 14 home runs. He scored 101 runs and batted in 93.

It was his 10th and last big season. The back bothered him more and he never again hit .300. But his 10 big years and the subsequent lifetime totals for 13 years in the major leagues certainly qualify him as one of the game's greats.

Others with less impressive records have been elected to the Hall of Fame. "For some reason I never get enough votes," he said and then as the years went by, people forgot and now it will take nomination by the special veteran's committee.

But they too need reminding of how good Howard Earl Averill was. Many of the men doing the voting never saw him play or know of his accomplishments. He's been out of baseball 32 years now.

Earl Torgeson, a 10-year veteran first baseman, and Jeff Heath, a 14-year major league outfielder are national co-chairmen of the Earl Averill Hall of Fame Committee. A special set of Earl Averill Hall of Fame Committee Baseball Cards was slated to be published.

The object of the Committee is simply to awaken the Veteran's Committee to recognize the fact that Earl Averill deserves immediate induction into the Hall of Fame.

Angels pound Lee for 11 hits, lose

BOSTON (UPI) — Bill Lee says he patented the 16-hit shutout so don't look surprised when he wins an 11-hitter.

Lee was in one jam after another Tuesday night and finally needed relief help from Bob Bolin, but he scattered the 11 hits well enough to give the Boston Red Sox a 2-1 win over the California Angels and fireballer Nolan Ryan.

Orlando Cepeda's seventh homer with Reggie Smith aboard in the second ining gave the Red Sox their two runs. The Angels' only run came on three first-inning singles.

"I'm lucky," Lee said afterward. "I'd rather be lucky than good. You win games that way."

Lee retired the side in order only once—in the fifth inning. Double plays pulled him out of trouble in the first, fourth and sixth innings.

In the seventh, Reggie Smith threw out Ken Berry at the plate on Winston Llenas' single and in the eighth, Bolin came on to get Tom McCraw on a fly ball after Lee walked Alan Gallagher to fill the bases with two out.

"I'm glad they got me the two runs," Lee said. "That's all we needed. Sure, we gave 'em a lot of hits. That's the way to do it. Give 'em enough rope and get about 15 double plays.

"The greatest play of the game was Smith's throw to the plate," Lee said. 'I would have gone nuts if they called the guy safe. He had him all the way but the umpire delayed the call because he couldn't see whether (catcher Carlton) Fisk still had the ball.

"The guy (Berry) still hasn't touched the plate so there's no way he could have been called safe."

Singles by Sandy Alomar, Bobby Brooks and Bob Oliver produced the Angels' run.

The two teams meet here again tonight with Luis Tiant (5-5) pitching for Boston against Clyde Wright. On Thursday afternoon, Boston's John Curtis (2-5) goes against Rudy May (4-5)

DeBusschere new Nets' G.M.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dave DeBusschere, all-star forward of the New York Knicks, Wednesday was named general manager of the New York Nets effective June 1, 1974 for a long term contract estimated at $75,000 a year.

DeBusschere, who in 1964 became the youngest coach in National Basketball Association history when he was named to run the Detroit Pistons when he was just 24-years-old, is an 11year veteran and has one more season under contract with the Knicks.

A seven-time NBA All-Star, DeBusschere played a key role in the Knicks' championship season this past year, averaging 16.3 points per game. In the final playoff series against the Los Angeles Lakers, DeBusschere averaged 15.6 points per game and was the Knicks' leading rebounder in that series, won by the Knicks, four games to one.

The selection of DeBusschere thus completes the Nets' front office. Two months ago they again dipped into the rival NBA, landing Kevin Loughery, a former All-Star guard with the Baltimore Bullets, as their coach. Loughery had been coaching the hapless Philadelphia 76ers.

Ganesha star heads for state finals

First try successful for Porter

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Six Pomona Valley prep athletes will board planes Friday morning for Woodland, site of the California State Track and Field Championships.

Claremont High's Marcus Gordien is the only local entrant to earn two berths. Gordien will vie in the discus (170-7) and in the shot put (58-8). The Wolfpack star has thrown the discus 182-3 this year while his 50-foot effort in the Masters Meet is his best shot put toss.

Rick Martin will represent Upland in the 180-yard low hurdles. Martin who was the San Antonio League low hurdle champion, has turned in an 18.8 wind aided time as his best effort but qualified fourth in the Masters with a 19.4 clocking.

Chino will have Mike Nau and Gene Bernard as representatives at Woodland High School. Nau raced to a third place finish of 49.4 in the 440 last weekend. His season's best effort is 48.9. Bernard, for the second consecutive week, had to settle for second best in the high jump. In both the 3-A finals and the Masters, Gene was beaten by Notre Dame's Tom Knarr.

Don Rees will represent Bonita High and the Hacienda League Friday and Saturday competing in the 440 yard run. Rees ran fourth in the Masters with a time of 49.5.

The sixth member of the group is Ganesha's all around, happy - go - lucky athlete — Cleve Porter.

The gentle Giant is competing in the triple jump, qualifying with a leap of 45-8¾ in his first taste at competition in the event.

Clevel ventured to Cerritos College for the qualifying trials last Tuesday and displayed his athletic ability. Mind you, this is his first time ever competing against opposition.

On his first try his effort was 42-7. Cleve realized that his first step was off, so after making an adjustment, he improved his mark to 44-4 putting him in sixth place. He and coach Bud Peterson discussed the situation and decided that he could progress the needed seven or eight inches by getting more thrust and spring into his takeoff from the board.

Porter's next effort was 45-8¾, earning a fourth place spot and a berth in the state championships. "I think if he'd of needed another foot he'd have done it," said Ganesha's veteran coach of 15 years.

"That's the type of athlete he is, very competitive. When the chips are down he's the man I'd want my money on probably because he's even tempered and doesn't get upset. He just tries to do better," said Peterson.

Cleve is definitely an all-around athlete. He was on the third team All-Pomona Valley High School Basketball team as a sophomore in 1972 and was a first team selection this year in leading the Giants to the 3-A quarter-finals before losing to Katella.

Prior to the hoop campaign, Porter was a split end and reserve quarterback on the football team and has spent the spring portion of his junior year alternating between center field on Ganesha's baseball team and a combination high jump-long jump, and part time sprinter on the 1973 SAL championship track team.

"With his great leg strength and good speed, I think he should concentrate on his best sports — basketball and track. He can be one of the best long jumpers and high jumpers to ever come out of the Pomona Valley if he'd put his mind to building up his speed and stamina," Peterson added.

Some of the performers around the SAL have made comment to this reporter that if Cleve wanted to work at it, he could clear 7-0 in the high jump and 24 or even 25 feet in the long jump because of his great leaping ability.

Cleve also has good sprinting ability. He substituted for the injured Alan Moore on Ganesha's 440 yard relay team last Saturday night. Unfortunately the timing was off, since Cleve had not worked with the other members of the foursome; Bobby Mitchell, Ricky Jackson and Ronnie Jacques, and the baton was dropped disqualifying them from the race. Even more unfortunate was the fact that the fifth place time was 42.9 and coach Peterson was expecting a 42.7 performance out of the quartet.

The six performers will spend Friday vying for the top 12 qualifying spots in each event. The best five finishers on Saturday will receive medals.

Sports parade

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — They're still trying to get to the bottom of Monday's trouble here, levying fines, looking at film and asking questions, when all along they've got the reason staring them straight in the face.

Human nature.

Maybe this strikes you as being a little too general. Okay, then, give some thought to that ancient social disease known the world over as "me first."

That, in a nutshell, was the nub of what happened Monday, the overriding force behind the 10-car crash which took place at Indianapolis Speedway two days ago and resulted in young Salt Walther being hospitalized in serious condition and 14 others being injured also.

Somebody simply wanted to get ahead of somebody else.

You can argue that this is what the Indianapolis 500 really is all about, but that argument grows invalid in this case because there is considerable evidence that all this "me first" occurred when the rules say it was forbidden —during the two processional laps before the actual start of the race.

For any of you who never have been to one of these spectacular, ear-splitting 500's, it should be explained that a special pace car leads or "paces" all the regular racing cars twice around the 2 ½ mile track here before the race is begun.

Hold positions

The first time around is called the parade lap, the second the pace lap, and the rules decree all cars must hold their positions in the field and not try to move up.

That's where "me first" comes in.

A competitor can help himself tremendously by jumping ahead a couple of places before the actual start.

He really isn't taking too much of a chance.

If he gets caught, all the officials do is wave a finger at him as it to say, naughty-naughty.

All they do is fine one of these "me first" fellows $100 for "improving his position," and by golly if that wasn't what Harlan Fengler, the chief steward for the 500, did to A.J. Foyt, Peter Revson and Steve Krisiloff Tuesday. Fengler did recommend that director of competition Dick King mete out a stiffer fine, but $100 was all it turned out to be.

Nobody bothered checking them out about the fines, but I'll bet Foyt, Revson and Krisiloff didn't lose an awful lot of sleep over all that money.

This isn't to say those three were the only ones trying to creep up during Monday's two preliminary laps. Everytime I've come to the 500 I've seen at least a dozen drivers try it.

Why not?

Everybody does it in today's society.

Looks for edge

Everybody's looking for the edge. They try jumping the gun everywhere, in crew racing, 100-yard dashes and everyday traffic on the highway. Many even try to move in ahead in the checkout lines down at your neighborhood supermarket.

You know how it is, me first.

Fengler must have had a premonition something might happen.

I remember him talking to all 33 competitors during Sunday's traditional driver's meeting.

"Don't jump that pole car," he said to them firmly. "Am I reaching you? Johnny, Bobby, Mark, Mario, I'm depending on you for a good start."

Fengler was addressing himself to those in the front row — Johnny Rutherford, Bobby Unser and Mark Donohue —and Mario Andretti, driving the outside car in the second row.

He was talking not merely to them specifically, but to all the drivers.

What Harlan Fengler was telling them was it was perfectly fine for them to try to beat each other once the race actually was underway, but it wasn't cricket for them to try to jump the gun before that.

He was telling all the drivers he expected them to obey the rules to the very letter, that he expected them to hold their ranks until the start.

What he was saying in effect was fellas, c'mon, now, don't try to stick your buddy. Don't give him that old "me first," not until the race actually got underway anyhow.

Harlan Fengler thought he had them all convinced.

Fat chance.

Expression goes after 3rd win at Hollypark

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Trainer Robert Frankel's talented Expression, a 3-year-old son of Impressive, guns for his third straight Hollywood Park victory Thursday in the $20,000 allowance feature.

Also entered in the mile event over the lakeside turf course are stretch-running Out Of The East and Nelson B. Hunt's Mug Punter.

Expression, which will have Laffit Pincay up, began his racing career last August in New York, posting three consecutive triumphs before an injured canon bone resulted in a trio of disappointing performances and a 5-month layoff.

He returned to competition in a six-furlong sprint May 13, going wire-to-wire in a stunning 1:08 4-5, and then beat tougher competition in his last start at the same distance.

Also in Thursday's race will be Lumberton, Double Variety, Sir Graustark and Dancing Papa.

LBJ Stable's Out Of The East will carry high weight of 122 pounds.

Frazier will fight Bugner

YANK DURHAM, manager of heavyweight fighter Joe Frazier, Tuesday confirmed the report that his fighter had agreed to a London bout with European champion Joe Bugner July 2. Durham said he had been looking for a "couple of months for an opponent, and we haven't been able to come up with anything else. Bugner was the only man who would fight Frazier."

It was the 2,504th major league appearance for Aparacio, making him number 14 in that department. Two more games will move him past Sam Crawford's 2,505 and into 13th place.

BEN JOBE Tuesday was hired as the first black assistant basketball coach at the University of South Carolina. Jobe never had a losing season in 12 years as a head coach. Jobe replaces Bill Loving as assistant to Frank McGuire.

JACK NICKLAUS fired an impressive one-under-par 70 at the rain-soaked Centerbury Golf Club in Cleveland Tuesday to beat Gary Player by two strokes and establish the men's target score in National Golf Day competition. Kings land Murdoch, Rota from Canadiens

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Stanley Cup Champion Montreal Canadiens announced today the trading of five players to two other National Hockey League clubs.

Defenseman Bob Murdoch and forward Randy Rota were sent to the Los Angeles Kings for a player to be named later and a future draft choice.

Murdoch, 27, played the past two seasons with the Canadiens and this year scored two goals and assisted on 22 others. Rota, 23, picked up 34 goals and 38 assists to finish fourth in the scoring on the American Hockey league Nova Scotia Voyageurs.

The Canadiens also sent defensemen Dale Hoganson and Bob Murray and forward Chuck Arnason to the Atlanta Flames for a player to be named later, future considerations and to complete a deal made at the recent draft of amateur players.

Hoganson, 24, who earlier this week signed a contract with the Quebec Nordiques of the World Hockey Association, was used sparingly by the Canadiens this past season and had only two assists.

Murray, 22, picked up four goals and 22 assists with the Voyageurs while Arnason, 22, netted 18 goals and 20 assists also with Nova Scotia.

Bruins need some luck, Bush says

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Some great performances, "a little bit of luck," and a couple of quick recoveries of injured jumpers are going to be needed to give UCLA its third straight national team title, Bruin Coach Jim Bush said Tuesday.

"I know we have the best team, but you have to be lucky too," Bush said, "We're going to have to have great performances all three days. University of Southern California has some gold medal winners and Oregon is getting stronger every week."

Two time defending champion UCLA travels to the NCAA finals in Baton Rouge, La., June 7-9 with at least two questionable starters.

"We have some injuries that might hurt us," Bush said. "Harry Freeman, our triple jumper, has a leg injury. Rick Fletcher, our high jumper has an abdominal injury. They're probably the best in the country."

Bush was a guest at the Southern California Track Writers Association Tuesday, honoring track and field athletes of the week, Dwight Stones of the Pacific Coast Club and Bruin Charles Rich.

Stones, who goes on tour with other club members this summer, said he hopes to peak next weekend for the U.S. championships in Wichita, Kan.

"Strengthwise, I think I am capable of breaking the world record," the 19-year-old high-jumper said. "I was happy with my first try at 7-5 in the Von's meet. After I made 7-2, I raised the bar to 7-5.

"At the time I didn't think it was a good jump, but when I watched it on television I saw I just barely missed clearing it."

Mary Decker, a 14-year-old, 86-pounder, was given a special award for reaching 25.2 in the 220, 54.7 in the 440, 2:07.8 in the 880 and 4:42 for the mile.

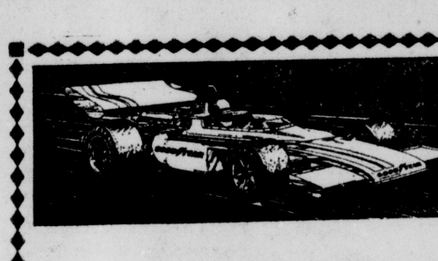

Vickers wins Calder Cup

MONTREAL UPI) — Left winger Steve Vickers of the New York Rangers ended a 19 year drought for his team Tuesday by winning the Calder Trophy as the National Hockey League's outstanding rookie in 1972-73.

Vickers, a 22-year-old native of Toronto, became the first Ranger to win the trophy since Camille Henry in 1954. Vickers polled 103 points from the hockey writers in the 16 NHL cities, 29 more than runner-up Bill Barber of the Philadelphia Flyers.

DWAYNE JACKSON
. . . Pomona champ

Pomona High soph earns CIF crown

POMONA —Dwayne Jackson has had a successful season.

The Pomona High hurdler swept through San Antonio League undefeated in both the junior varsity and the frosh-soph competition in the 70 yard high hurdles.

The sophomore earned the Most Valuable JV trophy at Pomona's Sports Award Banquet for tatling over 60 JV points thus earning a varsity letter as a 10th grader.

Jackson set a record in the SAL league finals with a 9.0 clocking and then set another mark a week later in the CIF Southern Section 3-A prelims with a time of 8.9.

An unfortunate occurance snapped Dwayne's string in the Masters Meet last weekend. He stumbled and fell going over the second hurdle and was unable to continue the race.

"I feel had he not fallen," said Pomona coach Eugene Abernathy "He would have finished in the top three places or maybe even the winner. Dwayne is a quiet, happy-go-lucky young man, with a good winning attitude, and a personality that refuses to let things bother him."

Jackson is glad that he has two more years ahead of him to try again.

"He always gets better. When he improves to a certain mark he stays there until he improves some more," said Abernathy. "and his attitude is great. If you tell him who he's up against in the next meet he either says he'll win or improve his time."

Top seeds challenged in tourney

PARIS (UPI) — Top seeds Stan Smith and Ilie Nastase faced seeded players for the first time today in their bid for spots in the quarterfinals on the men's singles in the $150,000 French Open tennis championships.

Smith, the number one seed bidding for his first victory in the Paris tournament, was scheduled to meet Tom Okker of Holland, seeded 16th, and Nastase, second seed and Romania's top player, was set to clash with Frenchman Francois Jauffret, seeded 15th at the other end of the draw.

But it was the 16-year-old Swede, Bjorn Borg, who held the spotlight again today, although officials said his fourth round match with eighth seed Adriano Panatta of Italy might be pushed back to Thursday because of the crowded schedule resulting from two days of rain.

Borg already has eliminated three top professionals, Americans Cliff Richey and Dick Stockton and Frenchman Pierre Barthes, but Panatta, the British hard courts champion, may prove a considerably tougher opponent on the clay courts of Roland Garros Stadium.

Panatta has dropped only one set on his way to the fourth round and Borg may find his giant-killing act ended by the 22-year-old Italian.

Borg has brought the championships to life and on each occasion he has played, outside courts have emptied as French fans flocked to the center court to see him.

"He is very, very good for his age," said Richey, who went out in the opening round to the Swede. "He has also got a very good temperament. But it is always difficult to predict what a junior will do.

"A lot of good young players like Borg think they can just wake up one morning and have a title handed to them on a plate. They are like that in Britain especially. Borg will have to practice and practice hard and long."

The advice is not lost on the blond Swede. "It all depends on me and how much I practice. I think I can go all the way."

Otero's big chance ruined

MIAMI BEACH (UPI — Mrs. Frankie Otero looked at former world lightweight champ Ken Buchanan, who had just ruined her husband's chances at boxing's bigtime, and said:

"There's just one thing I want to tell you. You got an ugly nose."

To say the least she was angry. And so were over 5,000 beach fight fans who were rooting for Otero Tuesday night.

But Buchanan, with accurate jabbing and careful combos, used his skills to take a unanimous 10-round decision from Otero.

It was a slugfest, at times dirty, with elbows and punches after the bell, but Buchanan clearly dominated.

Promoter Chris Dundee had billed the fight as a "light-weight elimination" bout and Buchanan feels he has earned a shot against Roberto Duran of Panama, who defeated him in a disputed title bout last June.

But a skeptical Buchanan said, "I think I have a legitimate challenge against him (Duran), but I doubt it (a rematch.)"

The Scotsman decked Otero once in the seventh round but did little damage. Both fighters slipped to the canvas at one point when their wide-opened brawl ended with Otero lifting Buchanan over his shoulder before they both tumbled down.

Both fighters weighed in at 132 pounds but Otero could not counter the more experienced Buchanan, who boosted his record to 48-2.

Otero, a Hialeah, Fla., resident, born in Cuba, has a respectable record of 40-3-2, but most of those bouts were against unknowns in the "junior lightweight" division.

Otero, 23, said he "learned a lot" from the fight.

"I wasn't hurt," Otero told Buchanan after the fight, referring to the seventh round. Then, rapidly moving his hands, Otero added, "But, you get them in there so fast."

The 27-year-old Buchanan said Otero "surprised me because he kept on coming at me. I'm not used to this kind of fighting—the elbows, the brawling—I was told you were a lazy fighter but you were really moving around."

Sandoval wins new honor

POMONA—Al Sandoval, the 106-pound National Amateur Athletic Union (NAAU) Boxing Champion from Pomona, added another trophy to his trophy case recently.

Sandoval has just returned from East Meadow, New York, where he captured the North American Zone Championship for his weight class by knocking out Miles Fisher in the first round of the light flyweight championship bout.

The 17-year-old Garey High senior who boxes out of the Sacred Heart Athletic Club of Pomona will begin a 14-day tour of Venezuela beginning June 7.

Cheetah spiker earns magazine cover shot

POMONA — The Southern California Cheetahs will be competing in the District Championship held at UC Irvine and UC Santa Barbara this weekend.

The nine and under through 13 age bracket will compete at Irvine Saturday and the 14 and older division will be at Santa Barbara Sunday. One member of the girls' track team, Chris Venrum of Etiwanda, is featured on the cover of this week's Sports Illustrated to spotlight a series on women in sports.

Last weekend, the team competed in the La Jolla Invitational at Balboa Stadium, San Diego. Four girls in the 10-11 age bracket recorded their lifetime best marks for their team which took third place.

Lisa Erickson finished second in the 440 with a time of 64.4. Della Equipalog was third in 64.6, and Lisa Peters fourth in 65.0. Debbie Kainz ran the 220 in 27.7 and finished second.

The Cheetahs 12-13 team finished fourth and three lifetime bests were recorded. Pam Greene had two, finishing third in the 100 with a time of 11.9 and second in the 220 with a 25.7. Jill Lineberger was third in the mile with a time of 5:24.0.

The 14-15 year old team also placed fourth. Mary Lee Erickson won the 100 MH with a time of 15.3, a lifetime best, Becky Wolfinbarger won the mile with a lifetime best ime of 5:09.3.

Jane Janousek took first place in the woman's walk with a lifetime best of 8:52.0.

Placing, though not scoring lifetime bests, were Lisa Peters in the high jump (3rd) and Debbie Kainz in the 100 (3rd), Tami Fergeson in the walk (2nd), Dolly Fleetwood in the 100 (2nd) and Mary Lee Erickson in the 300 MH (2nd).

The 880 medley relay team placed third in the 14-17 age bracket with a time of 1:51.3. Team members are Dolly Fleetwood, Lori Hagerty, Jody Petersen, and Mary Lee Erickson.

In the two-mile relay, the team of Monique Gregoire, Becky Wolfinbarger, Valerie Preston and Sofie Rivera placed second with a time of 9:47.0.

Rally saves Walnut in Connie Mack play

After trailing by one run after a solo home run by Whittier American Legion Post 51's Steve Williams, Walnut's Connie Mack club came back with three runs the following inning to pull ahead to stay enroute to a 6-2 victory Tuesday, it's second of the season.

In the bottom of the second inning, Williams blasted his round-tripper, but in the top of the third, Walnut stared a three-run rally when Steve Reinhardt reached first on a Whittier error.

Ron Atwell, who went two-for-two for the day, then singled Reinhardt to second, and Craig Anderson drove across the first Walnut run with a single.

Randy Swartwood promptly singled to cash in Walnut's second run of the inning, and then Marty Shepheard came up with the team's third consecutive base hit to drive in the third run.

Walnut added two more in the fourth to win going away. Anderson, who went the first five innings on the mound before being relieved by Paul Kline, received his first mound victory of the season against no defeats.

In other Connie Mack action Tuesday, coach Hook Miller's Pomona Kings ran out of manpower and bowed to West Covina in San Gabriel Valley League play, 5-2.

Pomona had held a 2-1 lead over West Covina in the third inning, but the hosts came up with two runs in the fifth and one more in the sixth to pull it out.

In trying to come back, Pomona, only fielding nine players, ended up one man short in the eighth inning when one of the Kings was thrown out of the game. The result was having to call the game in the eighth because the Kings didn't have the required number of players.

The Kings scored first in the top half of the first inning when Larry Brown walked, Larry Pekarcik sacrified him to second, Dave Stanton walked, and Ray Pekarcik grounded into a fielder's choice to score Brown.

Pomona added one more in the second inning when Louie Caudillo and Terry Huggans walked, Steve Benoit sacrificed them to second and third, and Jeff Wiencek singled home the run.

LOS ANGELES — Lightweights Jimmy Heair, 25-0 with 14 knockouts and Clemente Mucino, 22-4 with 13 KO's, both end sparring this afternoon for their 10-round main event at the Olympic Thursday night.

Heair will spar at Hoover Street gym at 5 p.m. and Mucino will spar at Main Street gym at 2 p.m.

WHA to stay in business

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The World Hockey Association has no intention of withdrawing from big league hockey, according to a spokesman for league president Gary Davidson.

Ed Fitkin, Davidson's assistant, said the rejection of the league's motion to reduce a $2.5 million bond by a federal judge in Philadelphia was "nothing serious."

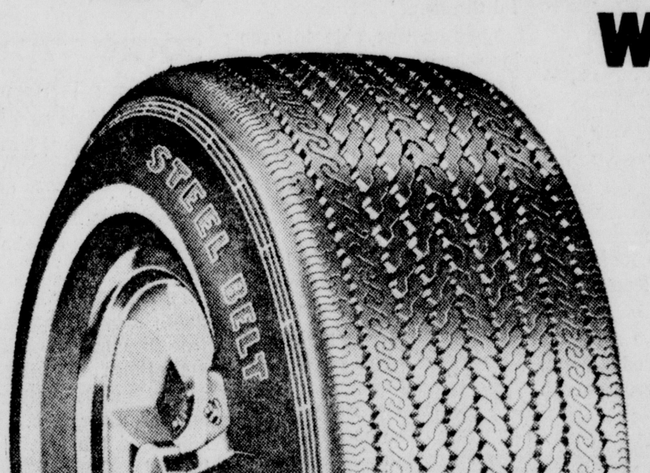

In overruling the motion, U.S. District Judge A. Leon Higginbotham Jr. suggested that if the "burdens" of posting the bond are too great for the WHA owners, they "should withdraw from major league hockey."

"it's no great thing," said Fitkin. He said the owners wanted to reduce the bond by about a million dollars because they felt the money could be used more productively in signing players.

For people in the Pomona Valley area, their view of professional bowling has been limited to 13 weeks a year, through the eyes, and unfortunately the mouth, of Chris Schenkel. This is when ABC-TV (Channel 7) broadcasts the winter tour of the professional Bowlers Association.

Well, fear not, bowling fans, for the pros are here—as well as the cons.

Starting Friday, June 1, the PBA summer tour, which offers $1,000,000 in prize money this year, gets under way at Brunswick Wonderbowl in Downey, 7676 Firestone Blvd.

The pros, 160 of the top in the nation, hold their practice session Friday morning and this is one of the best times fr spectators to witness their favorites. The bowlers are amazingly ready to talk to fans at this time as they aren't mentally preoccupied with the rigors of competition.

The tourney, itself, starts on Saturday with two 6-game blocks being rolled. The final block of six games in the qualifying will take place Sunday morning. At this point there have been no objections from Kenneth Hahn about the tourney running on Sunday.

The top 24 bowlers enter the finals Sunday eveing with the last of the 24 head-to-head matches coming Monday night. A new twist has been added to the summer tour this year—television, at least for the east coast.

The eastern seaboard will receive cable TV of 10 tourneys this year with the Winston-Salem sponsored Downey event, carrying a prize fund of $50,000, on tap first. Because of the TV coverage, the top five bowlers will return Tuesday night for the stepladder finals to determine the champion.

If you can't afford the gas or the drive to Downey, you may still view profesional bowling at Landmark Bowl on the weekend of June 23-24 when the Professional Coast Bowlers Pomona Open will roll.

The fast rising PCB, harboring the top pros of the west, stages a non-champions tourney every year with Landmark the site this year. But don't let the moniker "non-champions" fool you. For example, members of the PCB who haven't earned a champion's banner include Butch Soper, Dennis Swayda, Dave Frame, Greg Baderdeen, Stan Nishimoto, etc.

Landmark held a "house spot" sweeper Saturday night, where three spots were earned by bowlers. If you missed this one, general manger Ed Phillips announced that another three spots would be up for grabs in a 6-game sweeper on June 9, at midnight.

The two local entries in the West Coast Match Game Eliminations at Kona Lanes in Costa Mesa made impressive showings last Monday. Dick Wallace, Pomona, who opened with a 795 4-game block, countered with an 837 set in his most recent outting for a 1632 total. His 204 average places him 19th in the field of 120 bowlers, 138 pins behind Glen Nevins' leading 1770 score.

Ontario's Greg Baderdeen, a finalist at Kona two summers ago, pulled himself up into the running with 868 Monday night, following his opening night's 755 set. The 1623 is good enough to tie Greg for 21st in the standings.

What a difference a year makes. . .

It was about a year ago, at this time, that a group of ladies, Pat Carter, Betty Soutar and Pat Harahan, labeled themselves the Happy Hookers. The reason for this intriguing title was that the trio would crochet while their bowling husbands were doing their thing.

Not too much has been heard from the Happy Hookers recently and the most noise from their men folk deals with subjects other than bowling.

It seems that Carter, currently sporting a cane following an operation on his right knee, has picked up and moved to Miami. It also just happens that 21-year-old Paula Sperber lives in Miami and has been consoling Carter and his knee quite often.

At the same time, Soutar, who has been battling quite a slump, picked up stakes from Tarzana and just this past week named Kansas City, Mo., as his new residence. Of course, it's probably just coincidence that lovely Judy Cook lives in nearby Grandview, Mo. Of course, it's coincidence.

That leaves us with Mr. Harahan who joined the others in giving the needle to his part of the Happy Hookers, but still resides in the San Fernando Valley. Harahan, who was the leading qualifier in last year's Firestone Tournament of Champions, finished dead last in this year's tourney. Now, if he could only find someone to coincidently move close to. . .

I think I'll get myself a cane and move to Florida. After all, if it worked for Carter, I should be able to find an attractive 4-year-old Florida Cracker for myself.

American League roundup

Blyleven earns 4th victory in row, 1-0

By United Press International

It was "Dutch Treat" in Milwaukee Tuesday night but the Minnesota Twins certainly got the better of the deal.

Bert Blyleven, the Twins' hard-throwing right-hander from Holland, tossed his second straight shutout and gained his fourth consecutive victory with a brilliant 1-0 triumph over the Milwaukee Brewers.

The 22-year-old Blyleven, nicknamed the "Flying Dutchman" by his teammates, was sailing along on a four-hitter before Ollie Brown and John Briggs opened the Brewers' ninth with singles. Twins' Manager Frank Quilici came to the mound to talk with Blyleven but decided to stick with his starter. Blyleven then bore down and got Don Money on a pop to short and pinch hitter Ellie Rodriguez to ground into a double play to record his sixth victory against as many losses this season.

"I knew I had to get Money out somehow," said Blyleven. "I was really tired when Quilici came to the mound but I wasn't going to tell him. It was my game and I wanted to win it. I decided to challenge him with my best stuff. I threw a good fast ball and he popped it up and I knew I'd win then."

Blyleven was able to even his season record at 6-6 when he got Rodriguez to bounce to Twins' shortstop Jerry Terrell, who took the ball just in front of second base and turned it into a game-ending double play.

"I thought I had a chance to get it but heaven knows what would have happpened if I did," said Blyleven about Rodriguez' ninth inning grounder. "I may have had to eat it."

The only run Blyleven had to work with was Bobby Darwin's seventh inning homer off loser Jim Slaton, a shot deep into the left field stands and one of only seven hits allowed by Slaton.

"I knew I was a better pitcher," said Blyleven, commenting on his 2-6 start this season. "I felt I just had to keep my confidence and challenge the hitters. I was taking it home with me and I was sore every day and got into my own little world. I was sore at myself primarily because I could do better."

In other American League games, the New York Yankees whipped Oakland 7-1, Boston edged California 2-1, Baltimore nipped Kansas City 3-2, Cleveland outlasted Texas 9-7 and Detroit at Chicago was rained out.

Graig Nettles slugged two homers and Roy White and Bobby Murcer chipped in with one apiece as the Yankees beat Oakland behind the five-hit pitching of Fritz Peterson. Nettles, who ended Jim Hunter's string of 27 scoreless innings with a two-run homer in the second inning, climaxed a five-run third with a two-run shot into the bleachers. It was the 10th time in 45 games this season that the Yankees score five or more runs in one inning.

Brooks Robinson slammed a run-scoring tie-breaking single in the eighth inning to lift the Orioles over the Kansas City behind the seven-hit pitching of Jim Palmer. Paul Blair doubled in the eighth, his third hit of the game, took third on a wild pitch by loser Paul Splittorff and scored on Robinson's single past the drawn in infield.

The Royals muffed a chance to tie the game in the eighth when Amos Otis crashed a oneout triple. Palmer then threw a wild pitch over catcher Andy Etchebarren's head but the ball struck the concrete behind home plate and came directly back to Etchebarren, who tossed to Palmer for the tag on Otis at the plate.

George Hendrick singled home a run in the third inning and doubled home two more in the fourth to lead Cleveland past Texas. Cleveland jumped on newly-acquired pitcher Lloyd Allen for seven runs in the first three innings and relievers Tom Hilgendorf and Jerry Johnson turned in 7 1-3 shutout innings to preserve the triumph.

Binding lease gives Padres some woes

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Mayor Pete Wilson said Tuesday the San Diego Padres have "a binding lease with 15 years to run" and breach of the agreement would give the city grounds to seek damages.

Padres owner C. Arnholt Smith announced Sunday the franchise had been sold for $12 million to Joseph Danzansky and two other Washington businessmen. Two conditions of the sale were release by the city from the stadium contract and approval of that agreement by National League owners.

Wilson said he had no written communication on the sale from the Padres. He said, however, lawyers for the city and the club met Tuesday.

Wilson emerged from a closed door session with the City Council and said the councilmen "share the point of view we would like the club to stay here."

Several legal avenues were being explored, he said, but refused to give details because of "possible pending litigation."

Wilson said one possible action was for the city to seek damages from the Padres based on estimated revenues over the remaining 15 years of the lease.

Wilson again denied the city had offered to release the club from the stadium agreement for $2.1 million.

The mayor said Smith told him about 10 days ago he was attempting to sell the club. He said Smith cited high interest costs, estimated at $700,000 annually, on the $10 million purchase price for the franchise.

Janice Metcalf to play in NAIA Tennis finals

CLAREMONT — Janice Metcalf will make her first appearance in National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA) championships in Kansas City June 4-8.

Miss Metcalf, the 1972 Women's National Intercollegiate Champion, is the number four player on the University of Redlands team which will be seeking its eighth championship. The Bulldogs were dethroned last year by East Texas State.

The Claremont native is the second woman to be entered in NAIA Championship events this year. The first was Lynn Olson of Ferris St. (Mich.) who was in the two-mile walk in the Track and Field Championships last week at Arkadelphia, Ark.

Miss Metcalf also is the second woman to play in the NAIA Tennis Championships. Carlene Basore of William Jewell College (Mo.) was the first. She won her first match on a forfeit before losing in the second round in 1964.

Janice compiled an impressive 17-10 record this year while competing against the top college teams on the West Coast. She won the Ojai Women's Intercollegiate title, and was a member of the U.S. Federation Cup team that played in Europe earlier this month.

In addition, she was runner-up to teammate John Brush, two-time NAIA All-American, in the District Three Tournament. She is ranked 17th nationally among women in the U.S. at the present time.

Seaver finally gets help

By United Press International

The New York Mets have a habit of making Tom Seaver suffer.

Seaver, who has been victimized by poor batting support in several of his outings, turned in his strongest effort of the season Tuesday night, but it appeared it would go to waste as he trailed the San Francisco Giants 2-1 entering the ninth inning.

However, his teammates rallied for four runs in the ninth to pull out a 5-2 victory as Seaver finished with a three-hit, 16-strikeout performance.

"It was the best stuff I had this year," said Seaver, who boosted his record to 6-3. "I had good velocity. I felt we were going to win entering the ninth. I felt optimistic because everyone in the dugout was alive."

Ken Boswell started the ninth inning rally by drawing a walk off starter Jim Barr. Randy Moffit replaced Barr and was greeted by Bud Harrelson's single. Seaver, who had homered in the fifth inning for the Mets' first run, then bunted safely to load the bases and Wayne Garrett walked to force home the tying run.

Felix Millan singled to score two runs and he eventually came around to score on a sacrifice fly by George Theodore.

It was an especially gratifying win for Seaver, who has had his share of hard luck this season. In his three losses to date Seaver has gotten only one run from his teammates and in two other outings he allowed a total of only four runs but was involved in a no decision.

Seaver's effort against the Giants tied him for the league lead in strikeouts with Philadelphia's Steve Carlton with 82, and it also equalled the major league high for the year.

In other National League action, Los Angeles defeated Philadelphia 9-3, St. Louis blanked Cincinnati 2-0, Pittsburgh downed Atlanta 6-1 and Chicago beat Houston 7-1. Montreal at San Diego was not scheduled.

Scipio Spinks, starting his first game in nearly a month, allowed five hits and struck out eight in six innings of work while sparking the Cardinals to victory over the Reds. Diego Segui worked three scoreless innings in relief for St. Louis as the Cardinals posted their 10th victory in 11 games. St. Louis relief pitchers have not been charged with a run in their last 17 appearances.

Willie Stargell belted his 13th home run and Luke Walker and Jim Rooker combined on a seven-hitter as the Pirates defeated the Braves. Walker worked seven innings for the Pirates and struck out seven to even his record at 2-2.

The Cubs scored four runs in the first inning en route to victory over the Astros. Jose Cardenal and Randy Hundley came through with two-run singles in the first as the Cubs posted their fifth triumph in six games. Rick Monday added his 10th homer in the fourth inning for Chicago. Rick Reuschel went the distance, allowing only five hits, to notch his fifth win.

Giants' Story named Most Valuable Player

POMONA —Craig Story, a three-year varisty letterman, walked away with this year's Most Valuable Player and Captain trophies at the Ganesha High tennis banquet at Sir George's Restaurant.

Story, who lost to Claremont's Peter Hill in the opening round of the San Antonio League tennis finals at Claremont-Mudd this season, was among eight other varsity lettermen and five junior varsity lettermen.

Joye Hooyboer, a junior, received the Most Inspirational Player honor for the varsity, while teammate Bill Harrington picked up the Most Improved trophy. Both Hooyboer and Harrington will be returning to the team next year.

Other varsity lettermen included Moses Iongi, Michael Romero, Steve Meyer, Ken Nitz, Paul Hirayama and Michelle Smithson.

Pomeroy heads Hang Ten field

GREATEST OF EASE — Jim Pomeroy, 19, a factory Bultaco rider from Yakima, Wash., became the first American ever to win a World Championship Motocross Grand Prix. Pomeroy will be flying from Europe to compete in the Hang Ten sponsored United States

CARLSBAD — Young Jim Pomeroy from Yakima Washington, made history in front of a crowd of 35,000 and shocked Europe as he became the first American ever to win a World Championship Grand Prix race, at his first attempt.

The Spanish Grand Prix was the first round of the 250cc World Championship and after winning the first race and finishing fourth in the second race, Pomeroy led the World Championship by 1 point. A sensational debut for Pomeroy and a real shot in the arm for American motocross.

To win Pomeroy had to battle with some of the best European riders, such as Hans Maisch (West Germany), Heikki Mikkola (Finland), Torlif Hansen & Hakan Anderson (Sweden) and his victory was even more incredible because, except for one experimental cylinder head, he was riding a virtually standard Bultaco Pursang from the Spanish factory.

Pomeroy, who has ridden a Bultaco for three years, but who only turned professional last year, had been in Europe since January training for the Grand Prix circuit. He plans to ride all the Grands Prix and after the Italian, Belgian and Swiss races he lies 4th in the World Championship.

Poeroy will be taking time out from his busy 250cc World Championship to travel from Europe to Carlsbad for the Hang Ten United States Grand Prix on June 24, round 6 in the World Moto-Cross Championship for 500cc machines.

Pomeroy is not eligible to score points in this event as he is not a nationally graded 500cc rider, but it will be interesting to see if he can win the first ever United States World Championship Motocross Grand Prix, as well as it being his first attempt! He will be riding a special, large capacity machine built for him by the factory for this event.

America's top 500cc rider, Brad Lackey, is also in Europe contesting all the 500cc Grands Prix on his works Kawasaki. There have only been two rounds of this championship so far in France and Austria. Brad was lying eleventh in the World Championship table after the French G.P., but did not compete in the controversial Austrian Grand Prix.

He is hoping to improve his position in the Championship at the Finnish Grand Prix on May 20th, and will be traveling to Carlsbad for the Hang Ten United States Moto-Cross Grand Prix on June 24.

The American's task will not be easy as the world's very best motorcross riders who contest the prestigious World Championship series will be converging on Carlsbad hungry for points. Entries for the Grand Prix, which have been accepted by the American Motorcycle Association, are very impressive and it is hoped that at least 15 nations will be represented at Carlsbad for this first World Championship class Grand Prix.

So far the list includes 1972 500cc World Champion Roger de Coster (Belgium), current championship leader Oscar Hamerschmid (Czechoslovakia), 1972 Hang Ten United States Moto-Cross Grand Prix winner Ake Jonsson (Sweden), as well as Jak Van Velthoven (Belgium), Jeri Stodulka (Czechoslovakia). John Banks and Vic Eastwood (England), Serge Bacou (France), Fernando Macia (Venezuela), Tony Stifta (Switzerland), Jyrki Storm (Finland), Bengt Aberg & Arre Kring (Sweden) and Jim Pomeroy, Brad Lackey and Jim Weinert (U.S.A.). Entries are also expected from West Germany, Austria, Italy, Holland, Spain, Canada and Japan.

The American Motorcycle Association has also invited Russia and East Germany to take part in the Grand Prix, but as yet no official confirmation has been received. The Russians were expected to compete in 1972, but last minute difficulties prevented their appearance.

If they do contest the Grand Prix, it will be the first time ever that a Soviet rider has competed in a moto-cross race in the United States of America.

Ganesha featured at Drags

POMONA — The fourth running of the "Parker Ave. Drags" featured Ganesha High last Sunday afternoon.

The students of Ganesha were pitted against each other and also against some of the school's instructors.

In the competition, Ray Pry's '50 Olds captured the Ganesha High Elimination Bracket by taking Bill Bett's "Billy Barty's VW."

Pry's Pride turned a 18.79 e.t. with a dialed-in e.t. of 18.10 at a speed of 72.75 miles per hour to beat Bett.

In the Powder Puff Bracket finals, Ms. Dawn Dyson's '60 Corvette ran 16.33 with a dialed-in e.t. of 16.20 at a speed of 85.55 miles per hour to win the Powder Puff Bracket against Pomona's Ms. Leore Nixon's '72 Ford Pinto, which ran 18.11 against a dialed-in e.t. of 17.99 for a speed of 75.44 miles per hour.

In the E. T. Bracket, Al Muraski's '72 Ford Mustang Mach — dialed-in at 15.0 e.t. and ran at 15.22 for a speed of 85.70 miles per hour to win the Top E.T. Eliminator of the day over Bob Fernandez and his '65 Chevy, which dialed-in at 16.00 and ran 16.21 for a speed of 86.28 miles per hour.

The "Parker Ave. Drags" are held every Sunday at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds in Pomona. Technical inspection begins at 8 a.m. with the first time trial at 9 a.m.

The event is being sponsored by the Pomona Police Officers Relief Association, Inc., and is being sanctioned by National Hot Rod Association.

Price of admission for 13-year-olds and older is $2, with another $1 for Tech inspection for the car which is being raced. Any person under 13 years accompanied by an adult will be admitted free.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla (UPI) — Buddy Baker has taken the lead on the second leg of the NASCAR Winston Cup Grand National series and David Pearson has become the first driver of the year to hit the $100,000 mark.

The second leg of the Winston series began with Sunday's World 600 at Charlotte, N.C., Baker won that race, becoming the first man ever to do so back-to-back. He has 425 points while Parson is second with 398 points.

Benny Parsons leads in the battle for the season's championship. His fifth place finish Sunday gave Parsons 368.55 points for the year.

Cale Yarborough is second with 2880.75 points, and Cecil Gordon third at 2833.20.

Southland racing

IRWINDALE — Terry McKee, the Ontario glass shop owner, and Bill Swailes, the racing real estate man from West Covina, have a big stake in the outcome of this Saturday night's claimer stock rar races at San Gabriel Valley Speedway in Irwindale.

The pair rank sixth and seventh in United States Racing Club championship point standings with a harrow margin of only four points separating them.

GARDENA — Addition of a regular Wednesday Continental Motosports Club program, June 6, and an American Desert Racing Association regular Tuesday program, June 19, will make J. C. Agajanian's Ascot one of the busiest motor sports emporiums in the country next month.

Since night racing began March 31, Ascot has hosted American Motorcycle Association racing bikes, California Racing Association sprint cars, and Figure 8 stock cars on a regular basis, Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays. The dune-buggies have had monthly events.

GARDENA — The West Coast Modified Association stages a Memorial Classic tonight at J. C. Agaganian's Ascot pitting the late-model compacts and sportsman against the early model modified coupes, at 8 p.m.

Top drivers from Saugus, San Bernardino, Las Vegas, Bakersfield, and San Diego are expected for the open competition program, featuring a 50-lap main event.

Gen Riniker of Riverside, who drove his coupe to victory at San Gabriel Speedway in Riverside faces an illustrious array of talent including Jimmy Insolo, Bill Spenser, Paul Turner, John Hutchins, Nestor Silvera, Tom Roberson, Ed Sauer, Lee Greene, and Bill Butts.

CORONA — Sunday night at 7 p.m. will mark the return of the super fast modifieds as they take on Cororona Raceway's tricky half mile.

These late model stock cars, running the biggest engines that will fit under the hood have been running lap times which are timed in the low 24's. Converted to MPH, this works out to be an average speed of approx. 72 MPH, which means speeds of close to 100 MPH on the straights.

The great challenge will come with the return of the number 80 hardtop coupe, being piloted by one of the fastest drivers in SoCal, Jerry Jones. Herry has won almost all of the races he has entered with the modifieds, but now he is up against some stiff competition. He is going to have to do battle with Chuck Peters in his Chevelle and his old time rival, now driving one of the fastest Falcons ever put on a track, John Hutchins.

VALENCIA — Night notocross racing for the motorcycles, which continues to attract many of the nation's leading riders, returns Friday to the fast International obstacle track at Indian Dunes Park near Saugus.

Leading off a triple-header competition weekend that also will feature the bikes during daytime shows Saturday and Sunday, upwards of 300 racers are expected for Friday's 42-event program when the first moto leaves the starting gate at 8:00 p.m.

IRWINDALE — High powered NASCAR sportsman stock cars return to the San Gabriel Valley Speedway in Irwindale opening their regular Friday night racing seasog this weekend.

Friday's outstanding speedfast will include trophy dashes, heat races and main events for sportsman stock cars with the hobby cars and mini-stock machines of NASCAR in special races.

The battle for the championship is still on hot and heavy with defending champion, Ivan Baldwin of Riverside and challenger, Bill Spencer of Sierra Park, locked up tight in a near tie for the front.

CORONA — Saturday night is going to be a big night at Corona Raceway! On tap for the evenings RACING are the Figure 8 stocks, Claimer stocks, Powder Puff and a special giant SCDD Destruction Derby. This evening of spectacular racing gets under way at 8 p.m.

Leading off this quadrupal header will be those fantastic ladies in their flying machines, the Powder Puffers, Bev. Arnold and Connie Church lead off this pack of Daredevil damsels as they try to push each other out of contention on the quarter-mile oval, just to prove that the women are just as good as the men.

A lot of the action on the second will be furnished by those slam, bang, watch out for me I'm comin thru the intersection, figure 8 drivers. This type of racing has astonished fans as they see these Detroit monsters piloted by very skilled drivers, caroom through the "X" barely missing each other. The action will be hot and heavy as up to 40 cars start in the main event, and attempt to zip around the track without ending up in the junk yard.

Private chats from space station are frowned upon

HOUSTON (UPI) — NASA said ground personnel made "an error in judgment" Tuesday when they permitted Skylab commander Charles "Pete" Conrad to talk secretly with project officials about the status of the space station.

Ground rules established by the agency before the start of the mission specified that such private radio talks could be permitted only in conditions of "extreme operational emergency."

Transcripts of the conversation were withheld, but it was summarized by NASA. Conrad discussed a number of things, ranging from the unexpectedly warm temperatures in Skylab to the possibility of conducting a spacewalk to free a jammed solar power wing.

The talk with three officials was monitored by a public affairs officer. NASA said none of the conversation met the operational emergency guidelines.

"To preclude use of private conversations for non-emergency purposes stated in NASA policy for Skylab communications, ground control personnel will be instructed to respond to requests for private conversations from the crew by asking if the crew is certain in their minds that the situation is serious enough to warrant private conversations," the agency said in a statement.

Performer dies from injuries suffered in fall

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — High wire performer Vincente Cardozi, Hollywood, Calif., died Monday of injuries he suffered when he fell 30 feet to the concrete floor during a circus act Friday.

Cardozi, a member of the Los Abandos High Wire act, lost his grip during a swing man act in the Tripoli Shrine Circus and landed on his back after missing the net.

The accident stunned the capacity crowd in the Brown County Arena.

Slayer gets 30 years for kidnaping

GOLDEN, Colo. (UPI) — Convicted murderer Sherman McCrary was sentenced to 29 to 30 years in prison Tuesday for kidnaping a Lakewood, Colo., doughnut shop waitress in August, 1971.

District Judge Dan Shannon said McCrary would serve the term after he completes a life sentence for the murder of the waitress, Leeora Rose Looney, 20. He must first serve a 5 years to life sentence in California for assault with intent to murder before serving his Colorado prison terms.

Unofficial estimates were that McCrary, 47, would be eligible for parole in 33 years. Thirty years is the maximum sentence for kidnaping in Colorado.

Before he handed down the sentence, Shannon denied a motion for a new trial for the Texas carnival worker. Attorneys for McCrary said they would appeal the case.

McCrary's wife, Carylon, was sentenced last week to two years in prison for being an accessory after the fact in the incident.

Summit may raise new problems

By RICHARD C. LONGWORTH

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (UPI) — It is 2,803 miles, as the presidential jet flies, between the Watergate complex in Washington and the Kjarvals art gallery in this Icelandic capital.

But when President Nixon and President Georges Pompidou of France meet in the gallery Thursday, Nixon will find he did not leave all his problems behind him. French diplomats say Pompidou has a few new ones for him.

Most of these problems concern the "new Atlantic Charter"—the catchword for the reordering of transatlantic relations that Nixon hopes to set in motion during this "year of Europe."

The way Nixon sees it, this reordering would cover all relations—from trade to money to troops to oil to relations with the East. All these issues, Nixon feels, are linked.

But the French are not playing.

Pompidou and his new foreign minister, Michel Jo-[illegible]. already have forced a [illegible]ning of the European [illegible]n several key issues.

[illegible]bert demanded and won a tougher European Common Market approach to world trade talks opening later this year. In particular, the market insists now on parallel progress toward monetary reform and rejects any attempt to dismantle Europe's controversial common agricultural policy.

The French, moreover, are pushing for more—specifically a U.S. commitment to tie the dollar directly to gold again by making Washington pay gold for dollars returned from overseas.

In oil, the Common Market's executive commission tried to open talks with the United States and Japan on a combined approach to ward off an energy crisis. France vetoed the attempt earlier this month.

On money, France has insisted on a central role for gold as the underpinning of a new monetary system. This is because France has lots of gold. The United states hopes for a gradual "demonetization" of gold.

On troops, France refused to join the exploratory talks in Vienna on a mutual East-West troop reduction in Central Europe. This is because Paris is dead set against any U.S. pullback from Europe at all, either unilaterally or in concert with the Soviet Union.

All these issues are coming to a head this year. The search for their solution is not helped by other, continuing U.S.French disputes in, for example, the Middle East. The United States backs Israel while France traditionally is closer to the Arabs.

Nixon believes that Europe must make trade concessions because of the sizable U.S. contribution to Europe's defense. France, and most other European nations, oppose this.

Most of these problems were expected to come under discussion during the two days of talks here. It was not known if the talks will cover them in detail or only broadly, but few diplomats expected a meeting of the minds on any of them.

Kills marriage need?

Wives' financial rights debated

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An all-male Senate committee was told Tuesday night that California's husband-oriented community property laws afford women few rights, even less protection and can lead to woeful tales of family tragedy.

Among the first-hand ,accounts given during nearly 2-½ hours of a sometimes humorous, mostly said and occasionally shocking hearing were:

—Helen Nicora, a San Francisco Bay Area woman married for 26 years. She told the committee she went into a cement contracting business with her husband, who sold her out. She said an attorney told her the only recourse would be divorce. The loss: her share of $70,000.

—De Cole, another Bay Area resident, who was in the process of a "mature" divorce when she learned her husband had loaned and lost the equity in her home. She tearfully told the committee that now, after the divorce, her husband is living affluently. The outright loss: $10,000. Plus, she said she was forced to contemplate giving up custody of her son because she can't afford his special education needs.

—May Goldman, a Los Angeles widow, who said she was unable to collect on her husband's insurance policy which he purchased at age 84 without listinf her as the beneficiary. The loss: $9,500.

—Barbara McCallum, a Sacramento attorney, told of a client who was unaware and powerless to recover the estate her husband gambled away. She said a court held that gambling was no mismanagement. The loss: the client's share of $300,000.

At fault in all of these cases, the women contended, was California's community property laws, which give the husband legal control to manage all joint assets.

"If women knew what the law stated, very few would get married," insisted Mrs. Nicora.

The testimony came during a nighttime hearing of the Judiciary Committee on two bills (SB569 and 570) by Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally, D-Los Angeles, aimed at giving women "equality" in community property and inhertance matters.

One measure would give co-control of community property to both husband and wife, along with a set of checks and balances to keep it working. The checks include the need for husband and wife to secure written permission from each other to spend or dispose of community property for other than "necessary" items.

The other simply eliminates the need for estates to be processed through escrow before going to a widow. Currently, there is no such requirement for widowers.

A number of committee members expressed doubts about the written permission requirement, questioning if it would apply to such things as buying a fishing pole.

The committee, at Dymally's request, put off a vote on the measures until next Tuesday.

Sen. Donald L. Grunsky, RWatsonville, said the bills would force couples to draw up "premartial contracts."

"There is very little reason to get married anymore," he commented. "By passing this bill aren't you hammering another nail in the coffin of love and romance?"

He said he feared the bills would not 'just give women equality in the matters but would slap greater restrictions on both men and women.

Sen. W. Craig Biddle, R-Riverside, declared, "The effect of this bill is to make marriage a partnership."

ROBERT N. COE

Utility group elects Edison Co. official

SAN FRANCISCO — Robert N. Coe of San Gabriel, vice president of the Southern California Edison Co., has been elected president of the Pacific Coast Electrical Association.

The association represents electric utilities, manufacturers and suppliers in California, Arizona, Nevada and Hawaii.

The election took place at the association's 56th annual meeting.

Coe joined SCE in 1929. He was elected a vice president in 1965. He is reponsible for the company's power supply department, engineering and construction and right-of-way and land

He has served as a PCEA director for several years.

Edison Co. aids two collegians

Two Pomona Valley college students are winners of Southern California Edison Co. career development awards, according to V. F. Martin, Edison's Pomona district manager.

They are Kevin D. Smith of 1112 Wisconsin St., Pomona, a student at Mt. San Antonio College, Walnut, and Thomas E. Jones of Ontario, a student at Chaffey College, Alta Loma.

Both are completing their studies at their respective community colleges and will continue their educations at four-year colleges or universities.

Each will receive from $500 to $1,500 under the SCE program.

Martin said one of the purposes of the career development awards is to encourage promising community college students to pursue careers in several engineering and business fields.

Nursery school to appear on television

CLAREMONT — Enrollment is being held for the three-month summer session of the Claremont Child Development Center, 1401 N. College Ave.

Children 1 through 5 are eligible to enroll, for the session which begins Friday.

Luke E. Perry, a former Head Start child development supervisor in Compton, will direct the program.

Children may enroll in two, three, or five-morning programs for one, two or three months. The Claremont Child Development Center is a parent-participation nursery school. Parents assist twice a month in staffing the school and once a month in cleaning.

Program fees are $19 a month for the two-day program, $27 for the three-day program, and $45 for the five-day program.

More information may be obtained by phoning 626-1915 or 624-1269.

Named to dean job at Cal State

CLAREMONT — Dr. Robert T. Stout, 35, director of research at the Claremont Institute for Administrative Studies, has been appointed dean of the School of Education at Cal State Fullerton.

The appointment becomes effective July 1. Stout will succeed Dr. Ida S. Coppolino, acting dean since 1971.

Historic Riverside Inn rescued from razing

RIVERSIDE — Century-old Mission Inn, listed by the National Trust for Historic Preservation as "an endangered species," has been saved from destruction following a successful, two-year struggle to secure financing.

Funds totaling more than $2.5 million have been loaned by Connecticut General Life Insurance Co. and the Riverside Redevelopment Agency, making it possible for the inn's owner, the San Francisco-based Urban Housing Co., Inc., to realize its plan to preserve the inn.

The plan, currently under way, will be implemented in three phases.

Phase I will include the restructering of a major wing and hotel rooms into 137 apartments, the complete restoration of the lobby to its 1903 design and the remodeling of the major banquet facilities.

Phase II will begin in September and will include the renovation of the rotunda to provide 40,000 square feet of office space.

Phase III will conclude the restructuring of more than 200 apartments from hotel rooms, the restoration of the art gallery, the flyers museum, the St. Francis Chapel and various public rooms.

The entire lower level will be converted to a collection of speciality shops.

The saving of the Mission Inn is the result of a three-pronged effort on the part of the Riverside Redevelopment Agency, the Connecticut General Life Insurance Co. and the Urban Housing Co.

Seven in area to get medical caps

AZUSA — Seven Pomona Valley area residents will be among 21 students honored Friday at a precommencement capping ceremony as part of Citrus College's two-year medical assisting program.

Dr. Sanford L. Greenberg of Hacienda Heights will be the guest speaker during the 7:30 p.m. ceremony on the school's student center.

Graduating Pomona Valley area students are Mary Franz, Judith Margolis and Jeanine Tribble, all of Glendora; Hettie Vaniman of La Verne; Glenda Merrell of Pomona; Diane Esser of Rowland Heights; and Pamela Butler of Walnut.

New movie, TV firm formed

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Frank Capra Jr. and E.W. Scripps II announced formation Wednesday of a movie and television production company, Capra-S-C Productions Inc.

Capra, son of the famed director and Scripps, vice president of Scripps Howard Newspapers, will film "Sweet Promised Land" from Robert Laxalt's novel. "We plan to film many other properties for motion pictures and television," Capra told a news conference. Capra is president of the organization and Scripps vice president. A third partner is Jerald G. Clemans, vice president.

Montclair chamber to install president
